

KEGLERS KALL

By Betty Davis

Editor's Note—The following bowling column has been written for the Mail Tribune by Betty Davis, a well-known Rogue valley bowling enthusiast. Starting today it will appear once a week on the sports page and will replace the former bowling news.

There's a change in the weather and as we awake from summer slumber we find fall is just around the corner and with it our fall events. What pleasanter and more enjoyable prospect than joining a fall bowling league? Here's clean healthful exercise in friendly surroundings where good sportsmanship is at its best in one of the finest all-city sports known.

A.J.B.C.
Are you aware of the A.J.B.C. program? This is organized bowling and instruction for young people who have passed their eighth birthday but not reached their 18th. Both Medford Bowling lanes and Roxy Ann lanes feature a full junior bowling program on Saturdays. September 17 is registration day for the fall season. . . . Encourage your youngsters to participate. (They'll be more tolerant of your bowling).

BOWLERAMA

A local teenager, 15-year-old Mariann Furrer, was placed third on the Oregon Journal's senior girls team. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Dixon of the Roxy Ann lanes have taken her to Oswego for the telegraphic playoff this week. Being in Area 4, she and her teammates will compete against teams from Wisconsin, Arizona and Texas. Others comprising the Oregon team are: Carol Posen (K&M Bowl-Longview), Pat Leonhardt (Woodburn Bowl), Carol Sapp (82nd Ave. Bowl, Portland), Carolyn Easty (Umpqua Bowl - Reedsport) and Sherry Cummings (Canby). Should these girls win their match (and we're all rooting for them) they will go to Los Angeles for the Nationals playoff Sept. 1, 2, and 3.

SCHEDULES

After checking with as many league secretaries as possible, the following schedule is being formed and could use more bowlers. Keep this schedule for future reference and let's see all of you placed on the spot most convenient for you.

Women's Village Guards, Happiest Olympic People

Rome—UPI—A retired hairdresser and a movie extra said today they are the happiest men in the Olympic village.

They are the guards who protect the entrance to the closely-fenced women's village. All they have to do all day is watch girls coming in the gate, and girls ambling down the roadway. Once in a while they get off their chairs to shoot the men away.

"No men allowed inside the village," said movie extra Fernando Plini, a stocky young Roman with a devastating smile. "So, believe me, we give the men a hard time. We only let in a few privileged characters, if they ask us very nicely.

"We let the gardener in and two streetcleaners, and the doctors who can prove they have patients. We let the postman inside every hour to get the mail. And we let plumbers in when the plumbing breaks down."

Ex-hairdresser Nazzenore de Leonardis said that he very much enjoys his privileged position as chief chaperone for so many lovely and athletic girls.

"They are all wonderful," said De Leonardis with a deep sigh. "They give us pins and they take our pictures with their arms around us. A charming little girl from Korea just gave me her parasol."

The two Romans said that from time to time they abandon their arduous labors to compare the charms of the girls as they parade by.

"It is very difficult," said Plini, "they are all so big and so blonde and so charming. One minute I am staring into the deep blue eyes of a Hungarian fencer, and I decide that I have never seen a prettier girl. The next minute I am swept away by a charming little Japanese. And then there are the Swedes in their little white shorts, and those beautiful Czechs. Oh, it is so hard to decide."
