Parts' Lifetimes Can be Predicted

Baltimore—(Science Service)—A new method of predicting the reliability of equipment—how long parts will last before failure—has been devised by a mathematician.

The mathematical method is reported by Dr. R. F. Drenick of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N.J., in the current Journal of the Society of Industrial and Applied Mathematics published here.

Reliability of equipment receives particular attention from manufacturers of electronic devices because such equipment is complex. An obstacle to his mathematical study, Dr. Drenick found, was that the term "reliability" seems to have different meanings to different persons and sometimes different meanings to the same person in different contexts.

Dr. Drenick found a new concept of reliability that is more general than current usage, but that reduces to concepts commonly used under appropriate conditions.

Building Being Remodeled for Local Businesses

Parker Woods' Leon's and Andy's Jewelers will move from their present location on Central ave. to a new location, one half block east of Central ave. on Main st., according to Parker Woods and Alton Anderson, store owners.

Remodeling of the building which once housed the M and M department store is now under way and the two stores plan to open in their new location early in August.

The U.S. National Bank, owner of the two stores' present building is now planning to expand into part of this area and may lease the rest, according to Ray Sorenson, assistant manager.

New Store Name
Parker Woods will be the new store name for Leon's. Woods purchased the Leon's store about four years ago when the Leon's chain was breaking up.

Construction plans call for the M and M department store building to be divided into two separate shops, approximately 25 and 20 feet wide. Each will have an entrance and display windows facing the Park and Shop in the rear.

The store fronts are being done in Arizona sandstone and special blue, brown, and pink tile.

General contractor for the building is Stanley G. Parrish. Sub-contractors include Feldman and Olson Electrical Contractors, the Modern Tile company, and Padgham Glass and Millwork company.

Nez Perce Dam Opposition Heard

Portland—(UPI)—Opposition to the proposed Nez Perce dam on the Snake river between Oregon and Idaho was raised here Wednesday at a pre-hearing conference with members of the Federal Power Commission staff.

The pre-hearing conference was held to seek "areas of agreement" in testimony to be filed in September with the FPC on rival applications for major dam projects in the middle Snake river below Hells Canyon.

The opposition was raised by commercial and sports fishing organizations as well as the Oregon and Washington fish agencies.

Tom J. Jones III, Boise attorney representing Idaho at the pre-hearing, said Idaho supported the High Mountain Sheep project as the "best plan for comprehensive development."

An application was filed in March to build a 700-foot high dam at the Nez Perce site just below the Salmon river by the Washington Public Power Supply system, a public body composed of nine small Washington state public utility districts.

Clues Sought in Death of Woman

Richland, Wash.—(UPI)—Police Chief Robert Marshall Wednesday called a city detective off vacation to join five other investigators seeking clues in the stabbing death of Mrs. Milton Wight.

The Richland housewife was found stabbed 35 times at her home Monday night. Her husband, a city fire official, discovered her body after returning home from a baseball game, police said.

Two AWOL soldiers from Fort Lewis have been cleared of suspicion after questioning at Walla Walla.

Miss Taylor on Way to Europe

INSTRUCTOR—An instructor in surgery, Cornell medical school, Dr. Stuart H. Q. Quan, New York city, will be a guest speaker at the John Tomlin Memorial Cancer lectures at the Rogue Valley Country club June 24 and 25. He is also assistant attending surgeon, colon and rectum service, Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases. The two-day session here has been prepared for southern Oregon and northern California physicians and surgeons. Subject of the lectures will be tumors of the colon with emphasis on their diagnosis and treatment.

Miss Taylor on Way to Europe

Montreal, Quebec—DeAnne Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeVere Taylor, 1011 Winchester ave., Medford, left here recently aboard the M.S. Seven Seas en route to Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

Miss Taylor is participating in the American Field service summer-exchange program and is going to Berlin, Germany.

The Oregon youth, along with other AFS constituents from throughout the U.S., will arrive in Rotterdam June 18, and is scheduled to travel by train to Frankfurt, Germany. She may fly to Berlin.

No date has been set for her Berlin arrival. Miss Taylor left Medford June 3 and travelled by train from Portland to Chicago, Washington, and New York. The AFS delegation did considerable sight-seeing en route.

Interment Group To Meet in City

The Oregon Interment association, an organization of Oregon cemetery owners and managers, will meet this week end at Siskiyou Memorial park, Medford.

Speakers for the event will include Joe Hosick, Siskiyou Funeral Service, Medford; Mrs. Geraldine Derby, director of public assistance, state public welfare commission; Jack Ollershaw, Rose City Cemetery and Mausoleum, Portland; and Paul Lessenger, Willamette Memorial Gardens mausoleum, Albany.

The speakers will discuss present legislation and sales of mausoleum crypts.

The group plans a Saturday afternoon session at Siskiyou Memorial park, dinner at the Rogue Valley Country club, and Sunday morning breakfast and business sessions at the Medford hotel.

Dr. R. P. Mortensen of Siskiyou Memorial park is a member of the association's board of directors.

Houston, Tex.—(UPI)—Two elderly widows, Mrs. Ann L. Blasing, 64, and Mrs. Irene West, 65, frightened a burglar so much with their screams Wednesday he dived through a closed bedroom window to escape.

Woodburn Merchant Pleads Guilty To Charges of Fraud

Portland—(UPI)—A young Woodburn store owner pleaded guilty Wednesday to two mail fraud counts which postal inspectors said involved correspondence which netted from $50 to $75 per day on merchandise coupons.

Shirley Ann Schneider, 22, owner of Shirley's market, waived grand jury indictment and pleaded guilty to two counts of "devising a scheme to defraud General Mills, Inc., Minneapolis, and others to obtain money and property by means of false and fraudulent pretenses."

Investigation Ordered
Federal Judge William East ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Maximum sentence on each count could be $1,000 fine and five years in prison.

Postal inspectors said the scheme worked like this: Coupons and the top layer of cardboard from box tops and bottoms were stripped from merchandise in the store and sent in for redemption to fictitious names at any of six postal boxes in Gervais, Woodburn, Aurora, Hubbard, Oregon City and Canby, plus the home address. They said some 1,500 names were used.

Many firms offer money redemptions for a particular box top or the section with the store price stamp on it. Postal inspectors added that some firms even re-deemed when no coupon or box top was inclosed and that in some cases boxes were cut up into many pieces and stamped.

Company Curious
Authorities estimated that from $50 to $75 was obtained daily from before May 9, 1959, until Jan. 6, 1960. They said one company wondered why the grocery store was sending in so many coupons and that postal authorities began an investigation. The Schneiders gained attention in 1958 and 1959 when Shirley Ann's sister, Sharyn Jean, was ordered by Circuit Court Judge Joseph B. Felton of Marion county to attend school.
