Fountain, Lake To Greet People At Floral Area

Salem — A spectacular fountain and lake will greet fairgoers as they enter the floral department at the Oregon State Fair in Salem, Sept. 2 to 10.

The 10-foot fountain, with color lights playing upon the streams of water, and lake, 50 feet in diameter, are being installed by Tony Silvers, Salem landscape architect. A chandelier 14 feet in diameter will hang over the fountain.

Behind the water will be a piece of sculpture by Martha Glogau of Monmouth, Japanese lanterns, chrysanthemums and a 10-foot hedge.

The display will carry out the general theme of the huge floral area, "Treasures of Autumn," and is a radical departure from any entrance in previous years, according to Silvers.

Almost all space for commercial and amateur gardeners has been taken. Superintendent Hazel Bartlett pointed out. At the present time only more commercial dahlias are needed, she said.

Put in Gardens

Fifteen garden clubs are putting in gardens and 39 clubs are displaying table-top arrangements. Both numbers are records.

The adding of amateur classes in gardens has resulted in 12 amateur gardeners exhibiting for the first time. The northwest corner of the department has been turned over to the competitors.

Commercial florists have taken all available garden space with 16 different themes now being carried out in the various gardens.

Three arrangers' guilds are installing special gardens in line with the overall theme. Horizons Northwest of the Eola Hills, west of Salem, is using a jewel room as its variation; Clackamas County Arrangers Guild is using jade, and Floral Artists Guild from the Oregon coast is using seashore treasures.

Rumors in Hollywood Say Actress Secretly Married

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood — (UPI) — One of the less earth-shattered questions going the movietown rounds: Is Yvette Mimieux secretly married?

Rumor has it that the 18-year-old actress is wed secretly to a professor in a Southern California university.

But blonde, blue-eyed Yvette, when asked, giggled uncomfortably and shot a knowing look at her press agent — who also giggled. Then, as if to give one another confidence, they denied the whole thing.

The gossip, however, continues while Yvette either refuses to discuss the matter or says "no" with a twinkle in her eye.

She figures she has enough problems with her name.

Half French on her father's side and half Spanish, Yvette is the newest member of the tongue twisting name brigade.

Unusual Name Helpful

"I believe an unusual name can be a great help to an actress," she said prettily at the M-G-M commissary. "Fortunately, Yvette Mimieux is my real name. Some of the old timers changed theirs."

Among the exotic handles of the past were Theda Bara with the help of a slight transposition reads "Arab Death" backward, Toby Wing, Faye Wray, Gale Storm, Bessie Love, Tallulah Bankhead, Helen Twelvetrees, Bessie Barriscale, Pola Negri and Nita Naldi.

"In each case, whether they were real names or not, I think the names were important in their success," Yvette smiled.

"When I came to metro (where she's currently starring in 'Where the Boys Are') they wanted to call me Sally Jane or something. But I stood my ground and they let me keep my own name."

Name Is Anglicized

She added quickly that her last name is pronounced Mim-Yur in French, but has been anglicized to Mim-ee-oh.

"There are some disadvantages to my name," she said. "I get infuriated when people rush up to ask me if I'm a relative of Sal Mineo."

Yvette is determined to become a motion picture star and vehemently flays television as a waste of time and talent.

"When I perform I want it to be a special event, so people will dress up and go to the theater," she explained. "I don't want my audience sitting at home in their underwear drinking beer."

Now about this secret marriage rumor, Yvette?

"I definitely am not married," she said, but the twinkle was back in her eye, and her press agent giggled again.

Republicans, Democrats Pay Tribute to Former Gov.

By United Press International

Oregon's leading Republicans and Democrats Monday paid tribute to former governor Oswald West, 87, who died in his sleep during the night in Portland.

West, governor of the state from 1911 to 1915, was hailed as one of Oregon's leading figures and members of both political parties said his presence will be missed.

A eulogy to West is even going to be put into the Congressional record, according to Rep. Edith Green, "as a tribute to a great man who has died and is a tribute to a man's work that is still living."

Impact on History

Gov. Mark Hatfield, on vacation in California, said: "Os West was a pioneer in Oregon government who had the courage to do the job that needed to be done. He was fearless and he was a fighter. His administration was filled with worthwhile accomplishments. I know of no single individual whose personality and administration has made more of an impact on Oregon history."

Mrs. Green had this to say of West, a lifelong Democrat: "Os West was a Democrat, and as a Democrat, I am deeply proud of him, but Os West never hesitated to criticize his fellow Democrats when, in his eyes, they went wrong. His devotion to the welfare of Oregon and his concern for the reforms that he established in his tenure as governor went far beyond party lines. Mr. Speaker, Os West, was one of Oregon's authentic great men."

Greatest Democrat

Elmo Smith, former governor of Oregon and candidate for the U.S. Senate, said: "Os West was Oregon's greatest Democrat and one of the giants of Oregon's history. I sought and valued his advice while I was governor and found it was a wonderful privilege and honor to know him personally. His contributions to the good of the state and its people will live in the memory of Oregonians for many generations."

Sec. of State Howell Applegate Jr., said: "It is with deep regret that I learn of the passing of former governor Os West, a staunch public servant. The memorial of his foresight will forever be the broad expanse of public beaches that he preserved for this generation and for generations of Oregonians yet unborn. Os West was a plain talker and a hard fighter in a turbulent era of Oregon's history and his deeds will live on to inspire those who follow his example of generous public service."

