Is the Baby Developing Properly?

Often when a baby is slow in developing, the question arises, is something wrong? Then a children's doctor will check the child's accomplishments...

To Size 48

By 16 weeks, the child can hold his head up, with an occasional bobbing downward; he will try to reach a rattle; he will coo, and he will smile at people...

At 28 weeks, or around 7 months, the child will sit, leaning forward. He will reach for a toy and grasp it, and he will transfer a toy from one hand to the other.

At 40 weeks, or about 9 months, the child will sit easily, and he can creep; he may be able to say dada and mama, and perhaps one more word; he can do a few nursery tricks.

At 52 weeks, or 1 year, he may walk with one hand held; he may walk with two hands held; he will try to help when he is being dressed.

At 18 months he may be toddling alone. He will make a tower of two cubes, and he will put 6 cubes into a cup.

At 24 months he may be walking well and seating himself in a small chair. He can make a tower of 3 or 4 cubes. He has added 10 words, and he should have learned toilet control by day.

World Population Up 48 Million

United Nations, N.Y.—World population increased by more than 48 million persons last year, a United Nations report showed Sunday, with 3,000 more persons being born throughout the world every hour.

DUD BOMB KILLS FOUR

Vardoe, Norway—Four British fishing boat were killed near here Sunday night when a dud bomb exploded on deck. The bomb was presumed to be a "dud" dropped during World War II.

Firemen Called Out 92 Times

Medford's city fire department responded to 92 alarms during July and the rural fire district responded to 14, according to Fire Chief Gordon Barker's monthly report.

Of the 92 city alarms turned in, seven were for dwelling fires—three of which were caused by grease catching fire on stoves—20 were for grass fires, six were for vehicle fires, and one was for a bomb scare investigation. There were two false alarms.

City equipment was out on alarms for more than 34 hours during the month. Of the 14 alarms in the rural district, nine were grass fires, one was a box-car fire and two were false alarms.

Rural equipment was out on alarms for seven hours, six minutes. Fire Chief Barker's report states that one pumper and a three-man company spent six mornings burning grass and weeds in high hazard locations. Some 64 hours of drill were conducted for regular firemen and three drills of two hours each were conducted for volunteer firemen.

Fire Marshal Truman Nelson made 53 inspections during July, 18 of which were in business occupancies and three investigations following fires.

Nelson issued 109 orders or recommendations for the removal of fire hazards and 107 hazards were actually removed. Fire permits issued during July totaled 915.

At 3 years the child is riding a tricycle; he is making sentences, and he can tell his name and sex. He feeds himself well; he puts on his socks, and he can unbutton his clothes.

As Dr. Gesell said, small deviations from these standards do not mean that the child is abnormal.

At 40 weeks, or about 9 months, the child will sit easily, and he can creep; he may be able to say dada and mama, and perhaps one more word; he can do a few nursery tricks. He can pull itself up to stand at the rail of his play-pen; he can pick up a small marble, using his thumb and index finger; and he may eat a cracker all by himself.

At 52 weeks, or 1 year, he may walk with one hand held; he may walk with two hands held; he will try to help when he is being dressed. He will try to pile one cube on another, and he will respond when told "to give it to me."

At 18 months he may be toddling alone. He will make a tower of two cubes, and he will put 6 cubes into a cup. He will have learned another 4 or 6 words; he will point; he will express his wants, and he will throw toys on the floor.

At 24 months he should be walking well and seating himself in a small chair. He can make a tower of 3 or 4 cubes. He has added 10 words, and he should have learned toilet control by day. He is chattering in his own jargon, and he is carrying and hugging a doll. With a crayon
