Hyannis Port, Mass.—Adlai Stevenson, on the great issue of our time:
 "The issue is not who can talk back to Khrushchev. I've had some considerable experience with that. That's easy. Nor who can stand up to Khrushchev. The issue is who can marshal the forces of the free world . . ."

Harpersville, Ala.—Henry Lewis Jones, a well-known Negro who was flogged by white men for no apparent reason:
 "It just weren't make sense. I thought all the people around here were my friends."

Fair Lawn, N.J.—Otto Stillwachs, whose teen-aged son was slain by his 17-year-old love rival:
 "Maybe all this came from the way kids do things today. They're grown up before their time."

Acton, Calif.—Mrs. Thelma Land, describing her family's reaction when an elephant lumbered up to their front porch:
 "Elephant! We all screamed and ran in the house."

1960 Crop Season to Be One of Nation's Best, Says Agriculture Board

Washington—UPI—Despite a cold, wet spring, the 1960 crop season bids fair to become one of the nation's highest production years.

The Agriculture Department's crop reporting board said the preliminary all-crop production index computes to 118 per cent of the 1947-49 average. This matches the all-time record achievement of the past two years.

This anticipated huge crop is in prospect despite the fact that farmers ended the first half of the year behind schedule. A cold, wet spring held up plantings of many crops.

Switch in Weather
 The switch in weather accounted for a remarkable change in crop prospects. The crop reporting board in its July estimates said prospects for all crops point to a favorable outlook for most areas of the nation.

The department said food grain production now looks to be about 18 per cent above last year. The big gainer, of course, is wheat, with an anticipated crop of 1.35 billion bushels. This is 80 million bushels more than the 1959 crop.

On the economic front, there is a different picture for farmers, especially for the last half of the year. Government reports indicate there will be fewer hogs and eggs and slightly more milk than a year ago, but more beef, peaches, potatoes, and wheat. The demand for farm products continues favorable both at home and abroad, but supplies may outrun demand for a number of products.

Could Be Upset
 Here are some of the things that could upset or disturb the farmers' outlook during the last half of 1960: rising government expenses, the threat of inflation, labor unrest, the future of the soil bank, the wheat problem, the international situation, and the political campaign. Any or all could have an effect on farm pocketbooks.

The present hog situation means that farmers probably will get more money from their porkers than they got last year. The spring pig crop was slashed a whopping 16 per cent below last year's swollen totals. And if hog producers carry out their present plans, the fall pig crop will be 3 per cent less than a year ago. The spring and fall cutbacks will reduce pork supplies which means retail price of pork will be higher and prices to farmers for live hogs will be higher.

Canned Foods Faithful Servants for Summer

Canned foods are a vital part of the pantry, a vital part too of the economy of our state. Since Nicholas Appert first canned a few foods 150 years ago, the list has grown to more than a thousand items ranging alphabetically from abalone to young-berries.

You may wonder why we talk about canned foods at the peak of our fresh foods season. Here's why. Throughout the year, homemakers open canned foods at the rate of about 55 million per day because of their variety, ease-of-preparation, economy.

About four-fifths of our tomatoes go into cans; three-fourths of the beans; two-thirds of our peas; more than half of the corn; about half of all the peaches, pears, apricots, cranberries and sour cherries. Nearly all of the tama caught in our western waters goes into cans; 90 per cent of the sardines and 85 per cent of our famed north-west salmon.

Summer Supper Specials
 We've pictured a lazy-susan supper of convenient canned foods. Make the ham-liver canape mold early in the day. Around suppertime, surround it with chilled California sardines in tomato sauce; add a few cans of Vienna sausage topped with mustard. Fresh chilled cucumber and tomato slices add crunchiness to the spread.

The one hot dish is chili con carne with tomatoes. Even our Mexican neighbors would enjoy this dish served hot and savory. Along with the tamales are green beans vinaigrette and pickled beet slices that could be done well ahead of time.

