Hatfield Names Snider to Board Of Aeronautics

Salem—UPI—John W. Snider of Medford today was appointed by Gov. Mark Hatfield to the State Board of Aeronautics to succeed former Gov. Elmo Smith, Albany, who resigned.

Snider is now in his last year of office as mayor of Medford, having been elected to two terms after six years on the city council. He has indicated he will not seek reelection.

Last year he served as a member of the Oregon Centennial Commission. In addition, he is now president of the League of Oregon Cities, having succeeded to office when Loren McKinley, mayor of Tillamook, resigned to move to Portland.

Snider also is a member of the highways committee of the American Municipal association. Smith's resignation as a member of the aeronautics board was motivated by his candidacy for U.S. Senator. The aeronautics board is responsible for development of airports and air industry generally, cooperation with other agencies of government in aviation matters, providing emergency air transportation for other state agencies, receiving and expending federal funds for aviation purposes, providing engineering and technical services where needed, air safety programs and hazard removal, and supervising air search and rescue operations.

Committee Okays Big Defense Bill

Washington—UPI—The Senate Appropriations committee approved a $40 billion defense money bill today, more than a billion dollars higher than President Eisenhower ordered.

The $40,384,897,000 bill for the fiscal year starting July 1, was cleared for Senate action with a last-minute addition to speed the Air Force sky-spy SAMOS satellite. The total was $1,049,897,000 more than Eisenhower requested in his original budget, which the administration later trimmed by $120 million. It also was $1,047,030,000 more than was approved by the House.

The bill, set at more than half the entire 1961 budget, would bolster spending for more missile power, anti-submarine defenses, Army modernization and super-sonic bombers.

Salem—UPI—A progress report on the state's pilot program for education of migrant children will be presented to the State Board of Education when it meets here for three days beginning next Monday, when the city has the money.

Fiscal Group Raps Military Department

Salem—UPI—The Oregon Military department came under fire from the Legislative Fiscal committee today for remodeling a building at Portland Air base into a headquarters building for the 41st Infantry division. The committee charged that the remodeling job had not been authorized.

There was testimony that between $37,000 and $39,000 had been spent on the project but the project had not been authorized by the 1959 legislature nor by the state department of finance and administration.

The committee said the military department took the funds earmarked for maintenance and used it to remodel the structure.

State Fiscal Officer Kenneth Bragg said that the state finance department probably wouldn't have approved the remodeling work because of elaborate decor involved. Included was a 370-foot office space for the commanding general.

Several committee members said some sort of law should be written to prevent a recurrence in the future but Oregon Senate President Walter Pearson (D-Portland) disagreed. He said the incident falls under the administration of Gov. Mark Hatfield and "he should straighten it out."

Lt. Col. L. M. Blaisdell of Salem, military department fiscal officer, said procedures used in the past were followed. He explained that National Guard employees are now doing maintenance work formerly done by contractors and this resulted in a saving and the remodeling job went ahead.

Question by Duncan House Speaker Robert Duncan (D-Medford) asked how much the state is spending on remodeling of the home of the adjutant general at Camp Withycombe and Blaisdell said he didn't know but that most of it is being put up by Gen. Alfred Hintz himself.

Blaisdell was ordered to come up with exact figures and report to the committee at its next meeting.

Three Appear in Circuit Court

Imposition of sentence was suspended for three years for three men appearing in Jackson county circuit court this morning.

Junior Lee Hammond, 22, of route 2, box 605, Central Point, and Paul James Stewart, 18, of 19 Jeanette st., Medford, both received suspended imposition of sentences for three years for burglary not in a dwelling.

They were charged with entering the Olympic Petroleum and Equipment company, Inc., 1050 South Riverside ave., May 5.

Imposition of sentence was suspended for three years on Theron Russell Walters, 38, of 10 East Clark st., Medford, for obtaining money under false pretenses. He was charged with issuing a false check for $25 April 11.

All three men had pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge James M. Main.

National Guard Leaves for Camp

Forty-four members of Company E, Second Battle Group, 186th Infantry, Medford's Oregon National Guard unit, left this morning in a seven-truck convoy for summer encampment at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

An eight-truck advance convoy left the armory earlier this week. A total of 87 local men are participating. Other units are joining along the way.

First Lt. Lyle R. Brown is convoy commander for the entire Battle Group.

Unit officials report that the encampment will run two weeks, with the troops returning to Medford Saturday, June 25. The units will arrive at the Fort Saturday about 3 p.m.

First Lt. Donald M. Ivie, unit commander, said the training and testing at camp will be evaluated by Sixth Army officers, and will be graded on the same basis as regular Army troops. The unit last year received a rating of excellent.

