

Series of Live Polio Virus Doses Said Preferred

Washington - (Science Service) - A series of oral doses of live polio virus vaccines appears to be more effective than one-dose vaccines in building immunity against polio, a study in Costa Rica indicates.

Licensing of one-dose live virus vaccines for protection against all three paralytic polio types is now being sought. But Dr. Dorothy M. Horstmann of the Yale School of Medicine told the Second International Conference on Live Poliovirus Vaccines:

1. In vaccines that combine three live virus strains, one often dominates. The vaccinated person is thus not always protected against all three types of paralytic polio. (Type III strain dominates in the Cox vaccine, Type II in the Sabin.)

Most Effective Way
2. Thus, attention should be given to adjusting the amount of each type in a combination vaccine to allow for the types' varying infectiousness.

3. Until the proper combination has been worked out, the three types administered separately (perhaps with a follow-up of combination vaccine) would seem to be the most effective way to get full immunity.

With three associates, Dr. Horstmann studied vaccinated children in a village near San Jose, Costa Rica.

The international meeting here heard two reports on tests of live virus vaccines in Minnesota.

In one, the safety of the Cox live polio virus vaccine was asserted on the basis of tests of 165 volunteers at St. Cloud Reformatory.

Minnesota Families Tested
The second study, also of the Cox vaccine, was made with families of the University of Minnesota. The study showed that a live-vaccinated member of a family "infects" other members of his family with immunity to polio. The immunity spreads like a disease.

The study showed the immunity did not spread much outside the family group because of less frequent contact.

Altogether, more than half a million American have voluntarily taken live polio virus vaccines to demonstrate their effects on families and communities.

The USSR, however, has already licensed the live virus vaccine. About 50 million Russians have already taken them. This year, 30 million or 40 million more will be vaccinated.

Man Arrested on Federal Charge

Fred Lee Walters Jr., 22, of 925 North Central ave., was arrested by city police Tuesday on a charge of forgery.

Walters admitted to police that he endorsed and cashed a U. S. government check for $137.10 payable to Sylvia L. Winchell, 315 North Holly st. Reports show that the allotment check had been sent to Mrs. Winchell's former address, 210 West Third st., after she moved.

Walters told police he had moved to the West Third st. address in February and took the check from the mail box when it arrived. He admitted signing the name Sylvia L. Winchell and the name of "Robert Stone" on the back of the check when he cashed it at a local store.

The man was scheduled to be taken to Portland by a U.S. marshal.

Guilty Verdicts Returned by Jury

A district court jury Tuesday returned a verdict of guilty against Dee Stockton 40, and Kenneth Barnett, 33, charged with assault and battery.

The two Shady Cove men received suspended one-year county jail sentences. They were charged with hitting William Hoarstrich May 23.

The jury deliberated 20 minutes before bringing in its unanimous verdict.

Eagle Point Man

Bound Over in Court

Edgar Philip Cunningham, 19, Eagle Point, was bound over to the grand jury Tuesday in district court on charges of malicious injury to personal property.

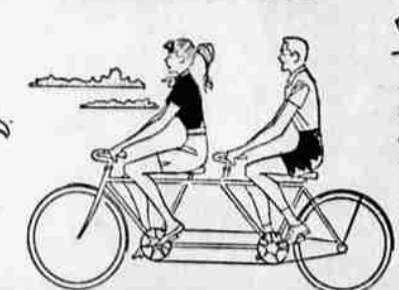

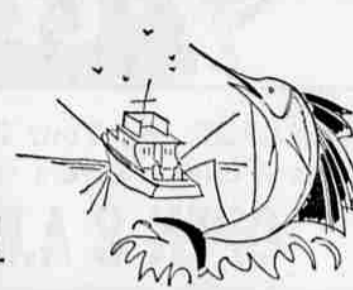

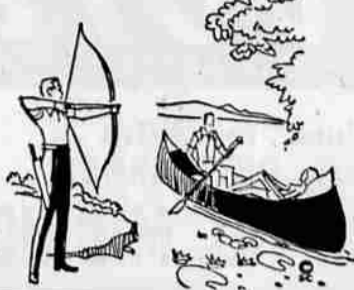

Cunningham waived right to a preliminary hearing. He was charged with prying open the door of a two-ton truck June 12. He is being held in the county jail in lieu of $500 bail.
