FLOPS ARE COSTLY - New York - (UPI) - The 49 of the 62 plays that flopped on Broadway during the 1959-60 season fell short by some $3.5 million of recouping the $9.7 million backers invested in them, according to the League of New York Theatres.

BOUNCE-O-RUE - Jancie Nash, 10, learns the easy way that everything that goes up must also come down. Janice was one of the first to try out the new Bounce-O-Rue on North Riverside ave. when it opened Saturday noon. Motorists watching Janice and other first-day customers trying out the ten pit trampolines caused some traffic congestion. Signers of the company's incorporation papers were Ray Jinks, John North, and Medford attorney Phillip B. Lowry.

Grain, Forage Crop Outlook Said Good; Fruit Hurt

Corvallis - The outlook remains good for Oregon grain and forage crops, but production of major fruit crops in the state may be down a little from previous years, reports Mrs. Elvera Horrell, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State college.

Wheat production in Oregon should stay at about the same level as last year, a little above average, Mrs. Horrell found as she studied reports from the U. S. department of agriculture. Failed seedlings have done well in this area with May rains east of the Cascades coming at just the right time for good growth.

In western Oregon, damage from virus diseases that plagued grains last year seems to be less this spring. However, spring-sown crops got off to a slow start, because of rainy weather, and are lagging behind those of last year.

Hay crops in the state are looking better this year than last, but are still below average for this time of year, Mrs. Horrell noted. Pastures are also in better condition than a year ago, and better than average.

Fruit Harvest Hit - Fruit crops were among those hardest hit by spring rains, Mrs. Horrell said. Lack of good weather for pollination and some below-freezing temperatures cut prospects for most Oregon tree fruit and nut crops.

Oregon's vegetable processing crops were also slowed by the cold, wet weather this spring. As of June 1, much of the snapbean and sweet corn acreage in the state still had to be planted. The cool weather also slowed down development of green peas in eastern Oregon, where much of this crop is grown.

Nationally, June 1 crop prospects showed wheat production expected to top the billion bushel mark again. Corn and soybean plantings were lagging, however, as rain continued to hamper field work. And forage crop prospects were more favorable in northern sections than in the South or West.

National fruit production may fall behind that of last year, Mrs. Horrell added. And the acreage of vegetables planted for commercial processing is lower than last year. There may also be fewer fresh vegetables on this year's markets.

Kennedy's Backers Undaunted by Move

Los Angeles (UPI) - Sen. John F. Kennedy's convention headquarters said today that Sen. Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson's formal announcement changes nothing, and that Kennedy will win the Democratic presidential nomination.

Johnson's headquarters in this city where the Democratic national convention opens next Monday, disagreed and said he would gain delegate votes.

"This removes any doubt any delegate may have had as to his being a serious contender for the nomination," said John B. Connolly, director of the Johnson headquarters.

FARM NOTES

Washington (UPI) - The agriculture department has set wool incentive payments to producers for their 1959 crop at 43.2 per cent of the dollar returns they received from sale of the fiber on the open market.

This means that for every $100 worth of wool a producer sold on the open market, he would receive an additional $43.20 from the government.

For the 1958 wool crop, producers received $70.30 in payments for each $100 of wool sold.

The incentive payment program is designed to encourage domestic production of up to 300,000,000 pounds of shorn wool. Shorn wool production in the United States last year totaled 257,200,000 pounds. The incentive payments are made from funds obtained from tariff duties on imported wool.

The incentive payments are set to bring returns from wool to a national average of 62 cents a pound. Prices received at the market in the 1959 marketing year - April, 1959, through March, 1960 - averaged 43.3 cents per pound. This was 19 per cent above a year earlier.

There will be no payments on mohair this year because producer prices averaged 96.4 cents a pound, considerably above the 70-cent incentive level.

Synthetic fibers in one year accounted for more than one of every five pounds of textile fibers used in the United States, a new high mark.

DAMAGED SIGNS - David Chilles, state highway department sign shop superintendent, shows typical cases of sign vandalism that costs the state $50,000 per year for replacement. Signs are defaced with paint, by burning, and by gunshot. Sign in center has been twisted out of shape, a difficult task requiring a great deal of labor, Chilles noted. Normal life of a highway sign is 5 to 8 years, and under usual conditions, signs require little maintenance.

Sign Damage Costs State $50,000 Each Year, Williams Says

Salem - Highway hooligans are costing the people of Oregon one mile of average four-lane rural freeway each year, according to W. C. Williams, state highway engineer.

"Vandalism of highway signs cost the state $50,000 a year for the material and labor required to repair and replace the damaged units," Williams said. "This amount would provide the state funds necessary to match the Federal money used to build one mile of freeway."

The destruction of highway signs has reached alarming proportions, Williams pointed out. Vandalism not only costs the public in terms of money but in service as well. Without guiding signs, travel would be confused and ineffective. "Every sign," he said, "gives vital information, and its destruction might lead to a serious or possible fatal accident."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN? - Dayton, Ohio - (UPI) - Frigidair division of General Motors reported it received an unexpected request to borrow its sales motivation film entitled, "Man Wanted - Alive." Fireworks Blamed For 32-Acre Fire

Olympia, Wash. - (UPI) - Fireworks were responsible for a 32-acre fire near Kiklicki Saturday, state Land Commissioner Bert Cole said Tuesday.

Cole reported a total of 33 fires over the week end. The fires burned over 45.7 acres of lands protected by the State Department of Natural Resources.

All were out or under control today, Cole said.

LABOR COSTS HIGH - New York - (UPI) - Labor receives almost as much of the consumer's food dollar as the farmer, according to the Staple Cotton Review.

The publication said of the $57,700,000,000 Americans spent for food in 1958, the farmer received $20,800,000,000, labor got $17,500,000,000 and the rest went for processing, transportation, taxes and other costs.

'Bloody July 5th' Violence Observed

Portland (UPI) - Striking newspaper workers today joined longshoremen in the traditional observance of "Bloody July 5th."

Traditionally longshoremen march to the sea wall near the Battleship Oregon monument and drop a wreath of flowers into the river to commemorate waterfront violence here 26 years ago.

Start of today's ceremony was delayed about 20 minutes as longshoremen waiting to be joined by the striking newspaper workers. About 1,500 persons took part.

The newspaper workers marched in front of the Oregonian and Journal buildings before the ceremony. Afterwards about 100 newspaper craftsmen, wives and children paraded past the front of the Journal building.

Search Continues For Seattle Yawl

Seattle (UPI) - The Coast Guard today resumed its search for the 34-foot yawl Opportunity, out of Seattle, which messaged for assistance Sunday.

The craft reported at 5:50 p.m. it was 16 miles from Cape Blanco and was unable to make any headway. The Coast Guard said poor weather conditions off the Oregon coast hampered the search Sunday.

The Coast Guard said three men were aboard the vessel. They were identified as Charles McCuddin, operator of the craft, of Opportunity, and Red Sweigle and James Watson, who also share ownership of the boat.

Sweigle's and Watson's home addresses were not immediately available.
