

Quotes From the News

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

South Bend, Ind.—President Eisenhower, in an appeal for his foreign aid program during an address at Notre Dame University commencement exercises:

"This is no time to whimper, complain or fret about helping other peoples, if we really intend that freedom shall emerge triumphant over tyranny."

Vatican City—Pope John XXIII, calling for individual self-sacrifice for the common good to improve the international situation:

"Every state has at its heart, in particular, to assure the healthy development of its community, wisely taking count of realistic possibilities and above all, respecting the true spiritual values which is the soul itself of a people."

Los Angeles—Jimmy Robertson, 6, of Norfolk, Va., who is doomed by brain cancer, on visiting Disneyland:

"Boy what a place. I never thought I'd get to see it with my own eyes."

Gainesville, Fla.—J. M. Wood, 55, explaining the strategy that helped him stay awake more than 232 hours in a motor boat:

"I thought about spiritual things. I'd been wanting to take time out to think about things for a long time. This was a good chance."

Frank Bartholomew, UPI President Gets Oregon State Honor

Corvallis, Ore. —UPI-Frank H. Bartholomew, president of United Press and United Press International since 1955, received an honorary doctor of laws degree today at the 91st commencement of Oregon State college, his alma mater.

The same degree was awarded Harry R. Wellman, vice president of the University of California and also a former student here.

The degrees were among 1,787 awarded to graduating seniors and graduate students, the second largest number of degrees to be granted in OSC's history.

FRANK BARTHOLOMEW Gets Honorary Degree

Bartholomew's citation, read at the exercises in Gill Coliseum by Dr. A. L. Strand, president of the college, said: "Famed News Writer

"Frank H. Bartholomew, journalist and press association president, contributor to a broader understanding of international relations and responsibilities. Famed foreign correspondent who frequently forsakes his desk for front line reporting of major news events anywhere in the world. Recipient of the Omar N. Bradley Award for distinguished contributions to national security as a war correspondent, friend and counselor of countless statesmen as well as newspaper men. Communicator extraordinary, who worked his way from the halls of Oregon State college to head United Press International, the world's largest independent news gathering agency."

Wellman's citation referred to him as an "outstanding alumnus of Oregon State college, agricultural economist and financial counselor, university administrator. Pioneer in agricultural extension; able and stimulating teacher; creative researcher and author. Keen analyst and man of judgment. Distinguished advisor to state, national and foreign governments. Former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board of San Francisco. Past president of the Western and American Farm Economic Association. Director of the Giannini Foundation. Vice president of Agricultural Sciences, and since 1958 vice president of the University of California."

Values of Education

Dr. Strand, in a brief commencement address, called for renewed attention to a "cluster of common loyalties," including work, dignity to the human person, the moral responsibility of the individual, devotion to truth, regard for excellence, brotherhood, equality before the law and freedom to develop and exchange ideas.

"If the purpose of America is to make men free... If the purpose of education is the same... Then these values are the things to which we must give renewed attention," Dr. Strand said.

Seattle Soldier Dies On Bus Near Salem

Salem —UPI—A Seattle soldier died aboard a Greyhound bus just south of here Saturday of a heart seizure.

The Marion county coroner identified the victim as SP-5 Booker T. Hooker, 31. He was stationed at Fort Lawton.

Rep. Edith Green Graduation Speaker

Canton, Mo. —UPI—Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.) told the graduating class of Culver-Stockton College here today the nation was searching for "the American purpose."

She suggested the search might be fruitful in three areas — "the basic American concept of equality under the law, liberty under law and peace through law."

The Oregon Democrat delivered the commencement address at the college and received an honorary doctor of humanities degree.

Denver Publisher Deplores U2 Case In Eureka Speech

Eureka, Calif. —UPI—Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of the Denver Post, said today he deplored the fact that "even now the administration still hasn't got its stories straight" on the U2 incident.

He called for more frank discussion on what he described as "the greatest crisis of our history."

Hoyt spoke here before a gathering of Rotary Club members from Northwestern California as the guest of Don O'Kane, president of the Eureka Newspapers, Inc.

The Denver publisher was the commencement speaker Sunday at Humboldt State College, where O'Kane was awarded an honorary master of arts degree.

Agrees With Stevenson

"Nobody can say as yet when the nation will become aroused to the realization that national duty must take precedence over private indulgence, that it is not possible to preserve our society of private affluence and public complacency," Hoyt said today.

