

QUIPS AND QUOTES

Discipline and Dad

Whenever Junior misbehaves,
My wife, a thrifty woman, saves
The punishment till I return
From work, whereon, with grave concern,
She tells me whatsoever bad
Was done by Junior, naughty lad,
And says, "Now speak to him!" And so,
When we're alone, I say . . . "Hello."

—Richard Armour

The sturdy youngster came home with bloodied nose and blackened eye. "How did it happen, son?" his father asked sternly.

"That Willy down the street doesn't fight fair," the boy sobbed. "I challenged him to a fight and gave him his choice of weapons."

"And what did he do that was unfair?"

"He chose his sister!"

—Ernest Blevins

Every moment of his life had been devoted to making money. Now he was going to enjoy his riches if it killed him. He joined the most expensive country club, had his togs custom-made in Scotland, and ordered all his golf balls hand-engraved.

His first shot off the No. 1 tee, however, went wildly into the rough. "Which club will you take now?" the caddy asked skeptically.

The rich man surveyed the rough, then his bag. "Caddy," he snapped brusquely, "hand me that $35.50 club!"

—Dan Bennett

No wonder they started manufacturing compact cars—they were running out of parking spaces around the finance companies!
