

Star's Distance, Age Revealed By New Method

Washington—(Science Service)—If stars were like many women in hiding their ages, they would have to hide from earthly telescopes, so ancient are they.

However, they cannot now hide their years because Dr. Bengt Stromgren of the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N. J., has developed a new method for finding the ages and distances of stars.

It can be applied to hundreds of thousands of stars using telescopes no larger than the 36-inch reflector now in operation at the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona.

New information From such observations will come much new information on the precise shape and composition of the Milky Way galaxy in which the sun and its planets are located. By applying the new method, astronomers should also learn about the arrangement in space of stars of varying sizes and physical characteristics.

There is also the possibility, using the 200-inch telescope atop Mt. Palomar and the 120-inch at Mt. Hamilton, Calif., of investigating the physical similarities and differences of stars in the Milky Way galaxy compared to stars in other nearby galaxies.

These are the predictions made here by Dr. W. W. Morgan, director of the University of Chicago's Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis., in the journal Science (July 8).

To Learn Characteristics Dr. Morgan also predicted that the characteristics of the average stellar population for galaxies far beyond the Milky Way would be determined from studies of their shapes. Galaxies are clusters of countless millions of stars, such as the Milky Way, and there are unnumbered millions of galaxies.

The new method by which a star's age and distance are found depends on a precise measurement of a star's radiation within certain narrow, especially selected regions of the rainbow-hued spectrum of light. From these measurements, Dr. Stromgren can determine the true brightness, or candle power, of the star. From its luminosity, its age can be determined.

Grange News

Eagle Point Grange
The Eagle Point Grange met July 5 with one guest, Roscoe Roberts, Grange insurance agent, present, who gave a short talk on what happened in insurance at the recent State Grange convention.

C. C. Hoover gave reports on agriculture and community services.

Mrs. Jim Edge spoke on the Grange festival scheduled Saturday, July 30, at the Elks picnic ground and she urged all members to get tickets soon to facilitate purchasing food for the event.

Quarterly reports were heard from the lecturer, secretary and home economics chairman.

Mrs. Jake Brown reported on the HEZ meeting held at her home June 29. It was a potluck picnic, and about 20 women attended. On display were new stainless steel knives, forks and spoons purchased for the Grange kitchen. It was reported that Mrs. Ross Cline is on an extended visit in the east. She left two weeks ago by plane for Ohio, and would enjoy hearing from friends. She may be contacted at 103 East Pearl st., Wapakoneta, Ohio, in care of Mrs. Dorothy Anderson.

The lecturer's program consisted of slides and a talk on lemings and termite control given by Woody Woodard of Medford.

The next Grange visitation will be at Upper Regine Grange Thursday, July 21. Grange members were reminded that the next meeting to be held July 19 is to be a social meeting with the lecturer planning the entertainment for the evening.

Refreshments were served following the meeting by the Hicksons and the Hoffmans.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE
Statesville, N.C.—(AP)—Lane Ellis Hoke was fined $100, given a suspended four-month sentence and barred from operating a motor boat for a year Wednesday after his conviction of operating a speed boat while intoxicated.

Democrats Bet Religious Issue Sharply Declined

By LOUIS CASSELL
Los Angeles (AP)—The Democratic party, in nominating a Catholic for president, is betting that religious prejudice has declined sharply in the United States since Al Smith lost in 1928.

It also is taking cognizance of the fact that Catholics now constitute nearly 25 per cent of the U.S. population, compared with only 10 per cent in 1928.

Democratic politicians have no illusion that anti-Catholicism has disappeared from America. But they can see hard political facts to buttress their belief that it has notably diminished. In recent years Catholics have been elected as governor or senator in many predominantly non-Catholic states, including California, Ohio, Michigan, Maine and Minnesota.

Sen. John F. Kennedy himself demonstrated in his Virginia primary victory that a Catholic can roll up a big majority in a state where Catholics constitute less than 5 per cent of the population.

Certain campaign issues have no illusion that anti-Catholicism has disappeared from America. But they can see hard political facts to buttress their belief that it has notably diminished. In recent years Catholics have been elected as governor or senator in many predominantly non-Catholic states, including California, Ohio, Michigan, Maine and Minnesota.

Sen. John F. Kennedy himself demonstrated in his Virginia primary victory that a Catholic can roll up a big majority in a state where Catholics constitute less than 5 per cent of the population.

It would be naive to think that the religious issue will be kept out of the coming election campaign. Any Republican politician who wants to remind the voters that Kennedy is a Catholic can do so by making a routine speech against any candidate "because of his faith."

Some of Kennedy's Democratic foes demonstrated the formula repeatedly during the battle over the presidential nomination.

It also would be naive to doubt that Kennedy will lose some normally Democratic votes simply because he is a Catholic. In heavily Protestant areas like the Deep South, where suspicion of the Catholic church is a deeply ingrained historical heritage, he may lose a great many votes.

But Kennedy's strategists are convinced that these losses will be more than offset by the votes which he expects to pick up in his pivotal eastern states, from Catholics who have not been willing to vote Democratic in recent elections.

Important Catholic Vote
Many Catholics resent any suggestion that there is a "Catholic vote" which will be automatically attracted to Kennedy. But Kennedy's own lieutenants made this argument and furnished impressive documentation for it in a memorandum distributed at the time Kennedy was seeking the vice presidential nomination in 1956.

This memorandum said voter surveys show that "there is, or can be, such a thing as a 'Catholic vote,' whereby a high proportion of Catholics of all ages, residences, occupations and economic status vote for a well-known Catholic candidate or a ticket with special Catholic appeal."

It also said that "the Catholic vote is far more important than its numbers" because it is heavily concentrated in "the pivotal states with huge electoral votes."

Specifically, there are 13 states, with a total of 185 electoral votes, in which Catholics constitute more than 30 per cent of the total population. Only 270 electoral votes are needed to elect a President.

Talent Chicks Poultry
The ninth meeting of the Talent Chicks 4-H Poultry club was held July 5 from 4 to 8:30 p.m. The club toured each member's chicken barns to see their chickens and pick out enough birds to have three judging classes at the Talent pre-fair. Following the tour, Mrs. Teggs served hot dogs and lemonade. We played croquet until it was dark.

No date has been selected as yet for our next meeting.

Marion County Judge To Leave Hospital
Salem (AP)—Marion County Judge Rex Hartley, 59, was to be released from a Salem hospital today after several weeks of rest and observation.

He entered the hospital last month after suffering severe chest pains. Medical authorities said he was tested but no heart condition was found. The judge will continue to recuperate at home for an indeterminate period.
