Francis Powers Sentenced

U2 Pilot's Term Starts From May 1; No Enmity Felt Toward Russian People

His prison term is to start from last May 1 when he was downed while flying the U2 over Sverdlovsk in Siberia on what the American government acknowledged was an intelligence mission.

"I plead to the court as a human being who is not a personal enemy of the Russian people, who has not ever had any charges brought against him in any court and who deeply regrets what he has done."

After the airman finished the three judges left the room to deliberate.

Prosecutor Rudenko opened the session this morning with a crackling condemnation of U.S. policies. He said the statements and attitudes of U.S. leaders should be considered in the deliberation of Powers' fate. He said "criminal aggressive policies" of the United States were as much on trial as Powers.

Then he referred to Powers as "a dangerous criminal" but said that because of his "sincere repentance" the court should spare his life and sentence him to 15 years. He spoke for an hour and 32 minutes.

Grinev spoke for 45 minutes. He said he was in an "exceptionally difficult and incomparably complicated position."

Grinev said that since Powers had pleaded guilty the defense challenged neither the facts of the charges preferred nor the appraisal of the crime given by Rudenko.

"It is our civic and professional duty to help a defendant who wishes to avail himself of the right to a defense which is guaranteed by the constitution of the Soviet Union," Grinev said.

He urged the court to consider that Powers honestly confessed and that he was under instructions from superiors.

"Powers' flight was not an expression of his own will but the will of aggressive circles behind him, especially the Central Intelligence Agency, a system in which Powers was small fry," Grinev said.

"Masters Should Attend" He said Powers should have been joined in the prisoners' dock by "his masters who ought to attend this trial invisibly." He said that by masters he was referring to the CIA, the American military and "all those which strive to touch off another world war."

The defense attorney said that if Powers was not alone in the dock he "could undoubtedly expect a much milder punishment."

Grinev quoted Powers as telling him privately, "I was deceived by my bosses. I never expected to find such an attitude here."

Grinev said the airman told Soviet interrogators that if he returned to the United States he would be tried and sentenced to "10 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine or both."

The defense lawyer said Powers also said, "I know that I shall be tried in your courts but if I had to return home I should be tried there too. But I am not likely to return home."

Rubber stocks continued firm with Goodyear tacking on around 3/4 and U.S. Rubber a smaller fraction. Anaconda and Kennecott firmed in the coppers.

Civil Rights Bill Sent To Judiciary Committee

Washington — (UPI) — The administration-backed civil rights bill was sent to the Senate Judiciary committee today with a vow from its sponsor he would not let the measure die.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (R-N.Y.) served notice he would not let the measure, which embodies the Republican platform proposals, be pigeonholed by the committee headed by a southerner, Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.).

The measure calls for federal assistance grants to school districts seeking to desegregate and makes permanent the president's committee on equal job opportunities covering government contracts.

The legislation would also permit government lawyers to seek court orders on behalf of people who claim they are being denied their civil rights and would change voting requirements by making a sixth-grade education rather than an eighth-grade education proof of literacy.

Javits told the Senate he would not start any extended debate on the issue now.

But he promised to make it a major issue if the Judiciary committee refuses to act.

Other developments:

Minimum Wage: The Senate-passed bill to raise the minimum wage gradually to $1.25 faced hard going ahead in Congress. The first hurdle was expected in the House where it must be cleared by the conservative-dominated rules committee before it can be sent to House-Senate conferees to try to work out differences between it and a $1.15 measure approved earlier by the House. The Senate version, sponsored by Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy, was passed Thursday.

House: Rep. H. R. Gross, (R-Iowa), waging a one-man battle against the House's inactive week was outmaneuvered again today by Democratic Leader John W. McCormack when he adjourned the House before Gross could object that a majority was not present. Gross did allow the House to take up some procedural matters before adjournment.

Senate: Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson praised the record of the Senate in the pre-election session and said adjournment by Labor Day is still "our goal." He said the accomplishments of the Senate during the nine days they have been in session included the approval of four treaties, committee action on the foreign aid money bill, and the medical care program for the aged, approval of a public works money bill and a minimum wage bill, and committee action on a special emergency fund request for aid to the Congo and Latin America.

Sessions: The Senate was scheduled to work on minor legislation. The House still is waiting for the Senate to catch up with business transacted earlier in the House.

Depressed areas: Democratic Sens. Paul H. Douglas (Ill.) and Jennings Randolph (W. Va.), charged that the Eisenhower administration had blocked chances of providing federal aid to depressed areas this year. They said legislation to help communities with chronic unemployment should be one of the first duties of Congress next year.

Residents Asked To Claim Lost Articles

Lost and found items at the city parks and recreation department are "piling up," according to reports from Robert Haworth, department director.

Haworth again asked that local residents who have lost clothing or play equipment at the city parks and swimming pools claim them at the city hall. There are hundreds of items collected throughout the summer.

The items are to be held until late September, then will either be auctioned by the city or will be given to "charitable organizations," according to Haworth.

Toys not claimed will probably be given to the fire department for Christmas distribution, he added.

The final day of regular swimming will be Sept. 11 due to the opening of school the following day, according to the parks department. Part-time swimming will be continued if "weather permits." No closing date has been set.

Ashland Man Fined On Three Charges

Ashland—Robert F. Schuck, Ashland, today paid $175 for the "bang-up" time he had last Saturday night.

Schuck, 22, of 194 Meade st., appeared before Municipal Judge Richard C. Cottle and pleaded guilty to three charges. He was fined $100 for disorderly conduct, $50 for discharging a firearm in the city limits and $25 for being intoxicated while on a public street.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Happy Camp—Chester Pepper's home at Ti-Bar, 36 miles south of Happy Camp on the Klamath river, was burned to the ground recently.

Ice Cream Trucks Denied Music Boxes

Ice cream trucks can't have music boxes to advertise door-to-door sales without a major code change, according to a decision of the city council executive board.

Councilman James Dunlevy, reporting at the council meeting last night, said that because of this, the request by Gilman's Dairy for such a sound device would have to be denied.

Councilman Al Bradford asked whether it might be possible to allow sound devices as long as they are restricted to soft music.

This would be impossible, Dunlevy said, since such an ordinance would be impossible to police.

LIKE SON, LIKE FATHER
Mineola, N.Y.—(UPI)—Richard Noethiger, 36, was charged Thursday with forging five checks totaling $200 to bail his son out of jail. The son, Eric, 18, was under arrest for forgery.

The defense lawyer said Powers also said, "I know that I shall be tried in your courts but if I had to return home I should be tried there too. But I am not likely to return home."
