NEW OXYGEN TANK — National Steel has developed a round container, four inches in diameter and weighing 32 ounces, which can hold an hour's supply (or 20 gallons) of "controlled flow" oxygen. An hour's supply has previously been available only from cylinder-shaped "continuous flow" containers weighing as much as 125 pounds. Here the new lightweight container is being used at the Great Lakes Steel Hospital. Dr. Frank Szledak looks on as Nurse Donna Miller does the work.

Heart Monitor Used in Dentistry

Detroit — (Science Service) — A heart monitor attached to the arms of dental patients under anesthesia will warn dentists of cardiac changes. The small instrument was invented for use in hospital operating rooms by Dr. William F. Velling, a surgeon here. It is suggested for dental use by the medical equipment department of Chemetron Corporation's National Cylinder Gas Division.

'Sky Writing' By Satellites Forecast

New York — (Science Service) — "Skywriting" by satellites as far from earth as the moon or farther, using small batches of the element lithium, was forecast by five Russian scientists. They suggested a method for substantially increasing the brightness of space rockets by ejecting a cloud of gas that will glow like an artificial comet. The development of a lithium artificial comet will solve the problem of optical observations of man-made satellites within the solar system, they predict.

A cloud of vaporized sodium has already been used by the Russians to aid in tracking the lunar rocket launched on Sept. 12, 1959. Since sodium is not an "ideal substance" for making artificial comets, they recommend lithium. One reason is that 40 times as much sodium is needed as when lithium is used.

The suggestion for using artificial lithium comets was reported in the current Soviet Astronomy, published here by the American Institute of Physics, in a translation of a paper by I. S. Shklovskii, V. F. Esipov, V. G. Kurt, V. I. Moroz and P. V. Shegolev of the P. K. Shternberg State Astronomical Institute.

Space People Have Presidential Hopeful

Los Angeles — (UPI) — Gabriel Green, 35, self-styled choice of the "space people," declared his candidacy for the presidency Tuesday. Green, president of the Amalgamated Flying Saucer Clubs of America, told a press conference his campaign would be based on his system of "prior choice economics" which he explained thus: "Everything is or should be the sum total of all that has gone before."

Festival Visited By Dr. Guthrie, Director-Producer

Ashland — Dr. Tyrone Guthrie, internationally known director and producer attended the Oregon Shakespeare Festival, Ashland, Aug. 5 and 6 and saw two of the Festival's four productions, "Richard II" and "The Taming of the Shrew."

Dr. Guthrie just finished directing Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" for the Stratford, Ontario, Festival and is currently lecturing at the University of Oregon's summer academy of contemporary arts. He was a producer at the Old Vic-Sadlers Wells organization in London, but since 1945 has had no permanent connection with any theater, and has free-lanced directing production in America and Europe.

Dr. Guthrie was instrumental in the formation of the Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Ontario, and has directed many productions there. Last year, he produced "The Merchant of Venice" for the Habimah Theater in Israel, and staged "The Tenth Man" with Don Harron and Lou Jacob in New York. His autobiography, "A Life in the Theater" was also published last year.

Dr. Guthrie was accompanied to Ashland by his wife, and Dr. and Mrs. William McGraw, of the University of Oregon speech department. Following his appearance at the university, he will return to New York to start work on a number of theater projects for the 1960-61 season.

When you cover a latex foam cushion, use a close woven porous material and cut it so that it will be about one-fourth of an inch smaller than the cushion itself when seamed. This insures proper snugness and gives the cushion a plump fit without loss of resiliency.
