Jim Frink Combines High School Classes

An example of how the vocational agriculture program in high school coupled with vocational agriculture leads a boy into established farming, is the story of Jim Frink of Crater high school vocational agriculture chapter.

Jim, who will be a senior this fall, has practically fulfilled his goal of becoming established in farming. He now farms 27 acres of wheat, 20 acres of barley, 45 acres of oats and vetch hay, 32 acres of corn and 230 acres of Talent alfalfa. He plans to buy 15 feeder steers this fall to utilize part of his grain and hay. Those crops not fed on the home farm to Jim's livestock will be sold and the returns used to further his agricultural investment.

Livestock

Current livestock in Jim's FFA supervised farming program include three Guernsey cows, three heifers, three registered Berkshire sows, one registered Berkshire boar and four fat hogs. Jim plans to exhibit classes from his livestock and crops at the Jackson County FFA and 4-H fair.

The Crater chapter member has demonstrated a strong interest and aptitude in farm mechanics, his instructor pointed out. Work he has done in the Crater vo-ag shop includes construction of a large tilt bed, dual wheel implement trailer and complete overhaul of a farm tractor.

"Jim, along with chapter president Don Denning, accumulated more points in the Crater FFA activity contest than any other member." Griggs said. "The award to the two boys for winning the Crater FFA activity contest will be a trip to the National FFA convention in Kansas City in October."

Jim holds the state farmer degree and is chapter FFA reporter. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Frink, Central Point.

FFA Organization Has Developed Fast

What is the Future Farmers of America?

It is the national organization of boys studying vocational agriculture in public secondary schools under the provisions of the National Vocational Education Acts.

It was launched at Kansas City, Mo., in November, 1928. The organization has continued to develop rapidly. On June 30, 1956, the active membership total totaled 382,342 in 8,900 chapters of 49 states, Puerto Rico.

Primary aim of the FFA is the development of agricultural leadership, cooperation, citizenship and patriotism. Other purposes include: strengthening the confidence of farm boys and young men in themselves and their work, more intelligent choice of farming occupations, creating and nurturing a love of country life, improving the rural home and its surroundings, encouraging cooperative effort, encouraging thrift, improving scholarship, organizing organized recreational activities for rural people, and supplementing by means of boy-initiated and boy-directed activities, the systematic instruction given future farmers regularly enrolled in day-school vocational agriculture courses.

4H Clubs Help Of Boys and Girls

What is the Oregon 4-H program?

It's the youth program of the Oregon State college extension service in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the various counties and cities in Oregon.

It cooperates with the schools, churches and other youth organizations in the development of boys and girls. It helps boys and girls become responsible citizens who will live useful, enjoyable lives.

Included in the things it teaches both boys and girls are: desirable skills, attitudes, and ideals for better living; responsibility for self, family and community; cooperation – how to work with others; leadership – how to help others; courtesy – to get along with others; health habits for healthful living; good grooming for better looks; confidence in themselves; pride in a good job well done; to finish what they begin; appreciation of nature, beauty, music and life itself; conservation and proper use of natural resources; ambition and desire for better things and better living.

This program also helps parents guide the development of their sons and daughters. It offers opportunity for parents and others interested in the welfare of boys and girls to become 4-H club leaders. It's for all boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 21. To be a 4-H club member in Oregon, a boy or girl must have passed his ninth birthday and not have passed his 21st birthday on Jan. of the current club year.

SAY, HEAR THE ONE ABOUT — E. A. "Spike" Mallorcy, Eagle Point sheep club leader, tells a part of one to Jim West, Eagle Point, parent of a Jackson county 4-H club member. In the middle and thinking hard is George Loften, "mayor of Sams Valley." The three farmers were among the many farm families who attended the annual Antelope 4-H club pre-fair meeting. The same families will be in the whirl of Jackson county 4-H and FFA fair activities next week.

RELIGIOUS EDITOR DIES

Plattsburg, N.Y. – (UP) – The Rev. Kurt Becker, S.J., 45, associate editor of "Jesuit Missions" and author of "I Met a Traveler," an account of a Jesuit's imprisonment by the Chinese Communists, died of a Wednesday.

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, a clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Martha Y. – My husband is spending too much time with my friend.

Herbert Y. – She deserves all the sympathy and help I can give her.

* * *

Martha Y. – My husband and I have been married eight years and have three youngsters. We have had a happy marriage until recently.

Our problem involves an old friend of mine, whose husband has been hospitalized for several months as the result of an accident. He may be severely crippled for life. We have tried to help this woman in her troubles, but I feel that my husband is beginning to do a little too much and Sylvia is being just too, too nice to him.

Things have gotten so bad that Herb is spending more time over at Sylvia's house than at home. Am I wrong in objecting?

* * *

Herbert Y. – I'm really angry that Martha should take such a jealous, petty attitude. Her friend has been through a tragedy and deserves all the help and sympathy she can get.

I wonder what Martha would do if the same thing happened to me. I hope somebody's husband would be kind enough to help her out. I was able to direct Sylvia to a good lawyer and banker. She has also become so nervous she is afraid to be alone evenings so I make it a practice to stop in for a while nearly every night.

