Two Accidents Reported To Police

Two passenger cars and a pickup truck were sandwiched together yesterday when Donald Andrew McCoid, 20, of 1117 South Stage rd., Medford, failed to avoid a rear end collision, according to state police.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. on Highway 99. Ralph Jim Silkwood, 28, of 2471 South Pacific highway, Medford, was attempting to turn left into the Starlite drive-in police said.

A second vehicle, driven by Dale Hughes Pruett, 34, of 2804 Cordelia dr., Medford, had stopped behind him when the third vehicle, driven by McCoid, failed to stop.

McCoid was advised by police that a complaint would be filed against him.

A second accident yesterday extensively damaged a vehicle driven by Robert Leo Bristo, 17, Wauna, Ore., according to state police.

A vehicle driven by Leslie Eugene Libby, 49, of 2980 Hanley rd., Medford, had entered the intersection of Beall lane and Hanley rd., according to police, when Bristo failed to heed a stop sign.

In the collision, Bristo's vehicle rolled and came to rest on its side, police said.

Bristo was advised that a complaint for failure to stop will be filed against him.

Lindsay joined the parade to the altar in February this year when he took for his bride dancer Barbara Frederickson.

Delegates to Forestry Congress Turn Attention to Multiple Use of Forests

By ELMER W. LAMMI
United Press International
Seattle—(UPI)—Delegates to the fifth World Forestry Congress rolled up their sleeves today to get down to the business that brought them here from the four corners of the world.

With formal opening ceremonies and the election of officers behind them, the delegates turned their attention to the technical aspects of the "multiple use" of forest lands, not only for harvesting timber but for water, recreation, forage and wildlife.

Dr. Richard E. McArdle, chief of the U.S. Forest Service, was scheduled to start the ball rolling with a keynote address titled "The Concept of Multiple Use of Forest and Associated Lands—its Values and Limitations."

McArdle's speech was to be followed by the presentation of papers by V. S. Rao, India; P. V. Vassiere, France; and Nestor Altuve Gonzales, Venezuela.

Elected Unanimously
McArdle was unanimously elected president of the congress as the first plenary session drew to a close late Monday.

Unanimously elected honorary presidents were Dr. Elno Saar, professor and director of the Forestry Institute of the University of Helsinki, Finland, and C. R. Rangamanathan, executive director of the Fertilizer Association of India, New Delhi.

Other officers elected Monday included co-presidents John E. B. Harrison, Canada, and Enrique Beltran, Mexico, and vice presidents Walter M. A. n. Germany; Hitoshi Yamasaki, Japan; Eric Wilhelm Hojer, Sweden; the Earl of Radnor, United Kingdom, and Anatole Borisovich Zhukov, Soviet Union.

Benson Gives Address
The opening address was given by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, who challenged the nearly 2,000 delegates to make the world's forest resources contribute to "peace and plenty."

"The pressure of people upon forest resources is a rapidly growing problem," Benson told the delegates. "It is one of the most compelling challenges of our time."

Ceremonies Monday included the presentation of United States and United Nations stamps honoring the congress. A crew from the Seattle post office was on hand to apply first day cancellations to letters bearing the new stamps.

Carole Tregoff Testifies First In Surprise Move; Admits Love for Finch

Los Angeles—(UPI)—Auburn-haired Carole Tregoff, 23, took the stand in her defense Monday and expressed love for Dr. R. Bernard Finch as he sat with bowed head and two jurors slept.

The former model and now codefendant in a murder retrial walked to the witness box in a surprise move following an unusually brief opening statement by her attorney, Donald Bringgold: "We expect the evidence to prove the innocence of Miss Carole Tregoff."

Courtroom observers had expected Finch, 40, to be the first defense witness.

Denies Death Plot
Giving her answers in a polite "yes, sir, no, sir," fashion, the mistress of the handsome physician denied she had entered any plot to take the life of Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch. She told how she was employed by Finch as a medical secretary.

Miss Tregoff testified she first dated the society doctor Feb. 26, 1957. Three days later, she said, they went to dinner together. The first rendezvous had been for lunch.

"What feeling did you have for him at that time?" Bringgold asked.

"I loved him very much," she replied.

They Rented Apartment
Miss Tregoff went on to relate how she and Finch rented an apartment in Monterey Park so that their being together would cause Mrs. Finch no embarrassment.

Grant Cooper, Finch's attorney had told the court earlier that Finch and his wife had a marital amity in which each could date as they chose.

When court adjourned for the day, Miss Tregoff was explaining her contact with John Patrick Cody in Las Vegas, where Finch had sent her so she wouldn't become "mixed up" in a divorce action filed by his wife.

She testified she agreed to pay Cody $1,350 if the ex-convict would follow Mrs. Finch and get evidence against her to balance what the socialite already had against Finch and Carole.

Backstairs: Ike Reminds Everyone He's Still Boss

By TOM NELSON
United Press International
Washington—(UPI)—President Eisenhower may be in a back seat in the political campaign but he doesn't want folks to forget he'll remain behind the wheel at the White House until next Jan. 20.

This theme is implicit in remarks the President has dropped here and there in recent weeks, as Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy have entered the opening stages of their contest for Eisenhower's job.

Take Eisenhower's off-the-cuff speech a month ago at a breakfast meeting during the Republican national convention in Chicago.