Training this year will be at squad and section level, and if considered qualified, they will train at platoon level next year.

TRAPPED BY MOB—Secret Service guards Arthur II are trapped inside for an hour try to keep the crowd away from Press Secretary James H. Hagerty's limousine at Tokyo International airport today as Hagerty and U.S. Ambassador Douglas Mac-

Helicopter Saves Press Secretary, U.S. Ambassador

Fanatic Leftists Curse Eisenhower

Tokyo—UPI—Thousands of screaming, fanatical leftists mobbed Presidential Secretary James C. Hagerty today in a violent protest against President Eisenhower's forthcoming visit, but Hagerty said the trip would be carried out as planned.

The mobs trapped Hagerty, U.S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur II and White House Appointments Secretary Thomas E. Stephens in a limousine for 70 minutes until they were rescued by a Marine helicopter. The mob stoned the car and helicopter, broke windows and slashed the car's tires but did not hurt the Americans.

The frenzied mob of 5,000 shouted "G—d— Eisenhower" and "Yankee go home," as it overwhelmed the 2,000 police who rushed to the scene. An additional 15,000 demonstrators milled outside the airport trying to get to Hagerty, and additional thousands besieged the heavily guarded U.S. embassy.

Try to Topple Car Fighting broke out between police and the mob and between black-shirted rightists and the extreme left wing students who led the demonstrations. The leftists sang the Communist "Internationale" as they battered Hagerty's car and tried to turn it over.

Metropolitan police headquarters said 45 policemen were injured, none seriously, and that they believed that "many" students were injured in sporadic clashes around the Hagerty car. Four persons were arrested.

Police clubbed students with heavy truncheons and the demonstrators fought back with bamboo sticks and stones, some of which damaged the helicopter. One youth was bashed in the face as he cursed Eisenhower.

He fled, his glasses broken and blood streaming down his face. The mob seized the policeman and beat and stomped him until he was rescued. Police are helpless.

The mob—made up of members of the Jananai Zengakuro students group, the giant Sohyo Labor Union Confederation and Socialists—including a red-shirted member of Parliament—announced their move in advance. And police were helpless.

Hagerty and MacArthur sat in the car puffing cigarettes while the mob shrieked outside and cursed the U.S. and Eisenhower. Eight helicopters circled overhead until at last one made a daring landing nearby.

The mob turned its vengeance on the helicopter and showered it with rocks but Hagerty, MacArthur and Stephens, surrounded by U.S. security agents and Japanese police, made it through the mob and scrambled aboard.

Ceremonies Open New Jackson Pool

Public ceremonies this morning opened the Jackson park swimming and wading pools to the public.

Medford Mayor John Snider cut the ribbon opening the swimming pool, and Ab Gressett, vice president of the Crater Lions, cut the ribbon opening the wading pool.

Following the dedication and opening speeches, there were demonstrations of swimming instruction methods used by the city recreation department in its summer swimming program, and a water ballet by the YMCA synchronized swimming group.

Flashing Placed On Courthouse

New flashing has been placed along the perimeter of the parapet wall on the courthouse annex roof, the county court reported today. The job was finished Thursday.

Aluminum flashing on the steel frame previously used required too many calked joints and developed some leaks, the court explained.

Price for the job by Brill Metal Works, Medford, was about $600. County jail prisoners provided some of the labor, it was reported.

Paving of the county courthouse parking lot extension will be started soon, the court said. Spaces will be marked off for 11 cars. The additional space behind the courthouse was cleared earlier this year.

New York—UPI—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt Thursday night endorsed Adlai E. Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination.

POOL DEDICATED—Jackson park swimming pool was formally "open for business" at 1 p.m. this afternoon, following dedication ceremonies at 10:30 this morning. The picture above shows a team from the YMCA as they put on swimming demonstrations following the dedication speech by Mayor John Snider. Approximately 200 persons were on hand for the ceremony.

Tea Room Request Presented Planners

Mrs. Jimmy Richards appeared before the Medford city planning commission last night and made an uncheduled request for permission to operate a "tea room" at the Mall building, 1005 East Main st.

The planning commission advised Mrs. Richards that the request would necessitate a change of zone and the proper procedure for this would be to request a public hearing. Mrs. Richards indicated that she would request such a hearing.

She told the commission there is a definite need for eating facilities to serve employees who work in the numerous office buildings located in the area. The only eating facilities now available to them are on the west side she said, and to travel such a distance for lunch is an inconvenience.

The commission pointed out that this area is now zoned multiple-family which permits office buildings but not eating establishments. To permit a restaurant in this area, it would require at least a class IIIA zone it was noted.

