The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez, Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic. Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic.

In a recent booklet written by Helene S. Arnstein and published for 50 cents by the Child Study Association of America...

ing that he or she is somewhat to blame for the parent's illness. He or she should be reassured as to this point. My own feeling is that particular care must be taken in handling the occasional fearful or shy or retiring child who has already inherited some of the parent's tendencies to think in peculiar ways.

Even a girl of 15, when a parent, becomes insane, may want to know what can happen to her and what might happen some day to her children if, later, she should have some.

Also, as can be well imagined, when either the father or the mother has to go to a mental hospital, the problem of keeping the home going is likely to be a terrible one for the children.

Coroner Position Abolished But 21 Will Be Elected

Salem - UPI - Even though the 1959 legislature abolished the position, there are going to be elections for 21 county coroners in the state in November, according to Secretary of State Howell Applegate Jr.

And each newly-elected coroner will serve out a full four year term. The situation is complicated by the fact that no nominations for the positions were made in the primary election.

The legislature had planned to replace the coroners with a medical examiner system under the State Board of Health. There is no indication what will happen to that program.

Applegate explained the election is needed because the coroners will not be abolished until next Jan. 1. He said the old law prevails until the effective date of the new law, thus requiring the regular election procedure for the office.

Applegate said this position was confirmed by a legal opinion he received from the attorney general. Because no candidates have been nominated it will be up to the party central committees to select their candidates before the Aug. 29 deadline.

Independent candidates can also qualify by one of two methods, either by petition of registered voters or by nominating assembly.

Counties in which coroners will be elected in November are Baker, Benton, Clatsop, Columbia, Deschutes, Douglas, Gilliam, Grant, Hood River, Josephine, Lake, Lane, Lincoln, Linn, Morrow, Polk, Sherman, Tillamook, Wallowa, Wheeler and Yamhill.
