Medicine Keeps Young Girl Alive

Philadelphia (UPI) - Kammy McGrath owes her normalcy to a brownish powder that doesn't smell or taste very good.

It has been the mainstay of the three-year old's diet ever since she was five weeks old.

Kammy of Denver, Colo., suffered from an uncommon disease - phenylketonuria, known as PKU. The disorder appears in one to two per cent of all babies born in the United States.

PKU prevents the body from metabolizing one of the amino acids. Thus, the supply of acid accumulates in the blood, apparently exerting a toxic effect on the brain.

Some children with PKU become mentally retarded, medical scientists have found.

Kammy has an older sister, Sheila, who also suffers from PKU. But it wasn't diagnosed in time. Sheila is in a state home for retarded children.

Having been warned by their experience with Sheila, Kammy's parents, Richard and Mary Catharine McGrath, and Kammy's doctor were ready. By the third day of Kammy's life the warning signs began to appear.

When Kammy was five weeks old she began taking the brownish powder. Called Ketonin, the powder is produced by Merck Sharp & Dohme. It was developed by Dr. E. E. Howe of the chemical firm and his research associates. The medicine is fed to Kammy in a number of ways. She must consume one pound of it weekly.

Her mother sometimes adds oil of peppermint to it, sometimes she makes a dough, and fries or bakes the patties, and sometimes she mixes it into a jelly roll topped with a few nuts.

The big question in the McGrath house now is how long must Kammy continue to take the brown powder.

Dr. Charles W. Streamer, of the University of Colorado Medical school, said he does not know although there is some evidence that Kammy can abandon the medicine when she is about five years old. On the other hand, Dr. Streamer said some experts "feel the diet must be continued for life." The medicine costs $25 a pound.

Crisp Curtains
If your curtains look limp on hot, humid days a little starch will make them look crisp. Keep the starch fairly thin and place several bath towels in the clothes dryer drum with the curtains. The towels will absorb the excess starch. Remove the curtains when damp-dry and place in a plastic bag until ironing time.

Bridge Units Announce Event July 16

Saturday, July 16, the Medford American Contract Bridge League unit will hold what is known as a "winner's game."

Special requirements are necessary to play in the tournament, it was announced. Winner's games will occur bi-monthly on the third Saturday night of each month and is under the auspices of the Medford, Grants Pass and Camp White units.

During the regular session of the Medford Duplicate club July 12, four women from Klamath Falls participated. They were Mrs. Grace Kresse, Mrs. L. Robertson, Mrs. A. Gobel and Mrs. O. W. Smith. Mrs. Robert H. King, Klamath Falls, is a new player. Thirteen tables participated in the session.

Top scores in the north-south position were won by Mrs. Kresse and Mrs. Robertson, 161 1/2; Mrs. William Knope and Mrs. Robert Elliott, second, 159 1/2; Mrs. Dolph Phillips and Roy Pruitt, third, 159; and Mr. and Mrs. George Rose, fourth, 156.

High scores were won in the east-west position by Mrs. Gobel and Mrs. Smith, 174 1/2; Mrs. Leland Clark and John Shortridge, second, 150; Mrs. Sam Van Dyke and Mrs. Glen Harrison, third, 149 1/2; and Mrs. H. J. Boyd and Mrs. Sam Richardson, fourth, 138 1/2.

Dinner Honors Mrs. Palmerton

Both are members of Southern Oregon Artists' Society of which Mrs. Andrews is a past president.

Women Credited With Increase in Colognes

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York-If the world smells better in spite of smog and exhaust fumes, credit the improvement to the ingenuity of females.

Women are using colognes not only to scent themselves but to smell up the whole house. Everything from bureau drawers to the washing machine are getting the push-button treatment.

So reports a woman executive who literally is surrounded by colognes and perfumes. Mrs. Ethel Walsh, a resident of Southport, Conn., is vice-president of Aerosol Techniques, Inc., of Bridgeport, Conn. As far as she can determine, she is the only woman of executive caliber in a multi-million dollar industry.

Packages Products
Her company doesn't make scents; it just packages the products of a dozen or more other companies, most of them in the cosmetics field, a few in the household or pharmaceutical categories.

"It is fantastic what aerosol packaging has done for cologne sales," said Mrs. Walsh. The Toilet Goods association (TGA) agreed that the aerosol has helped push sales of perfume and cologne to an all-time high of $120 million retail annually. But S. L. Mayham, TGA executive vice-president, didn't use the term "fantastic."

Talent Women To Attend School

Talent-Three Talent women will attend the School of Missions held at Camp Magruder near Tillamook Sunday, July 17 through July 22. Representing the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Talent Methodist church will be Mrs. Ernest Bell, Mrs. Mattie Bartol and Mrs. Donna Williams.

The purpose of the school is to train leaders for missionary studies, enabling those attending to return to their churches prepared to lead in missionary studies.

Candy's Universal
New York (UPI) - In America today, there are hundreds of thousands of persons at sweet work-making candy. The ingredients which go into modern day candy come from 29 countries.

ing has boasted sales substantially," he said. "Principally in the cologne field."

"Aerosol has taken cologne out of the gift item class," said Mrs. Walsh, during a business trip to New York. "And we've found they're making some amazing uses of it."

Prevents Musty Odor
Some women have returned to the Victorian custom of scenting personal stationery. They use it to scent linen closets or bureau drawers, to spray the inside of a laundry machine after use to prevent any stale or musty odor, to add a dash of scent to rinse water for lingerie, even give odor to artificial flower arrangements. One woman reported spraying a dash of cologne on undergarments as they hung on a line to dry.

Mrs. Walsh, a divorcee and mother of two teen-agers, has been in the aerosol field since its beginnings immediately after World War II. She said that the push-button spray technique was developed during the war for Uncle Sam, who wanted an easy method of applying insecticide.