Martha becomes furious every time Sylvia calls me for some advice.

* * *

The Council: We agree that Sylvia needs plenty of sympathy and help from her neighbors. How far this kind of help should go depends upon many factors.

Most women are extremely dependent upon the strong arm of a man in the point where they may lose their balance if it is suddenly taken away. Certainly, the man who offers assistance at that critical moment is an invaluable friend.

However, no woman has the right to take over another's husband to the point where he is sorely missed by his own wife. We have taken different degrees of tolerance of such a situation. We think it is safe to assume that the woman who rarely displays jealousy is a fair judge of the matter of where lines should be drawn.

Herbert should recognize that his oversolicitude may be doing the woman in the case little good at this time. The first shock is over. Sylvia is now at the point where she must learn to make her peace with her misfortune. She must discipline herself not to be afraid when she is alone, and she can't and won't do that as long as she knows her nervousness will bring immediate help.

It is evident that Martha is now the woman who is suffering from the lack of male companionship and support. She can't send her husband out on lend-lease forever. Since Sylvia lacks the strength and judgment to relieve Herbert of his self-imposed responsibilities, he must do something himself about loosening her grip.

Roseburg Hospital To Have New Manager

Washington –(UP)– Sen. Hall S. Lusk (D-Ore.) said Thursday Dr. Frank F. Merker, presently director of professional services at the Roseburg, Ore., Veterans Administration hospital, will become manager of the VA hospital in Roseburg, Ore., Sept. 18.

A SHOT IN THE REAR–Delmer Smith, Crater FFA, left, gives an innoculation in the rear quarter of a Hereford as Bob Ryan, center, looks on, and Gilbert Harrison holds the animal steady. The three FFA boys from Crater high school in Central Point plan to give an animal practices demonstration at the Jackson County 4-H and FFA fair next week.

Crater FFA Chapter to Give Disease Control Demonstration

Crater high school FFA chapter in Central Point plans to hold evening disease control demonstrations again this year at the Jackson County 4-H and FFA fair, according to Ed Griggs, chapter adviser and vo-ag instructor.

Chapter members who will participate this year are Alan Bray, Willie Debrick, Gilbert Harrison and Bob Ryan, Griggs said.

A stage will be erected by chapter members in front of the FFA barn. Spotlights and sound equipment will be installed for the programs. Demonstrations will be held for at least three nights. Each demonstration will be preceded and followed by music from the Crater FFA Rogue Ramblers. This group has placed high in the state FFA talent contest for the last two years.

Demonstrations this year will consist of properly and safely throwing an animal with halfhitches around her body. This method of throwing a large animal is based on the pressure by the rope on nerves along the animal's back causing a relaxation of muscles. Actually the animal lies down instead of being thrown, Griggs explained.

Veterinary Injections

Various methods of giving veterinary injections will be demonstrated on the cow after it is thrown. These include subcutaneous or under the skin shots with a veterinary syringe, intermuscular, intraperitoneal and intravelnous shots. An FFA member will describe the demonstration over a microphone.

Correct methods of cleaning and sterilizing veterinary syringes will be discussed, also. The Crater chapter with other Jackson county chapters, will exhibit livestock, poultry, crops and projects constructed during the school year in school farm shops.

Other Areas

The Illinois Valley and Grants Pass chapters join the three Jackson county chapters in competing in the livestock and dairy judging contests.

The Future Farmers of Jackson county extend an invitation to everyone to view their exhibits, programs and demonstrations," Griggs said. "Included in the aims and purposes of the Future Farmers of America is development of leadership, character, skills and agriculture science. Each Future Farmer is enrolled in a high school vocational agriculture class. The members follow approved farm practices learned in the classroom while managing their home supervised farming projects."

IN GOES THE NEEDLE!–Bob Ryan, Crater FFA member gives a Hereford an innoculation as Willie Debrick, far left and Gilbert Harrison, center, fellow FFA members, look on The picture was taken on the Ray Ryan ranch on Modoc rd. where the boys were rehearsing for an animal practice demonstration, which the chapter will put on at the Jackson County 4-H and FFA fair.

DOWN SHE GOES!–Ed Griggs, Crater FFA advisor (left) shows two of his chapter members how to properly "throw" a Hereford preparatory to vaccination. Willie Debrick, center, and Gilbert Harrison pull on the rope. Although this practice is called "throwing" an animal, the rope merely presses against the nerve centers on the animal's back causing it to relax and slowly sink to the ground and roll on its side. This will be demonstrated at the Jackson County 4-H and FFA fair.

BROWNIE DEMONSTRATION–Young Judy Franek, West Side 4-H clubs, was photographed as she put on a brownie making demonstration in the new 4-H and FFA fair building last week as part of the county home economics prefair. Judy shows she is a good little mixer as she stirs up the batter.

CANNING BEANS–Colleen Franek, West Side 4-H clubs, was photographed chopping up some string beans for canning during last week's 4-H home economics pre fair demonstrations in the new 4-H and FFA fair building. Numerous home economics demonstrations will be exhibited next week at the Jackson County 4-H and FFA fair at the fair grounds south of Medford.
