City Recreation Department Receives $500 Cash Donation

A $500 cash donation from the Medford Rotary club to the parks and recreation department was turned over to City Recreation Supervisor Ken Lyons at last night's parks and recreation commission meeting.

Commission Chairman Russ Jamison, who made the presentation on behalf of the Rotary, said the money could be used at the discretion of the commission.

One suggestion for its use, Jamison said, would be to use it to start a development fund for recreation facilities at Jackson park.

Commission Member Mrs. Edith Eden told the commission, in other business last night, that a preliminary building plan for a new Senior Citizens Center is in the process of being drawn up.

When the plan is completed it will be presented to the Senior Citizens' group for alterations and corrections. The group is contemplating starting a building fund, she said, for acquisition of a new building.

Now Use City Building - The group is now using a city-owned building near the shopping center, and it is declared to be too small and inadequate for their activities.

Member Herb Partridge narrated some slides last night depicting the progress being made on the modernistic play apparatus now being constructed by Charles H. Forrester in Hawthorne park.

Framework for all four of the items being constructed - turtle, horses, sand-pool and play wall - is in place and several of the objects are nearing completion, he said.

Jamison noted that the city is "certainly getting our money's worth down there." Actually the apparatus is not costing the city anything, except some manpower. Money for the project has been provided through donations from various service clubs and fraternal organizations in the city.

Postpones Action - The commission postponed until its next meeting any action on a request from a group of tennis players for the city to bear the cost of lighting local tennis courts.

At an earlier meeting the commission had received a petition, bearing the signatures of some 40 persons, asking that the city provide lighting for local tennis courts.

It was noted by the commission that the coin boxes now used to furnish lights for the tennis courts, located at the Medford High school, are usually out of order because of destruction by vandals.

Commission Member Jim Zack also pointed out that the courts are often monopolized by two or four persons in the evenings. These persons get to the tennis courts first, he said, and then use the courts for hours without letting other persons have a chance to use them.

Suggest Game Limit - He suggested that a game or set limit be put on use of the courts by any two persons so that more players would get a chance to play.

Jamison appointed Zack and Commission Member Bill Singler to a committee to study all aspects of the problem and then to report back at the next meeting.

Lyons, who was sitting in on the meeting for Department Director Bob Haworth, said the city had received several requests from persons who would like day-time recreation provided for adults, especially those who work swing-shifts.

He had contacted the YMCA, he said, and they have made their facilities available for a fee. Lyons said the city will now find out how many persons are interested in taking advantage of such a program.
