Russia to Build 70 Factory Ships for Fishing Operation

By A. ROBERT SMITH
Mail Tribune Washington Correspondent

San Francisco (Special) Soviet Russia has contracted for the construction of 70 factory ships to expand greatly its commercial fishing operations throughout the world, including the rich fisheries off the Pacific coast of North America.

A Robt Smith

This information has been reported by a United Nations official, Jan-Olaf Traung of Sweden, an expert in design of fishing vessels who is attached to the UN's Food and Agriculture Organization.

These 70 new fish factory vessels will be built in Poland and East Germany at an estimated cost of $3 million each, he reported.

Russia already has 20 of these factory ships in operation. They have been built since 1955 in West Germany.

Poland in Business

Poland is also going into the floating factory operation by building 20 of these vessels for its own use, the UN official disclosed.

The Russian ships will be 279-feet in length and have a speed of 12 knots. They will be stern-chute factory trawlers capable of operating in rough weather. They will make use of modern mechanization for catching and processing fish, as well as new devices for locating them.

Modification from earlier designs are reported to permit up to 10-ton catches to be hauled up through the stern chute without damage to the fish.

Confirms Information

A Soviet UN official confirmed this information and said these new vessels will have a productive capacity per day that will be 63 per cent higher than earlier models, while productive costs will be cut 18 per cent.

Facilities will permit these ships to roam the oceans for three months at a time before returning home. Such operations as gutting, producing fish meal or frozen fillets, or extracting liver oil will be performed aboard, and the bulk of the catch will be delivered at the market port in bulk or frozen rather than canned.

Japan is still considered the world leader in this field, using factory ships for salmon in the Pacific and for whaling in the Antarctic. The largest of the Japanese refrigerated factory ships is 460 feet long, but there are reports of larger ones in the offing.

It would be economically feasible for industrialized nations to construct vessels of this type in such dimensions, Traung explained. They are appropriate only for nations with plentiful labor at low wages. They are most useful, also, to countries which fish far from home ports.

Holds Wide Lead

The latest comparative figures on fishing production of these three world leaders show Japan with a wide lead, but with Russia close behind the United States for second highest.

Japan's total fish catch in 1958 came to 5,505,000 metric tons. The American catch was 2,671,400 tons, and the Soviet catch was 2,621,000 tons.

Communist China reported greatly increased fish production–jumping from 2.9 million to 6 million tons from 1957 to 1958. But these figures have not been confirmed for accuracy.

Russian factory ships have not only been operating off Alaska recently, but off the Newfoundland coast and in the Indian Ocean–an indication of the worldwide sphere of Russian fishing plans.

Ex-Medford Student To Receive Degree

Portland – Richard Arnold, formerly of 1011 Reddy ave., Medford, will be among the 40 candidates who will receive degrees at Lewis and Clark college's summer commencement. The exercises will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Aug. 12, in Copeland chapel on campus.

Though most of the candidates are from Portland, one comes from Honolulu and another from Lapwai, Ida. Two-thirds of the students are married and their ages range from 21 to 57.

Arnold will receive a bachelor of science degree in music.

Cop's Career Was Cut Short

McAlester, Okla. – Leon Palmarchuck holds the record for being on the police department payroll the shortest time of any man.

He was a policeman only eight hours. He was dismissed when it was learned he hadn't been a McAlester resident for one year.