He was welcomed as the party hero he is. But he was treated almost as an elder statesman, the big talk in Chicago was the platform pact negotiated by Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Gently but firmly, Eisenhower reminded his audience that the party has a third factor to consider in trying to chart its future, namely, Dwight D. Eisenhower himself. As he put it, this made for sort of a "three-cornered" GOP.

Puts Oar In
"You cannot obviously put out a platform that tells exactly what Republicans are going to do in the future unless..."

til there is some effort to make sure that that is exactly what I am going to do," he said.

The President has held three news conferences since he returned here from Newport, R. I., and each time he has emphasized a variation of this theme that he is still someone to be reckoned with.

He was asked Aug. 10 whether he would spend more time cooking up legislative strategy with Nixon, now that the vice president was running for his job. Eisenhower said he couldn't see how Nixon could be drawn any more closely than he is into the "consultative process," adding:

His Responsibility
"This is my responsibility and will be until noon January 20th and as long as any question is put up before me involving what I believe is for the good of the country, I'm going to decide it according to my judgment."

One week later Eisenhower called himself somewhat wistfully "just a spectator in a way" in the Nixon-Kennedy presidential campaign. But he said he wanted to get this straight:

"I necessarily remain as President of the United States, and I am responsible for every decision taken up, as I say, until January 20, on the actions of this government."

And last week the President seemed a bit piqued when a reporter asked him to cite some of the big decisions which Nixon has participated in since their administration took office. Eisenhower said he's got all sorts of advisers, including Nixon, but "no one participates in the decisions."

"No one can make a decision except me, if it is in the national executive area," he said.

A newsman later inquired whether the President could give an example of a major idea of Nixon's that Eisenhower had adopted, in his role as "The Decider." The President then delivered himself of an answer which still has many people in the capital wondering:

"If you give me a week," he said, "I might think of one."

Young Mother Charged With Poisoning Son

Pearisburg, Va.—(UPI)—A young mother of four, who reportedly vowed to kill her children before allowing her estranged husband to obtain custody, today was charged with murder in the arsenic poisoning of her 2-year-old son.

Sheriff John Hopkins said he learned Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Giles, 29, Pearisburg, had told relatives in West Virginia "before she would see her husband get the kids she would kill them."

Mrs. Giles was charged with murder Monday night after Terry Giles, who would have been three in October, died at a Pearisburg hospital before he could be admitted.

Poisoned Breakfast
She also was accused of slipping the deadly poison into the breakfasts Monday of her other children, Sandra Sue, 10; John Russell, 9; and Teresa Ann, 5.

Hopkins said the woman, held without bond, was calm and steadfastly denied killing the boy.

Teresa Ann, reported critical after being admitted to the hospital, was reported recovering satisfactorily today. The hospital said the other children rested quietly.

'Like Cats and Dogs'
A neighbor said the couple "had fought like cats and dogs" and the sheriff said they hadn't lived together in over a year.

Hopkins said, however, that Giles, also 29, visited the home last Saturday.

Giles, who lives in Narrows, is a tannery worker in Bluff City. He was questioned Monday night, but was not charged.

Hearing Starts On Ship, Ferry Crash

New York—(UPI)—A Coast Guard hearing was scheduled today into a collision between a coastal freighter and a ferry-boat on the fog-shrouded Hudson river.

One woman was hospitalized and 12 other persons shaken up Monday when the 503-foot freighter and the ferry collided just off the New York City pier of the Lackawanna railroad ferry. The ferry was en route from Hoboken, N.J., about a mile across the river, at the time of the accident.

About 200 passengers were aboard when the freighter ripped a jagged 60-foot hole in the ferry's upper deck to a point two feet below the water line. The gash was 30 feet across at its widest point.

Bing's Son Gary Picks A Showgirl

Las Vegas—(UPI)—Gary Crosby, the last bachelor among crooner Bing Crosby's four grown sons, is going to follow the lead of his brothers and marry a Las Vegas showgirl.

Blonde dancer Barbara Stuart made the announcement Monday night shortly after Gary called her long distance from Reno and proposed.

The marriage of Gary to Miss Stuart would make a clean sweep of the Crosbys for Las Vegas showgirls.

Dennis started the ball rolling in the summer of 1958 when he married showgirl Pat Sheehan. He was followed several months later by his twin brother, Philip, who married showgirl Sandra Jo Drummond.

Fire Destroys Mill In NW Oregon Town

Mist. Ore.—(UPI)—Fire early today destroyed the Bracy Neil sawmill at this northwestern Oregon community.

Little was saved in the flames, which burned the mill to the ground. Forestry fire crews from Columbia and Clatsop counties fought the fire. Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined, and there was no early estimate of damage.

Portland Chamber To Support Measure

Portland—(UPI)—The Portland Chamber of Commerce announced today it would support a ballot measure this November which would authorize $39 million for state college facilities.

The chamber pointed to a "zooming" college student population, especially at the University of Oregon, as complicating an already tight housing situation. The measure, Proposition 6, would enable the state board of higher education to utilize the credit of the state to issue bonds, which would pay for themselves without cost to the taxpayer, the chamber said.

Bend Hotel To Have Permanent Guests

Bend—(UPI)—Pilot Butte Inn here is being remodeled to accommodate about 50 permanent guests, according to Jack Corbett, operator of the inn.

He said the three-story Swiss chalet type hotel will continue to accommodate about 100 transient guests.

One wing is to be set aside for retirement age guests, and Corbett said, if demand warrants it, another wing will be constructed for the same purpose.
