The aircraft would be powered by direct-air-cycle nuclear engines mounted in the tail of the fuselage, plus two conventional jet engines mounted beneath the wings. (UPI Telephoto)

Backstairs: Denver, Once Spot, Now Frustrates Him Ike's Favorite Vacation

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International
Denver —(UPI)—This used to be one of President Eisenhower's favorite vacation spots. Now he finds it sort of frustrating.

The one thing he simply hadn't been able to find around here is a sea-level golf course.

It was here, at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ellvera Doud, on Lafayette st., that Ike suffered a serious heart attack in 1955.

Since then, he comes to the mile-high city only on short visits. One reason is that his doctor, Howard Snyder, takes a cautious approach to exercise at high altitude by the country's number one former heart patient.

Ike's favorite sport is golf. He has been playing daily at Newport, R. I., where he and Mamie have been vacationing for the past couple of weeks. He also likes to fish.

Doc Snyder for a year or so after Ike's recovery didn't want him to come back to Denver at all. Later he eased the ban provided the President agreed not to attempt any strenuous sport.

That has tended to rule out most of Ike's vacation fun. Cherry Hills Country club, his favorite course here, is a hilly layout that he usually played by electric cart even before he had his attack. His favorite fishing spot is at Fraser, Colo., which is some 4,000 feet higher than Denver.

Oh well, Doc Snyder has nothing at all against bridge, at any altitude.

The President and Mamie used to stay while here in the house with Mrs. Doud. Now she is seriously ill — that's why they are back — and they stay at the Brown Palace hotel.

This is a big, ornate, opulent establishment reminiscent of the old West at its finest. If Ike and Mamie can be said to lack for any attention here it probably is the salutes and parades and retreats and flag raising. And other such military manifestations that have punctuated their stay at Newport.

At the Naval base there, where Eisenhower has been attending to White House chores, they don't just hoist the flag in the morning. They turn out the band, march it over the hill past Ike's office, and stand the whole place at attention during the playing of The Star Spangled Banner.

The other morning the bandmen figured to live in things up. They paraded past the summer White House with a presentably hot rendition of "When The Saints Go Marching In."

Nobody had told them, apparently, that Ike can't do much for jazz. He's more the Lawrence Welk type.

TIRED PAINTER—Will Martin, 30, a Portland architectural designer, looks more than a little tired after a 72-hour painting fact that lack of sleep had on the artist "artathon" at the Shadows club in Portland, and his work. He began painting at 9 p.m. last Friday and finished his last canvas at 9 p.m. Monday. A team of psychologists measured the effects that lack of sleep had on the artist. (UPI Telephoto)

Hatfield Predicts Oregon GOP Sweep

Chicago —(UPI)—Gov. Mark Hatfield predicted Thursday night the Nixon-Lodge ticket will carry Republicans to victory at all levels in Oregon next November.

Hatfield, who tried to get New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller on the ticket as Richard M. Nixon's running mate, said he thought nomination of Henry Cabot Lodge

Chicago — Vice President Nixon, recalling the answer given by Abraham Lincoln when asked if he thought God was on his side:
"My concern is not whether God is on our side but whether we are on God's side."

Washington — Capital Airlines Board Chairman Thomas D. Neelands Jr., explaining Capital's planned merger with United Airlines:
"We couldn't raise the money to pay off Vickers airplane manufacturers or buy new planes. This was the only solution."

Dallas, Tex. — Truckdriver Jack Arterburn, who high-balled his big truck 180 miles at up to 75-mile-an-hour speeds thinking an Army missile rocket motor he was carrying was about to explode:
"I was really sweating it out. That's the closest call I've ever had."

Sparks, Nev. — Casino owner Dick Graves after the U.S. mint seized his 225-ounce, $12,500 solid gold rooster advertising symbol:
"You'd think the government would have something better to do."

Once-Famous 'Checkers' Now Just Forgotten Dog

By RONALD H. NESSEN
United Press International
Washington —(UPI)—Eight years ago Checkers was top dog. Today he's the forgotten pooch of Wesley Heights.

The Cocker Spaniel's master, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, is in Chicago to accept the Republican presidential nomination, which Checkers in some tiny way may have helped assure for him.

The mistress of the house, Pat, and the pet's two playmates, Julie and Tricia, are in Chicago, too.

So the dog is left behind in the big stone house by the side of the park to reminisce about his day — or rather his night.

It happened during the 1952 presidential campaign when then-Sen. Nixon was Dwight D. Eisenhower's running mate. The GOP was jolted by the disclosure that Nixon had accepted $18,235 from a group of California supporters to help pay his political expenses as a senator.

Went Before Nation
Many Republicans, afraid that the episode would cost the GOP the election, demanded that Nixon be dropped from the ticket.

Nixon broke off his campaigning in Portland, Ore., and flew to Los Angeles to defend his acceptance of the money in a nationwide radio-TV broadcast.

At 9:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 23, he went on the air. Speaking with great emotion, he detailed his personal finances and said none of the expense fund went for his personal use.

About halfway through the 30-minute program, Nixon glanced down at his handwritten notes on a yellow foolscap, then looked into the camera and said:
"One other thing I probably should tell you, because if I don't they'll (the Democrats) probably be saying this about me, too. We did get something — a gift — after the election."

"A man down in Texas heard Pat on the radio mention the fact that our two youngsters would like to have a dog. And believe it or not before we left on this trip we got a message from Union Station in Baltimore saying they had a package for us. We went down to get it. You know what it was. Many Viewers Wept

"It was a little Cocker Spaniel dog in a crate that he sent all the way from Texas. Black and white spotted. And our little girl — Tricia, the 6-year-old named it Checkers. And you know the kids love that dog and I just want to say this right now, that regardless of what they say about it, we're going to keep it."

Democrats denounced the speech as a "soap opera." Republicans hailed it as a masterpiece. Many viewers were reported to have wept.

Thousands of telegrams and letters of support flooded GOP headquarters. Nixon stayed on the ticket, which won and was re-elected in 1956.

Checkers was left out of this week's Chicago festivities and now has to share the Nixon's affection with another pet, a cat.

But he's won his place in American political history because that TV program is best remembered as the "Checkers" speech.

Trip To Siskiyou County Scheduled
Ashland — The history of Siskiyou county will be retold and historical sites will be seen first hand when Dr. Arthur Taylor, chairman of the social science division, Southern Oregon college, conducts a tour to points of interest in Yreka and Ft. Jones, Calif.

Members of the tour, which will include summer session students and other interested persons, will leave the college at 7 a.m. Saturday, July 30, according to Dr. Al Fellers, director of student affairs. Sack lunches should be brought for the noon meal.

Additional information may be obtained from the student affairs office at SOC.
