Waterusers, EPID, Copco Legal Fight Renewed in Court

The legal battle between four water users in the Eagle Point Irrigation district and the district and the California Oregon Power company was renewed in Jackson County circuit court Monday with the filing of an amended complaint against the district and Copco by Ann Todd, one of the water users.

The other plaintiffs are Paul D. Conrad, Fritz M. Carlson and Howard F. Todd. Mrs. Todd seeks $50,000 from Copco for the district for lost revenue and damages incurred since Sept. 1, 1957, when Copco, according to the complaint, failed to complete its contract with the district, thereby preventing the district from furnishing water for irrigation purposes to approximately 900 acres of irrigable land within the district.

Americans Buried On Hill Overlooking Russian Port City

Editor's note: Following is the second of several dispatches written by UPI Moscow correspondent Alvin Mosby on the first visit of western correspondents to the Soviet Union's far north in several years.

By ALINE MOSBY
Murmansk, Russia - (UPI) - On a snow-swept hilltop overlooking this one-time famous war port lie the graves of three Americans killed while bringing supplies to the Russians during World War II.

The graves are part of an Anglo-American cemetery that citizens of Murmansk maintain in this Arctic outpost.

The other graves in the little cemetery contain the coffins of 20 Britons, including nine Indians, and three unknown victims who died so far from home.

As a remembrance from their fellow countrymen, we brought two funeral wreaths of fir branches and artificial white flowers in the city and laid them at the cemetery entrance.

There a stone marker said in Russian: "In memory of British and Americans who brought help to the Soviet Union during the great patriotic war." It was placed there four years ago when the cemetery was dedicated by military attaches from the American and British embassies in Moscow.

Some of us invaded the club uninvited. At the entrance some pretty young girls were talking to some seamen, a scene from any seaman's club. But inside, the club was unique. Two West German sailors were playing table tennis in a room whose walls were covered with charts and proclamations showing the Russians are surpassing the Americans at this or that.