Said Howard Belton, state treasurer: "Os West will be remembered as one of Oregon's most remembered governors. He was a man of courage and decision and one of whom we can be justly proud. The entire Oregon coastline will constitute a perpetual monument to his wisdom and foresight."

Two Men Drown Off Humboldt Coast

Trinidad, Calif. — (UPI) — George Cope, 70, Hollywood, and his brother, Stephen, 67, Wilmington, both retired contractors, drowned Monday, raising the drowning toll off the Humboldt county coast in the last two weeks to eight.

The brothers and two other persons were salmon fishing in a 12-foot boat equipped with an outboard motor, which was swamped from behind by a large wave as it was entering the Trinidad harbor.

Survivors were Norman Nicholson, 38, Burbank, and his daughter, Ellen, 12. They and the bodies were picked up by another fishing boat about an hour after the capsizing.

Pasadena, Calif. — (UPI) — The almost infinitesimal pressure of sunlight is forcing the Echo 1 satellite to earth toward fiery end in the atmosphere, a team of scientists reported Monday.

Ashland Man Bound Over to Grand Jury

William Roy Calvary, 58, of 209 Oak st., Ashland, was bound over to the grand jury Monday following a preliminary hearing in district court on charges of threatening to commit a felony.

He is charged with writing a letter Aug. 15 to Dewitt Collins allegedly threatening to kill him, according to the complaint filed by the district attorney's office. Calvary had been arraigned in district court Friday, and waived privilege of having an attorney.

Quotes From the News

By United States International

New York—Lynn Farnol, describing the reaction of composer Richard Rodgers to the news of the death of Oscar Hammerstein II:

"The guy is falling apart."

Manchester, Mass.—Dr. Edward S. Gilfillan Jr., stating that a copper tube containing 13-year-old radioactive substances that disappeared from his laboratory was not dangerous:

"It would take a plumber to open that tube, and once the tube was open, there would be no significant amount of radiation escaping."

Detroit—Clarence L. Johnson designer of the U-2 airplane, stating Russia has no need to send reconnaissance planes over the United States:

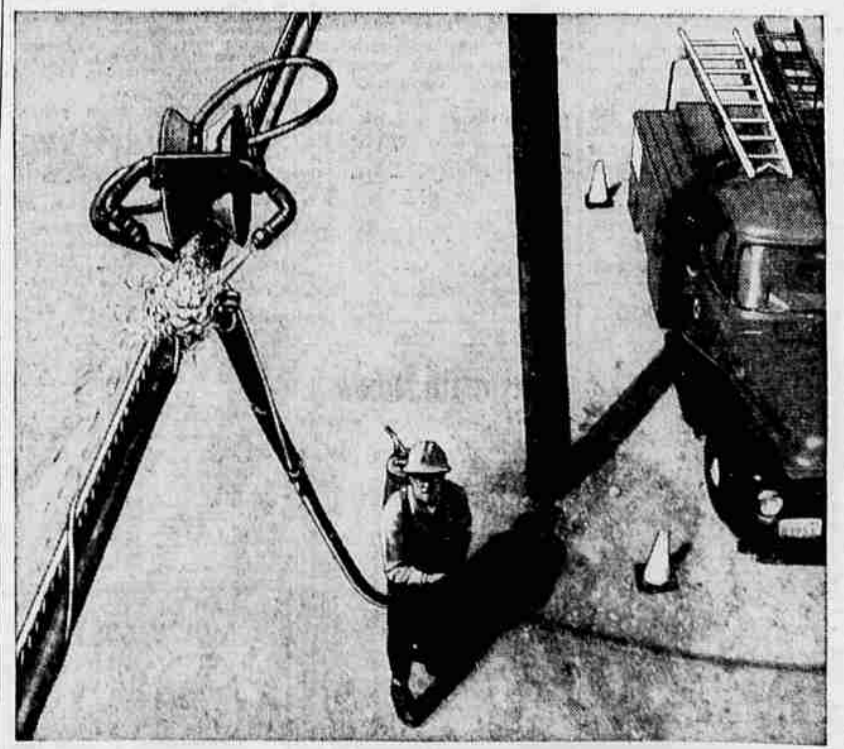

"We tell them everything they can possibly want to know."

Tokyo—Judge William Walsh, discussing his recent visit with his brother, Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh who was imprisoned by the Communist Chinese on charges of spying:

"He is 69 years old, and I fear he'll never serve his full 20-year sentence. We will probably never meet again."

LIBRARY AID EXTENDED

Washington — (UPI) — The House has passed and sent to the White House a bill to continue federal aid for rural library service for five more years. The measure was approved Monday, 190 to 29. It would authorize federal grants of $7.5 million annually to the states to extend and improve library services for the farm areas, towns and villages. States are required to match the federal money.

SOAP BUBBLES help telephone men keep your calls going through without a hitch. Here's how: Many cables that carry your calls are filled with air to keep out harmful moisture. If a leak occurs, the air escapes.

And we can find the leak quickly by covering the cable with a soapy solution and watching for bubbles. This cuts time and costs of repairs and helps us give you more for your telephone dollar.
