Big Names in World Crisis Will Attend General Assembly

United Nations, N.Y.—(UPI)—Two more world leaders not particularly friendly to the United States have added their names to the list of the invited who will attend the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

The list, headed by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev of Russia, reads like a who's who of persons involved in world crisis in one way or another. Included are the bosses of all nine Communist powers in the U.N., with the probability that the Red East Germans will slip a man in, too. Also coming are leaders of Arab and African states, Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, decided Saturday to come, and United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser sent his own name.

The only big absentees from the list are President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, French President Charles de Gaulle, Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru and Red Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai.

The Western Big Three are avoiding Khrushchev, Nehru has a date to visit Pakistan. Chou would have to get special permission to attend—and the United States would oppose that.

The United States did not ask any of the national leaders to attend. Its opposition to such diplomatic grandstanding is such that Khrushchev has been restricted to Manhattan Island for the duration of his stay.

But it cannot keep them out. It has treaty obligations to permit any accredited U.N. delegate free entry. And any chief of government or state can head his delegation to the world organization.

For the Communist bloc, Albania will be represented by Mehmet Shehu, the premier known to Albanians as the "butcher of Albania."

Bulgaria will be represented by Communist Party First Secretary Todor Zhivkov.

Czechoslovakia is sending President Antonin Novotny who doubles as party first secretary.

Kadar to Attend

Hungary's Janos Kadar, a deputy premier but actually the ruler of the country, is en route.

Poland's delegation is headed by Wladyslaw Gomulka, First Secretary of the Polish Workers (Communist) party.

Romania is being represented by Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej, party secretary-general.

The Soviet Union delegation includes Nikita S. Khrushchev, whose title is chairman of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers, and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The Soviet Ukraine, a separate U.N. member, is represented by Nikolai V. Podgorny, a member of the Ukrainian Supreme Soviet (parliament) and a deputy in the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet.

Indonesia's President Sukarno, at the suggestion of Khrushchev, will attend the session. An avowed neutralist, Sukarno loves to travel.

Also coming are Premier Sekou Toure, of Guinea, Moscow-trained and presently visiting in Red China; and President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, an American-educated neutralist who sees himself as a leader in the emergence of the dark continent.

There is a possibility that Fidel Castro may come to head the Cuban delegation. His presence undoubtedly would be welcomed by Khrushchev who was believed planning a major "peace offensive" pegged to disarmament.

Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion opposes traveling to the U.N., but the presence of Israel's arch-enemy, Nasser, in the councils of the World Organization may change his mind, according to reports from Tel Aviv.

Quotes From the News

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
Bogota, Colombia—Colombian Foreign Minister Julio C. Turbay Ayala, asserting that Cuba's proposed Latin American development plan offers no details but merely demands a huge sum of money:
"It appears that the difference for Cuba between 'counter-revolutionary' and 'revolutionary' is the amount of money to be solicited from the United States."

London—David Payne, 28, explaining that he quit his job as Princess Margaret's footman because he wasn't paid enough:
"It was a prestige job, you know. But you have to pay for that nowadays."

New York—Blind humorist James Thurber, who made his Broadway debut Monday night in his own play, declaring that he wasn't nervous:
"I've been acting for 60 years, in living rooms, front yards, bars . . . I'm just as much of a ham as any of them are."

Hollywood—TV writer producer Frank Gruber, stating that TV Westerns are on the way out and mysteries and suspense stories are on the way in, but adding that the situation will change:
"In my opinion Westerns always will be with us. It wouldn't surprise me to see them make a TV comeback in five years or so—and I'm all for it."

Fresh Green Beans Supreme

The snap bean is a green bean whose forefathers were string beans, but that was a long time ago. Green beans have long been stringless, tender and snappy.

We used to cook them two hours with salt pork. We now quick-cook them only 15 to 18 minutes in a minimum of water to keep them crisp-tender and full flavored. Then we season them with butter, salt and pepper; with a golden cheese sauce or, when we want something really superlative, we fix them like this for six servings.

- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash of black pepper
- 1 pound French style cooked fresh or frozen snap beans

Wash and slice mushrooms (stems and caps) and measure. There should be two cups. Sauté in butter five minutes or until tender, stirring frequently. Remove mushrooms from butter and stir in flour. Add sour cream and mix until smooth. Blend in mushrooms, salt and black pepper. Pour over hot cooked beans. Serve hot. Garnish with parsley.

Broiled Honeyed Grapefruit

Here is a sophisticated starter for any meal. Cut large grapefruit in halves. Loosen pulp from rind and partitions, using sharp knife or grapefruit knife. Spread cut surfaces with creamed honey or honey butter. Broil about 10 minutes or until top is bubbly and edge of grapefruit turns a light brown. Serve hot.

Easy Spiced Peaches

Empty a No. 2 1/2 can cling peach halves into a sauce pan. Add a stick of cinnamon, one teaspoon whole cloves and two tablespoons cider vinegar. Simmer 10 minutes and let stand in refrigerator for several hours or overnight. So easy, so good.

New Salad Dressings Feature Peanut Butter

There's an abundance of peanut butter in the markets and there's likely to be peanut butter on every pantry shelf in homes where there are growing boys and girls. Peanut butter has long been noted for its flavor with fruit. A fruit salad dressing with peanut butter as its base brings out the flavors of any fruit combination.

Fruit Salads
For a fluffy peanut butter dressing, blend one-half cup smooth or crunchy peanut butter with one-half cup marshmallow fluff. Gradually fold in one-half cup pineapple juice and one tablespoon lemon juice, stirring to blend. Add dash of salt. Store in covered container in refrigerator. Recipe makes 1 1/3 cups. Serve it with these fruit combinations:

—Canned or fresh pears halved and filled with finely chopped fresh fruit mixture and bits of mint.

—Melon rings filled with grapes, bananas and orange sections which have been marinated in French dressing.

—Pineapple, apple, celery and fresh peach with cream cheese balls.

Vegetable Salads

Enhance vegetable salads with peanut butter dressing made by blending a tablespoon of peanut butter into your favorite French dressing. Toss with greens or with these vegetable combinations:

—Watercress, escarole, radishes, green onions and tomato wedges.

—Lettuce, finely shredded cabbage, hard cooked eggs, sliced green pepper.

—Thinly sliced tomatoes, cucumbers and shredded carrots on a bed of greens.

Bake Bananas

Peel and cut bananas in half lengthwise. Arrange in shallow baking dish. Combine one tablespoon honey and one teaspoon lemon juice over each banana. Bake in preheated hot oven, 400 degrees, 10 to 15 minutes. Very good as either meat accompaniment or dessert.

Adequate Supplies of 'Better Breakfast' Foods

Good health and good looks begin at the breakfast table. It's smart to eat a good breakfast. There's a mid-morning magic in breakfast that is especially vital to teenagers. That's what the nutritionists say.

Essentials in basic breakfast are fruit, cereal with milk, bread and butter and a beverage. Pluses for genuine enjoyment, vitality and energy are many.

Breakfast Suggestions
Readily available at reasonable cost are infinite varieties of fresh, canned, dried and frozen fruits; eight varieties of fresh, canned and frozen fruit and vegetable juices. There are eight favored ways of fixing eggs for breakfast and countless others. Bacon, dried beef, ham and pork sausage are popular breakfast meats. Cereals, ready-to-eat and for quick cooking, are beyond numbering . . . with new ones showing up almost every day. There are many hearty canned soups to be served hot with crisp cereal bits as garnish. We counted 24 kinds of

100-Degree Heat Bakes California

By United Press International
A 100-degree heat wave and widespread smog in southern California today challenged a weakened Hurricane Donna for attention.

While Maine weather stations reported Hurricane Donna heading away from the east coast after a three-day rampage, observers in California's San Fernando valley predicted temperatures up to 108 degrees.

Heavy smog throughout southern California Monday left eyes smarting and throats sore. The irritation was coupled with highs of 108 at Reseda, 106 at Fontana and 103 at South Pasadena. Los Angeles, with a high of 99 degrees, recorded its eighth 90-degree day for September.