Mrs. Richards asked the commission if it would be permissible to sell memberships in the restaurant making it a kind of club and get around the zoning regulations in this manner. Clubs are permitted in multiple-family zones.

Planning Consultant Ned Langford said that this is a possible way of getting around the zoning regulation. City Attorney Joel Reeder had a few words to say about this: "I would like to say for the record that I fail to see how something that can't be done directly can be done indirectly without an attempt from my office to prosecute."

The comment was made half in fun and everyone had a good laugh. Acting Commission Chairman Jack Edson said there is already one commercial area in town and there is beginning to be some concern over the commercial development along East Main st., even the way it is now. He added that the tea room would be a commercial development.

Commission member Don Walters added that commercial developments can change the entire complexion of a neighborhood. He noted that the commission can't let one person go in on a commercial development and not let others.

Subdivision Gets Tentative OK

The Medford city planning commission last night gave tentative approval to plans for a 30-lot subdivision to be located in northern Medford. It was the only item of business transacted.

The subdivision will be called Rogue Terrace No. 1, and will be located northeast of the intersection of Grandview and Whittle aves. Only one street will be included within the boundaries of the subdivision, Gould ave.

Developer is the Crater Land Development company. It plans to construct the street, gutters, sidewalks, curbs, water mains and sewer lines, all according to city specifications.

Before tentative approval for the Rogue Terrace subdivision could be given, the commission had to withdraw tentative approval for the Grandview Unit No. 2 subdivision planned earlier for this same area.

Planning Consultant Ned Langford pointed out to the commission that tentative approval was given the Grandview subdivision some time ago, but nothing has since been done.

The commission found it necessary to make tentative approval subject to one major condition. This is that the subdivider extend a 6-inch water main from where it now dead-ends on Grandview ave. some 375 feet to connect with the subdivision's water mains. This would be done at the subdivider's expense.

Bids on 33 projects in 21 counties totaling about $6,800,000 will be received by the Oregon highway commission in Salem until June 30, according to commission officials.

Projects in this area include the Rogue river bridge at Laurelhurst rd., and the Paul B. Rynning bridge over the south fork of the Rogue on the Butte Falls-Prospect rd. Also scheduled for opening for bids is a Medford office to be constructed north of the present state police offices. Sources have indicated it will house state police, the Public Utilities commission, and possibly the Department of motor vehicles and other state government agencies.

In Josephine county, bids will be received for the Hayes hill-Sauers flat paving job on the Redwood highway 18 miles southwest of Grants Pass. All bids will be referred to the commission for award at a meeting July 7.

OSC Program Called 'Rotten'

Washington—UPI—A key House member has charged that an Oregon State college contract designed to strengthen the teaching program at a college in Thailand is "rotten to the bone."

The attack was made recently by Chairman Otto E. Passman (D-La.) at a closed door hearing of the House Appropriations subcommittee considering the foreign aid program. The transcript was made public Thursday.

The contract was entered into Sept. 15, 1954, between Oregon State and Kasetsart university in Thailand. Oregon State agreed to help strengthen the education, research and extension program of Kasetsart, which is a new agricultural school.

The United States government has furnished $785,000 to meet costs of the operation. In addition, Thai currency equivalent to $1,865,000 has been supplied from U.S.-generated counterpart funds.

In Corvallis, Dr. A. L. Strand, president of Oregon State, defended the program and denied there was anything "rotten" about it. He said the OSC project won high praise from two investigators for the International Cooperation Administration who studied it in Thailand.

Hagerty and MacArthur sat in the car puffing cigarettes while the mob shrieked outside and cursed the U.S. and Eisenhower. Eight helicopters circled overhead until at last one made a daring landing nearby.

The mob turned its vengeance on the helicopter and showered it with rocks but Hagerty, MacArthur and Stephens, surrounded by U.S. security agents and Japanese police, made it through the mob and scrambled aboard.

Cal Ink Low Misting News Ink for MEDFORD MAIL-TRIBUNE

INK DELIVERY—As part of the recent modernization of the Mail Tribune's printing facilities, ink is no longer received by 30-gallon drum. Instead, it is delivered by tank truck direct from the California Ink company plant in Berkeley, Calif., and is stored in a 2,500-gallon ink tank in the basement of the new press building. On hand (above) when the first delivery was made Wednesday were, left to right, Arch McNeil, Cal Ink branch manager; Circulation Manager Dale Erickson; Press Foreman Dick Greene; Business Manager Gerald Latham; and Cal Ink Branch Manager C. R. Daniel. It takes an average of 200 gallons of ink to print each edition of the Mail Tribune, Latham said. The supply now on hand will last about four months.