"The voices that will serve this country and, indeed, save it will be those of stern men demanding hard things — in this age of the bomb it is important for us to remember that if we are to compete successfully with dictatorship we must strengthen democracy; and one of the ways to do that is through discussion, frank and free."

The publisher said he was a long-time supporter of President Eisenhower, "but I think Adlai Stevenson — whatever else he may be for or against — was quite right this time when he said the administration, through its mishandling of the U2 incident, handed the disgraceable Mr. Khrushchev a crowbar and a pickaxe to wreck the summit."

U.S. Lost Respect

"When this incident was disclosed on the eve of the conference, first we said no. Then we said yes. Then we said we would keep on with the flights over Russia because they were essential. Then we said we wouldn't do it any more. As far as the summit meeting is concerned, maybe the fact it was broken up was for the best. I don't know. But that's not the only point involved. The way we handled ourselves over this unhappy incident had some very bad long range results."

"We put ourselves in the spot where we openly advocated violation of international law, whereas in the past we were in the fortunate position of being always on the side of morality. We helped to undercut world-wide respect for our veracity. And we revealed a shocking lack of coordination among those who were supposed to be making our over-all strategy."

Jerry Giesler Out of Hospital

Las Vegas —UPI—Jerry Giesler, 73, famed Hollywood attorney, was released Sunday from Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital after suffering his third heart attack in a year.

Giesler was stricken Friday night at the Sands Hotel. Dr. Ivan Mindlin described the attack as mild.

Wall Street Chatter

New York —UPI—The election campaigns no doubt will have the effect of restraining market enthusiasm, but the usual summer rally should probably carry on and may even gain in breadth and vigor, according to Shearson, Hammill & Co.

In addition to retail issues, Shearson says, other groups which are in a position to perform well and provide candidates for the "new high" list include the electric utilities, some of the steels, certain construction stocks, the fiberglass makers and the better representatives from the service industries.

Thomson & McKimmon has studied the charts and has found "buoyant trend lines" in the plottings of National Cash Register, one of the few under-exploited quality issues in the office equipment group and First Charter Financial, an aggressive West Coast savings and loan and insurance organization.

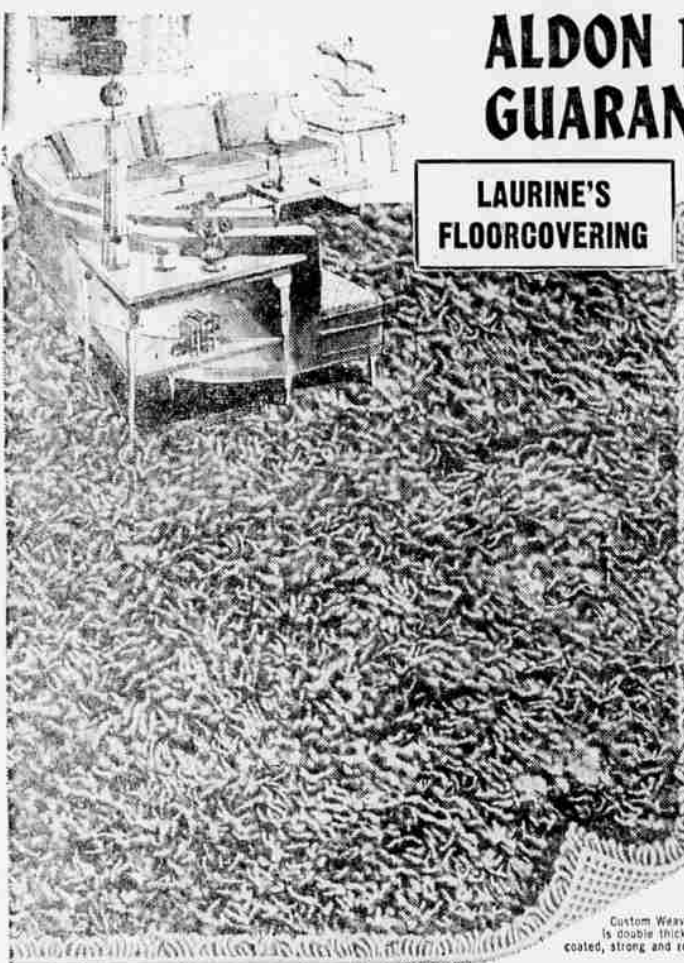

Bache & Co. notes that Continental Insurance told security analysts last week that income should reach $4-$5 a share this year with $3.60 of this amount coming from investment income. Bache says the stock looks like a good buy for income and moderate appreciation particularly since a dividend hike might follow earnings of this magnitude.
