

Antarctic Treaty Ratification Clears Path for Others

Washington—UPI—U.S. ratification of the 12-nation Antarctic treaty cleared the way today for other countries to approve the pact which would insulate the frozen South Polar continent from the cold war.

The Senate overrode determined opposition and approved the treaty Wednesday, 66-21—eight votes more than the required two-thirds majority. The document was hailed as a "new start towards peace" that might restore East-West good faith and pave the way for a disarmament agreement.

Protection Argued
Opponents for the pact argued during the three-day debate that it would sell out U.S. claims in the Antarctic and give the Russians rights they did not deserve.

Protection Argued
Supporters contended the treaty protected this country's interests and gave no new rights to the Soviet Union.

The treaty, initiated by the United States, would preserve the South Pole continent as a vast scientific laboratory. It would ban military moves in the area, including nuclear explosions and disposal of atomic wastes. Territorial claims would be frozen for 30 years.

Chile and Argentina were expected to follow the American example and approve the treaty soon.

The other nations which have not ratified the pact are New Zealand, Australia—strong backers of the treaty—France, and Russia.

In addition to the United States, Britain, South Africa, Belgium, Norway and Japan have ratified the Polar Pact. Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) told the Senate before the vote that the pact could be "a new start towards peace." Speaking with great emotion, he declared, "we can't carry hate and suspicion on our backs forever."

May Be Starting Point
Another supporter, assistant Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said the treaty "may well be the starting point to the peaceful solution of problems facing us." Backers suggested that inspection and demilitarization provisions might ease East-West suspicions on disarmament.

But Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) and other opponents said the United States was giving up the fruit of extensive exploration in the Antarctic.

Joint Meeting Planned by Local Active & 20-30 Clubs

A joint meeting Tuesday, Aug. 16, of the Medford Active and 20-30 clubs will be the first such session in preparation for the merging of the two clubs locally.

Active International and 20-30 International recently approved the merger on an international level with the resulting club to be called Active 20-30.

Medford is the only city in Oregon in either organization where the two clubs are merging on a local basis, club officials reported.

The international merger will become effective July 1, 1961, while the local clubs plan to unite officially Jan. 1, 1961. The clubs are currently coordinating plans.

The Tuesday dinner meeting, to be held at Kim's Restaurant at 7:30 p.m., will serve as a "get acquainted" session when the two groups will discuss common problems.

Phil Huntley is president of the Medford 20-30 club and Gary L. Meisner is the Active club president.

Thornton Rules On Bail Forfeits

Salem—UPI—All fine and forfeited bail money collected prior to July, 1960 must be paid over to the city when a municipal traffic violation has been appealed to Circuit Court, Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton said Wednesday.

He also said that one half of all forfeited bail and fine money collected before July 1, 1960 must be paid over to the state treasurer on an appeal to the Circuit Court before a justice or district court for a traffic violation when the arrest was made by a state police officer.

The opinion had been requested by a county which had collected fines imposed in Circuit Court resulting from an appeal of a city court conviction for a traffic violation.

On July 1, a new state law went into effect which resolved the doubts as to the disposition of forfeited bail or fines imposed on appeal Thornton said.

Unordered Items Plague Kim Novak

Hollywood—UPI—The trappings for an engagement party keep arriving at Kim Novak's home—but she isn't even engaged.

The blonde actress' business manager, Norma Kasell, today blamed a prankster for ordering supplies from 11 caterers, 8 florists, and 5 liquor stores.

"Somebody orders these things in my name and Kim's for a poolside party where she is supposed to announce her engagement to Dick Quine," Miss Kasell said. Miss Novak and Quine, a film director, have been dating recently, but so far they haven't announced any nuptial plans.

Manipulation Appeal Planned

Portland—UPI—Laurence M. Smith, Waterville, Wash., will appeal a Federal District Court verdict that found him guilty of conspiring in government wheat storage manipulation, his attorney, Bruce Spaulding said Wednesday.

Earl C. Corey, Portland, was also found guilty of conspiracy and of violating federal conflict of interest statutes. Corey was ill in St. Vincent Hospital here when the verdict was announced Tuesday, and his attorney said no decision has been made on a possible appeal.

The two men and William A. Richards of Portland were partners in a warehouse business at the same time that Corey was director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Stabilization Service here.

Smith faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison each of the 10 counts, or a maximum $100,000 fine. Corey could receive a maximum of 12 years or a $22,000 fine.

CATCHABLES
