

More National Seashore Parks Urged for System

New York — Though open only eight years, the Cape Hatteras National seashore is so popular that a dozen more similar units are being urged for the National Park system. So reports Don Wharton in "Our First National Seashore," a September Reader's Digest article.

Nearly half a million visitors a year are now attracted to the 70 miles of shore preserved in its natural state.

Some 194 areas have been suggested as possible National seashores and the National Park service has recommended one more on the Atlantic, five on the Pacific, one on the Gulf coast and five along the Great Lakes. With the approval of the President, the secretary of the interior has asked legislation to set up National seashores at three of these sites: on Cape Cod, on Padre Island off Texas, and at Oregon Dunes, about halfway between California and Washington.

"All three would make marvelous National seashores," writes Wharton. "We should move quickly to set up these three and we should create at least one on the Great Lakes — the nation's longest shore line. We should plan for still more until our great system of National parks is matched by an equally great system of National seashores."

Ashland Council Decides To Hold Dinner Meeting

Ashland — The Ashland city council Tuesday night decided to hold a dinner meeting.

The council made its decision after a discussion of the professional "planning consultant" scheduled to arrive here soon. Attending the dinner meeting will be members of the council, the city's planning and economic development commissions and Herman Kehrl, director of the state's municipal research bureau.

No date was set for the session, but the council decided it would be the best way to inform Kehrl of the city's desires related to planning and, if possible, of the order it would like to have things done.

Passes Resolution

In other business, the council passed a resolution giving Jack D. Humphrey and William A. Sutton, owners of the Mark Anthony hotel, a 90-day option to buy the city warehouse property for $35,000. The resolution stipulates that a service station may not be constructed on the property.

Another resolution passed was one authorizing repair of sidewalks on North and East Main sts. from the intersection of Siskiyou Blvd. and East Main to the intersection of North Main and Church and Helman sts.

Property owners concerned will have 10 days after publication of the resolution to complete the repairs. If they are not completed, the city will perform the work and bill the property owners.

The council also passed an ordinance permitting the temporary blocking or closing of city streets under certain conditions, such as during performances at the Oregon Shakespearean Festival theater.
