

Small Worlds Around Us

By Lynn M. Watkins

There are Show Offs in the Animal World, Too. Showing off is not solely a human trait. There are a number of "show-offs" in the animal world that seem just as anxious to display their talents.

The dividing line between bragging and actual playfulness is, at times, pretty blurry. Many male birds show off to please or fascinate the lady of their choice.

The real "show-offs" are those who put on demonstrations for the amusement of others, or because they feel good, or because they control themselves in the animal world there are some that deliberately become "smart-alecks" only when someone is watching.

O Dogs, monkeys, parrots, raccoons, otters, as well as many others often will make themselves actually conspicuous by staging some sort of exhibition to be amusing or to gain a reward for their performance. There are some that choose to bring confusion, always playing for the grandstand.

One of these easily can be the porpoise. This character plays the part of the clown at every opportunity. He will go into his act whenever he has an audience. He's a natural show-off, and apparently gets a big kick out of displaying his accomplishments.

The barnyard rooster awakens early in the morning full of enthusiasm and good spirits. He actually is "showing off" for the benefit of his admirers. He is a natural show-off, and apparently gets a big kick out of displaying his accomplishments.

To them life is a serious business. In a moment of carelessness they could "get it in the neck." They cannot afford to become spectators. (Released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1960.)

Some 350 Grange members, guests and friends attended the first Jackson County Grange festival at the Elks Picnic grounds July 30. Many out-of-town Grangers were present at the highlight of the affair, a barbecue dinner cooked by L. G. (Shy) Morthingland and served by Mrs. Cassie Goding of Rogue River and the Grange HEIC.

Master of ceremonies was Victor Croxson, state Grange lecturer, Sams Valley. Mr. and Mrs. Alva Walker and Shirley Knepper, Gold Hill, conducted the game and quiz tests, and Mrs. James Edge, Eagle Point, headed the musical part of the program. Party participants included the three Goring sisters, accordionists from Eagle Point; Mrs. Marsha Bever, Central Pt.; and Whitley Pullen's band with Mrs. Margaret Hansen, Elk-Trail, as vocalist.

Completion of the day's activities was at Eagle Point with prizes being awarded to winning contestants. Winners of the Goring sisters, first; Mrs. Bert Standley and Warren Lotter, second; Mrs. Glenn Salmara, third.

Other skills were presented and dancing was held later in the evening. Several valley businesses donated food for the festival, according to Grange members.

Why "Good-Time Charlie" Suffers Uneasy Bladder

Travelling and drinking may be a source of mild, but annoying bladder irritation. The bladder is a sensitive organ and is easily irritated by the bacteria in the urine. This irritation can be relieved by the use of a bladder irritant. A bladder irritant is a substance that irritates the bladder and causes it to contract. This contraction forces the urine out of the bladder and into the urethra. The urethra is the tube that carries the urine out of the body. A bladder irritant can be used to relieve the irritation and to prevent it from recurring.