Weather across the rest of the country was generally fair except for showers in the Great Lakes, upper Ohio valley and northern plateau.

The weather bureau said heavy rain and squalls would continue today up to 200 miles from the center of Hurricane Donna. The central Mississippi valley east to the Appalachians, Florida and the west along a band from Idaho south to Arizona could expect showers.

Airplane Crash Victims Identified

Jackson, Wyo.—(UPI)—Identification of five Washington persons, killed last July 15 in the crash of a private plane in the Wyoming wilderness, was made Monday.

The announcement was made by Wyoming Aeronautics Director Marvin Stevenson after officials landed at the crash site about 60 miles northeast of here and examined the wreckage.

Killed in the crash were Jack Ferguson, Longview, Wash., the pilot, the Rev. and Mrs. Paul Woodworth, of Ridgefield, Wash., and the Rev. and Mrs. Gary Thompson of Woodland, Wash.

COLOR CONSCIOUS

Louisville, Ky.—(UPI)—When a woman buys a dress, she has to buy a dozen other things to match it. Now she is supposed to buy matching booze, too. A liquor company here suggests that dinner hostesses should match the color of the liquors with the color of their gowns.

breakfast breads, coffee cakes, doughnuts and other nourishing sweetstuffs in the local bakery department. Spreads included butter, margarine, peanut butter, honey butter, jams, jellies, marmalades and syrups. Breakfast beverages, besides milk, tea and coffee, include cocoa, instant cocoa, and a galaxy of others.

September Plentiful

Broiler-fryers rate the feature spot on the United States Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for September in our area. Other foods on the list are: turkeys, peanut butter, melons, lamb, and late summer vegetables.

Melons come in for special attention. They are excellent in both quality and supply. Watermelons, cantaloups and honeydews are well known to practically every consumer. Less familiar are the Casaba and Cranshaw melons, and September will provide an opportunity for consumers to get better acquainted with them.

Shoppers can expect to find good quality seasonal vegetable favorites such as corn, tomatoes, peppers, green beans, cucumbers, several kinds of squash, carrots, cabbage, lettuce, eggplant, onions and potatoes.

Small Worlds Around Us

By Lynn M. Watkins

World's Most Dangerous Wild Animal

Regardless of where you live there is, probably within a short distance of your home, one or more of the most dangerous wild animals alive on this earth today.

An animal you seldom see. One that you hear little about, but one that actually kills more people and does more damage every year than all the sharks, wolves, crocodiles and lions put together.

We could add to the list, the rattlesnakes and all others combined. What's more, these dangerous wild animals outnumber the human inhabitants.

The ancestors of these ferocious beasts were a moving tide of danger. Moving out of Asia 300 years ago they still are exercising more influence on the lives of modern man than any other exodus that ever swept across the land. It was an army of "four-footers"; a horde that is still infiltrating nearly every nation and every land. It was an army of rats; the brown and the black.

Killed More People

Rats have killed more people, caused more damage than all the other wild animals of the world since time began. We read glaring tales of people being killed or injured by sharks.

We publicize the isolated attack of a bear on some unfortunate human. We scream in indignation at a child clawed by cat or dog. We yell our heads off that alligators should not be allowed to live because it is suspected one has chewed a human.

But we ignore the fact that thousands of people die every year from rat bite or a result of diseases caused by these animals. The list of diseases directly attributable to rats, and the fleas that ride on them, is long and terrible. The actual cost of feeding these animals is beyond calculation.

Rats made a nightmare of the middle ages when millions of humans died of rat-borne bubonic plague and the many other diseases transmitted by rat fleas. Entire populations were killed. It could happen again.

Today there are probably more rats in the United States than there are people. At least 200 million at the most conservative estimate, and so strangely enough the human

REMAINS ON JOB

Washington—(UPI)—Gen. Lauris Norstad conferred for 90 minutes with President Eisenhower Monday and said afterward he had no intention of resigning as NATO military commander.

San Francisco

San Francisco—(UPI)—Hide dealer Paul A. Blasinger can be confident police will go all out to find the culprit who broke into his office and ransacked it Monday. Blasinger also is a police commissioner.
