

Summer Happenings

Summertime means outdoor parties, travelers and visitors and July in the Rogue valley is no exception. Among the recent outdoor parties was one July 1 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bash, 1325 Bundy street, which honored their son Frank N. Bash, and his fiancée, Miss Susan Fay, Winchester, Mass. The couple plan a September wedding in Winchester. Miss Fay is a daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Walcott Fay, Winchester, Mass. She attended Mt. Holyoke college and Ohio university. Mr. Bash has been in Cambridge, Mass., where he holds a teaching fellowship at Harvard university.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Bash pause at the punch table in the patio to talk with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Donahue during the reception which honored the Bashes' son and fiancée July 1. Spring flowers from the Bashes' garden decorated the two serving tables which held the punch and hors d'oeuvres for the event attended by about 75 friends. Thomas H. Ness and John K. Ness, brothers of Mrs. Bash, presided at the punch bowls and assisting at the hors d'oeuvre table were Mrs. Charles W. Wakefield, sister of Mrs. Bash and Mrs. J. K. Ness. Mrs. Bash, who has been active in valley social, civic, and political affairs, was recently appointed to the state public welfare commission by Gov. Mark O. Hatfield.

Assisting at the party July 1 which honored Frank N. Bash and his fiancée, Miss Susan Fay, Winchester, Mass., were (left to right) Miss Rosiland Randles and the Misses Jane and Judy Bash, sisters of the honored man. Miss Randles, a 1960 graduate of Medford High school, plans to enter the University of Oregon this fall. Miss Jane Bash will return to the University of Arizona in Tucson this fall and Miss Judy Bash, also a 1960 Medford High school class member, will attend Oregon State college.

Mrs. C. B. Francis chats with Miss Susan Fay, fiancée of Frank N. Bash during a party which honored the couple at the F. C. Bash home July 1. The couple returned East last Sunday where Miss Fay is working for Dr. Lilley of the Harvard observatory and Mr. Bash holds a teaching fellowship at Harvard university. He is working toward a doctorate in astronomy.

Mrs. Richard L. Stratton, president of the Rogue Valley alumnae chapter of Delta Gamma sorority is shown at the Stanley hotel in Estes Park, Colo., where she recently attended the biennial Delta Gamma convention. The local chapter received its charter in December, 1958, and has members from Grants Pass, Medford, Ashland, Eagle Point and Central Point.

Mrs. Nan Tucker McEvoy, San Francisco and Washington, D. C., visited earlier this month at the Tucker ranch on the Rogue river. With her were her mother, Mrs. Nion Tucker, San Francisco, and her son, Nion. The family spends each summer at the ranch, but for the next several weeks Mrs. McEvoy will be in Los Angeles and Chicago covering the Democratic and Republican conventions for the San Francisco Chronicle. Mrs. McEvoy, formerly on the newspaper's staff, worked in the Stevenson headquarters in Washington, D.C. during the 1956 campaign.