Crackers and breads, plenty of iced beverages for a pleasant summer evening.

Ham-Liver Mold
 Easily made in the cool of the morning, recipe for ham-liver mold makes two cups for canape serving with crackers or thin slices of buffet rye bread.

2 bouillon cubes
 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 1 cup water
 1 can (4 1/2 ounces) liver spread
 1 can (4 1/2 ounces) ham spread

Add bouillon cubes and gelatin to water in saucepan. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Blend half the liquid into the liver paste and remaining half into the ham spread. Turn liver mixture into a two-cup mold; chill until almost firm. Add ham mixture and chill until firm. Unmold to serve.

Pickled Beet Slices
 We make eight servings of this hoping to have some left over for another day. You can halve it successfully using one can of beets if you like.

2 cans (1 pound each) sliced beets
 2 medium onions, sliced
 1 cup vinegar
 2 teaspoons pickling spices
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 1/2 tablespoons unsulfured molasses

Drain beets; turn into a shallow container; add onion slices. Combine vinegar, spices, salt and molasses in saucepan. Place over medium heat; bring to boil. Pour over sliced beets and onions; cover container and refrigerate several hours or overnight.

Chili - Tamales
 For each six servings, simply turn two cans (one pound each) chili con carne with beans into a skillet; top with one can (one pound) tamales. Heat to serving temperature.

Green Beans Vinaigrette
 For each eight servings, drain two cans (one pound each) green beans, reserving liquid for use in sauce, etc. Combine one-third cup vinegar, three-fourths teaspoon Tabasco, one teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt; beat until well blended; add medium size onion, sliced. Pour over beans; let stand several hours. To serve, arrange beans in lettuce cups.

Fish With Black Sauce
 Soup Liked by 'Czechs'
 Czechoslovakia shows the cultural influence not only of its neighbors but also of the United States. There are many cafeterias styled on the American pattern and snacking is a national pastime. The word "Bohemian" stands for something more than art and joy in living. The Bohemian kitchen has long been the center gastronomically of European culinary art.

Fish, marinated and sauced, are popular with "Czechs." Carp, perch or pike are often used, though other fresh-water fish may be used. Eight servings of fish with black sauce:

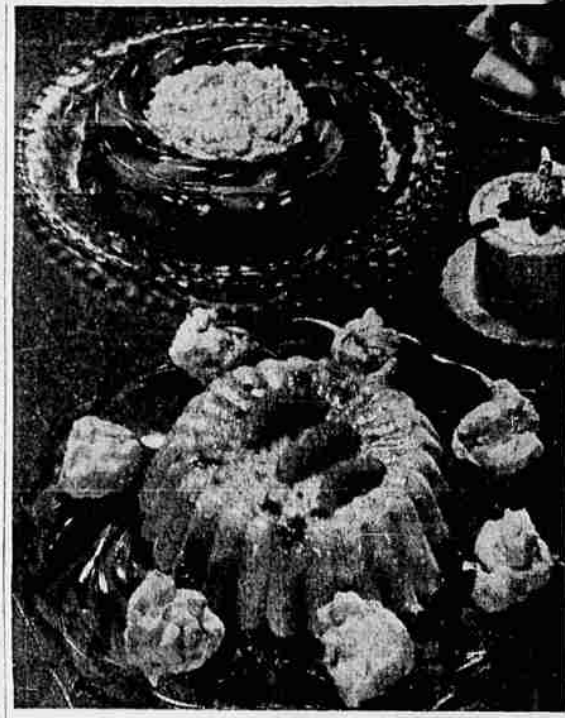

1 4-pound fresh-water fish
 1 pint vinegar
 1 quart water
 2 medium onions, sliced
 2 stalks celery, diced
 1 small carrot, sliced
 1 clove garlic
 2 bay leaves
 7 whole cloves

is short, much too short. Every bite is sheer delight. They're appetizing, appealing and loaded with vitamin A. The best flavored apricots are tree-ripened which makes them highly perishable. Store ripe apricots in a covered container in the refrigerator; enjoy them soon; out-of-hand, in pies, puddings, upside-down cake and in salads like this:

