Nation's Popularity Density Lowered With Admission of Alaska and Hawaii

Washington – (UPI) – Statehood for Alaska and Hawaii slightly lowered the nation's population density–statistically–even though the number of Americans has been rising steadily.

The Census Bureau reported today that 1960 census results suggest a nationwide population density of 50.4 persons per square miles, down fractionally from the 50.7 reported in 1950.

These figures are computed by dividing the total population by the number of states. By states, population density varies greatly–from New Jersey's 800.2 people per square mile to Alaska's one person for every 2½ square miles.

From 1950 to 1960 population and population density went up in 45 of the 48 states Alaska and Hawaii. But bringing in Alaska's 571,065 square miles last year when it became a state held the national average of population density down to the 1950 level. Although Alaska is first in size it is last in population with 224,386 residents.

Hawaii has 6,412 square miles and a population of 620,385, for a density rating of 96.8–above the national average.

The population and population density figures for each of the 50 states are shown in the following tables:

Hatfield Blames Legislature for Worker Changes

Salem–(UPI)–Gov. Mark Hatfield said Thursday that the turnover of state employees has become so great and the recruitment of replacements in many categories so dififcult that the state finance director has been asked to find out what savings are available in state agency budgets that could be used to hige employe salaries. Melvin Cleveland, Oregon Civil Service director, told the governor the competitive salary situation is "critical."

Hatfield said a recommendation may be made to the state emergency board at its meeting next month.

Legislature Blamed

Hatfield said it was "the failure of the 1959 legislature to provide adequate funds for salary adjustments" which has placed the state in a position where "it cannot compete for competent employees on the labor market."

State governmer' he said, has become a "costly training ground" for prospective employees of private business.

During the past year, 45.8 per cent of the state's junior typists and 49.9 per cent of its junior stenographers resigned.

This must be curtailed, Hatfield said.

The Oregon Civil Service Commission is now studying salaries paid in private business and other public categories prior to preparing recommended salary adjustments to be included in Hatfield's budget for the 1961-63 biennium.

Two Arrested For Attempted Forgery

Medford police arrested two men Wednesday on a charge of attempting to utter and publish a false check. The men allegedly tried to pass a $25 check at a local store.

Arrested are Jagat Aarayen, 21, Robinson hotel, and Floyd Elmer Barrow, 21, of 33 South Front st. They have been confined in the county jail.

Police arrested the two after the store manager reported that Barrow tried to cash a $25 check for which he had no funds in the bank.

On questioning, Barrow implicated Narayen, who, he said, actually wrote the check. Narayen is also wanted in Yuba City, Calif., on a check charge, police said, and may be wanted by federal authorities for income tax evasion, they added.

Police also cleared the theft of three rings with the arrest. Sandra Mae Palmer, 17 Corning court, told police Wednesday that three rings valued at $150 were taken from her residence. Police found two of the rings on Barrow's person.

Tot Recovering After Drinking Sink Cleaner

Oregon City – (UPI) – A 2½-year-old girl was recovering today after drinking a sink drain cleaner.

Police said that Linda Kay Padilla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Padilla, Oak Grove, was rushed to a hospital Wednesday by firemen.

Except for burns around her mouth, she was reported in good condition.

Marine Board Has Unclaimed Licenses

Salem – The state marine board has reported it has accumulated a file of boat licenses that have been returned because of insufficient address or which have been unclaimed.

The marine board also is holding a number of applications for boat documents which it cannot process due to the applicants having failed to indicate any address whatsoever, or else only a partial address.

"Where possible, the board traces the name of the applicant through the help of boat dealers or by searching through telephone and city directories," R. F. Rittenhouse, director of the board, stated.

"However, there remains quite a few applications from people who we have been unable to locate through any channel and we can only hope that they will become concerned about their boat licenses and contact us," he added.

Teen-Ager Beats Up Portland Man, 72

Portland –(UPI)– Chris Johnson, 72, told attendants at Emanuel hospital Wednesday afternoon, that he had been beaten up by a teen-age boy Monday night.

According to a hospital report Johnson did not give the name of the youth but said he was about 17 years old. Police did not receive a report of the incident until Thursday.

Wall Street Chatter

New York – (UPI) – Oppenheimer & Co. doesn't expect a quick reversal in the gradual decline in general economic activity.

One of the few in the nation to suggest an unfavorable outlook six months ago, the firm had this to say about the future:

"While business will in time recover, there is little reason to assume that confidence as reflected by increased orders, production, and in turn, profits can be revitalized quickly."

But, it points out, it is clear that neither reversing or declining markets eliminate the possibility of building up capital values. "Even in the volatile and cyclical markets, there are opportunities for worthwhile investment appreciation."

Bache & Co. says Upjohn appears poised for a resumption of the upward move. During its recent reaction, the firm adds, the issue managed to hold its ground and has been receiving increased support during the past few sessions.

The investor interested in a good yielding oil security whose earnings stand to improve through expected higher product prices, should look into Standard Oil of Ohio, according to Paint, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

Three flags waved over Missouri within 24 hours on March 9-10, 1804, when Spain, France and the United States claimed the territory at various times while the Louisiana Territory was being transferred.

Poor Spelling Can Pull Down Grades in Various Subjects

(Editor's note: This is another in the series of stories about schools furnished by the National Education association. Today's article deals with poor spelling, and how parents can help their child become a better speller.)

Washington, D.C. – Poor spelling can pull down your child's grades in social studies, reading, science, and other school subjects, according to the nation's elementary school teachers.

Many teachers mark down book reports, project notebooks, and test papers because they contain spelling and grammatical errors.

"Learning to spell English is hard work," according to the National Education Association, in its booklet "How To Help Your Child Learn." "Johnny would have an easier time of it with Spanish or Finnish, which are far more consistent in their rules."

Concentrate on List

Most schools concentrate on teaching children a list of about 3,000 English root words that make up 98 per cent of the words both adults and children use in written expression. About 20 per cent of these words don't follow the regular alphabetical rules, and these are probably the ones that give a child trouble.

There are ways, suggested by the NEA, in which parents can help their children improve in spelling. Among them are:

First, make sure your child has no physical handicaps which may be holding him back–a speech defect, faulty hearing, or poor vision. If you suspect anything of the sort, have him examined immediately.

Have him make his own dictionary of "demon" words that plague him. Get him a scrapbook and have him devote one page to each alphabetical letter. As he masters the "demon," he enters it on the proper page.

Give your child the fun of adventuring with words. Encourage him to make a list of new and interesting ones he comes across. Play games with words.

Frequent Notes

Encourage him to write frequent notes–to other children, to relatives–as thank-you's for parties and gifts. Check with him to see that all words are spelled properly, and that the note is legible.

Give him his own dictionary. He will use it faithfully, if you give him the good example of "looking up" the spelling of words.

Avoid "baby talk" with your preschooler or first-grader. It may be great fun for parents and doting uncles, but it's no help to your child in the real life of school. Make sure he hears all words clearly and correctly pronounced at home.
