Kennedy Waits Truman's Word

Washington - (UPI) - Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy awaited word today from former President Harry S. Truman on the date for a meeting to map Truman's campaign role.

Gov. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut planned to meet with Truman today in Independence, Mo., as a special emissary for Kennedy. He was expected to contact Kennedy at his office here by telephone immediately after the conference.

Kennedy plans to meet with Truman in Independence this month, possibly when the Massachusetts senator travels to Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 21 to attend a meeting of Democratic farm belt leaders.

It will be the first time that Kennedy and Truman have met since Truman charged that the Democratic convention was "rigged" in Kennedy's favor. Truman, a backer of Sen. Stuart Symington for the nomination, refused to attend the convention.

Back Stairs: The Vacation Routine

Washington - (UPI) - Back stairs at the White House: Now that President Eisenhower has finished relaxing at Newport and Denver hundreds of other people are relaxing who couldn't while he did.

When a president travels, it's not just a matter of somebody packing his bag. It's a vast logistical problem involving planes, cars, helicopters, and boats; pilots and police; admirals and industrialists; seamen and trash collectors.

Sometimes the daily routines even of children are disrupted. At old Fort Adams, part of the Newport, R. I., naval base where the President stayed on his visit the small fry of several score Navy families living nearby were ordered to keep quiet and quit hanging around the streets.

It seems that presidents generate garbage just like other people, so the base trash man had to be told when, where and how often to collect it.

Special Orders

Everybody on the big naval base had special orders for the occasion, embraced in a fat mimeographed document prepared by the base chief of staff and entitled inevitably, "operation vacation."

This covered everything from the spare tire and cover required for the President's golf car, to the "high fidelity" record player, with records, needed for his house. Somehow they forgot to specify what kind of records, and in the event Eisenhower heard nothing but rock 'n' roll for the past month now at least he knows why.

The President's bubble top limousine is driven or flown from Washington many places he goes, so he can wave to the people who like to see him drive by. An open Secret Service car also goes along.

Helicopters Shipped
On Eisenhower's recent trips to Asia and South America a fleet of 50 helicopters, with 100 pilots to keep them flying, was flown and shipped around the world. Wherever it was known or believed the President might want to make a 5 or 10 minute chopper flight from jet field to downtown, for instance—a chopped detachment was set up in advance, with fuel, supplies, and maintenance men.

On domestic trips, fewer copters are needed. In Newport, they proved invaluable. It took the President 15 minutes to travel by car from his quarters to his office, separated by the business district of Newport. By yacht—the 93-foot Barbara Anne—the trip across an arm of Narragansett Bay took 10 minutes.

A helicopter flight cut this to five minutes and offered door-to-door delivery besides.

Secret Service Ready
The Secret Service of course is always on hand, in large but unspecified numbers. At Newport, more than 100 Marine guards were sent from Washington to supplement security and/or provide spit and polish.

Ike and Mamie fly on a Air Force jet Boeing 707, whose crew is always at the ready. A two-engine Convair flies from Washington daily at 10 a.m., delivering official papers and shuttling personnel.

When the President talks vacation he means golf. Golf requires partners. He had as his guests Newport industrialists and business men who played with him daily.

Secretaries, transportation experts, communications men must move with the President. Wherever he goes a White House switchboard is set up, tied in with the regular switchboard in Washington.

Actions Reported
So, while the President golfed, others worked. He worked part time too, of course, as presidents always must. On his recent trip Western Union, from Newport and Denver, moved about 400,000 words of press copy, reporting his actions.

Speaking as a man who must have written half of those words himself, I hope the President stays home for awhile. I'm too tired for another vacation.

Courses Available At College Told

Ashland - Dr. Bill Sampson, director of summer session on the Southern Oregon college campus has announced that courses to be offered during the post-session, Aug. 15-16, are: social science in the elementary school, language arts in the elementary, and Spanish in the elementary school.

The social science and language arts seminars are to be instructed by Mrs. Mary Helen Gwinn of Lincoln school, Ashland. These workshops will deal with the problems and methods in selecting and organizing materials for teaching. Methods and tools of presentation will also be studied.

Spanish in the elementary school is to be taught by Dennis G. Haanon, formerly of the SOC language department. No previous knowledge of Spanish is required, but graduate credit is available with the consent of the instructor for students with some knowledge of Spanish. Basic instruction in pronunciation and practical classroom expressions will be emphasized as well as the audiolingual approach for the teaching of Spanish in the grade schools.

All three seminars offer three quarter hours undergraduate or graduate credit.

Normally room and board is not available at the college during the summer post session, according to Dr. Sampson. For further information, direct inquiries to Dr. Sampson's office at SOC.

WRECK KILLS 12

Fortaleza, Brazil - (UPI) - A passenger train jumped the tracks about 100 miles south of here Tuesday night, killing at least a dozen and perhaps as many as 100 persons. About 200 persons were injured in the wreck.

STAFF MEMBER DIES

Washington - (UPI) - The Rev. Francis Byrnes, S.J., 73, a member of the Georgetown university staff, died Monday.

ARREST DEMONSTRATORS

Mexico City - (UPI) - Nightstick carrying police broke up an illegal, Communist-supported demonstration outside Mexico's "White House" late Tuesday, arresting an estimated 50 demonstrators. Small bands of anti-government agitators roamed the streets through the night.

TRIAL FOR PRATT

Pretoria, South Africa - (UPI) - Wealthy South African farmer David B. Pratt will be tried by a jury this month on charges of attempting to assassinate Premier Hendrik Verwoerd last April, it was learned Tuesday.

Four Rounds of Plays Completed By Festival Group

Ashland - Tuesday night's 688 audience for "The Tragedy of King Richard the Second" completed four rounds of plays at the Oregon Shakespearean Festival, Ashland. A total of 14,274 persons have attended the first sixteen nights at America's First Elizabethan Theater, a lead of 701 over 1959.

Topping the box office totals so far is the popular comedy "The Taming of the Shrew," which has been seen by 4,614. Second in gate receipts is "Julius Caesar," now listing 3,760. "Richard" and "The Tempest" are running very close in house totals, with "Richard" now listed at 2,975 and "Tempest" at 2,925.

Advance sales continue to run high, with a very heavy sale during the week of John Webster's "The Duchess of Malfi." The theater's first non-Shakespearean drama is set for Aug. 22 opening and will be repeated Aug. 31.

General Manager William Patton reported that seating is still available for nearly all performances, with the fewest availabilities on "Shrew" night. Reservations for all remaining nights should be made as soon as possible. The Festival's 20th season continues nightly through Sept. 3.

Capitol Visitors Greet Nixon

Washington - (UPI) - Vice President Richard M. Nixon can't take his curbside campaigning to the people while he is tied down in the Senate but that hasn't stopped his hand-shaking activity.

The people are, in a sense, coming to him and providing a daily crowd literally at his office door. Naturally, the Republican presidential nominee is making the most of it.

The post-convention session of Congress, coming at the height of Washington's summer tourist season, finds the Capitol corridors crowded every day with hundreds of sightseers lined up waiting for seats in the visitors' gallery.

When he isn't presiding over the Senate, Nixon works most of the time at his private office down the corridor from the Senate chamber. It's the same hallway where the tourists wait for seats in the visitors' galleries.

There's always a hubbub when Nixon appears in the hallway and if time permits, he handshakes his way along the line.