Apricot Salad
 For five servings of apricot salad, take one pound fresh apricots; wash, cut in half and remove pits. Arrange apricot halves around mound of cottage cheese using a pint of cheese (or arrange individual servings) on a bed of lettuce. Serve at once with mayonnaise thinned with two tablespoons of orange juice or combine mayonnaise and dairy sour cream. Garnish with nuts if you like.

Evaporated Milk
 Evaporated milk is often confused with sweetened condensed milk. Sweetened condensed milk has 40 per cent sugar added to it to preserve the milk. Sweetened condensed milk has 8.5 per cent butterfat and 28 per cent total milk solids. Evaporated milk has no added sugar.

Because of the large amount of sugar added to sweetened condensed milk it's use is limited to those foods where both sugar and milk are needed ingredients. Many excellent and simple recipes have been developed for its use. Some of these appear on the land unbaked. Popular use in our area is for the making of cheese cakes, both baked and unbaked.

What Is The Law?

This column is prepared as a public service by the College of Law, Willamette University, Salem, to explain basic legal principles. The reader is cautioned not to apply these cases to his own problems without an attorney's advice, for differing facts may change the outcome.

Desertions As Grounds For A Divorce

Joe and his wife Josephine quarreled about money; Joe packed his bag and moved out. He saw Josephine almost every day after that as he walked by the house on his way to work. He never spoke to her.

About a week after moving out, Joe sent one of his friends to Josephine to attempt a reconciliation. Another friend wrote a letter. Nothing came of the attempts of either of Joe's friends, both of whom were strangers to Josephine. A year after the divorce Joe sued his wife for divorce on the grounds of desertion. Josephine made no appearance and was defaulted. Will the court grant Joe a divorce?

Probably not. Desertion is one of the grounds for divorce in almost all of the states. The period of desertion is usually one year, although the law sometimes varies from state to state. The desertion must be without good cause, and there is no desertion if separation is by mutual agreement.

In this case Joe was the original deserter, but he tried to show that the desertion had stopped. He was acting under a rule which provides that, if before the end of the legal period of desertion, a husband or wife, otherwise guilty of desertion, offers in good faith to resume the marriage relationship, the period of desertion is stopped. If the party who was originally deserted rejects the offer of reconciliation then he or she becomes the deserter from that time on. The offer of reconciliation must be made in good faith, and not merely to lay a foundation for a divorce suit. Whether good faith exists is a question.

In Joe's case the court will probably find that his attempts at reconciliation were not in good faith. He saw his wife almost every day after he left her but he never spoke to her. His silence hardly gives the impression of a man anxious to patch up a quarrel and start over again. Under the circumstances Joe should have talked with Josephine himself.

If he honestly felt that a third party could help him fix things up between him and Josephine, he would have done better to have sought the aid of one of Josephine's friends or relatives rather than persons who were total strangers to her. Joe's attempts at reconciliation do not appear to have been made in good faith. He is not entitled to a divorce.

The Willamette College of Law presents this column of general legal principles. It is not to be taken as legal advice. Slight changes in the facts may change the outcome of a case.

Cheryl Denies Finn Acquaintance

Los Angeles—UPI—Lana Turner's daughter, Cheryl Crane, 16, has denied she is acquainted with George Finn, one of the "Flying Finn" twins who is seeking to get her released from a girl's home, it was learned today.

Cheryl, confined in El Retiro Superior Court affidavit she does not know Finn and did not authorize him to seek her release. Finn described himself as a friend.

Finn, 45, has a hearing Wednesday in Superior Court on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus for her release on grounds that she illegally was restrained for the slaying of Johnny Stompanato, the lover of her mother in 1958.
