They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a Judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Marian R. – Henry makes a fool of himself over young girls.

Henry R. – She has nothing to be jealous about.

* * *

Marian R. – My husband and I have been married for 30 years and have three married children and an 18-year-old single daughter.

Now that we are grandparents and well on in middle age, I think it is time for my husband to stop making an old fool of himself over young girls. He has always been a sucker for a pretty face. A young girl can twist him around her little finger. I don't accuse him of unfaithfulness. I believe he has been loyal in the strict sense of the word, but he has always had a roving eye.

I feel that Henry annoys the young girls who visit our daughter. He takes over the conversation and makes remarks on how they look. It annoys me to death.

* * *

Henry R.–As Marian points out, I have never given her any reason to doubt my loyalty. I love my wife and wouldn't want to be involved with another woman.

But I also love youth and beauty, and it gives me a lot of pleasure to look at and talk to a nice, attractive girl. My daughter's friends don't seem to mind my company and they like a compliment or two.

I can say the same thing to Marian that she says to me. She makes a fool of herself by being jealous of nothing at all. It isn't becoming for a woman of her age to be jealous of a teen-ager. Once when I put my arm around a girl's waist, Marian came along and pulled it away. How does that look to others?

* * *

The Council: We'll agree with both Marian and Henry. Neither of them looks particularly good in this situation.

We see nothing wrong with Henry's enjoyment of youth and beauty, but we wonder whether he finds it necessary to put his arms around a girl's waist to enjoy both. Marian behaved a bit crudely when she pulled his arm away, but we must admit there is nothing like direct action for getting things done.

On the whole, however, we think Marian ought to be a little more tolerant of her husband. She should feel flattered that a man with a keen appreciation of feminine beauty has chosen her above all women as his lifelong companion. His mild flirtation indicates a still youthful spirit where the opposite sex is concerned, and since there is no serious question of his loyalty involved, there is every reason for Marian to be pleased about her husband's buoyancy.

Those with considerable professional experience in marital counseling believe that the most important factor in successful marriage is complete acceptance of the opposite partner just as he or she is. Nearly all of us have some rather serious flaws or weaknesses and these can't be changed unless there is a strong desire for change within the individual.

Many wives and husbands must live with partners who have more serious flaws than Henry's. If they insist upon attempting to change their spouses, they only create much unhappiness for themselves.

Navy Needs Men With Prior Service

Chief Murray J. Emmerich, Medford, Navy recruiter, has announced that the Navy department has recently created new opportunities for men with prior military service to qualify for re-enlistment in the United States Navy.

There is an urgent need for men with previous military training and experience to take over important and responsible assignments which only qualified, well trained former service personnel are equipped for, Emmerich said. Duty assignments are available in every branch of the Navy, and in many geographic localities.

For additional information regarding re-enlistment, interested individuals should contact Chief Emmerich at the Navy recruiting station, post office building, Medford.
