

THOSE WHO REMEMBER the old MGM movie, "National Velvet," will also recall an extraordinarily beautiful 12-year-old named Elizabeth Taylor, whose memorable performance seemed as unmatchable as it was unforgettable.

Which is precisely why a dark-haired, blue-eyed, 13-year-old girl named Lori Martin is turning everyone's head. For one thing, television is launching a new series based on the movie, in which Lori will play Velvet Brown. For another thing, she has the looks, the acting ability, and the determination to follow Liz's footsteps all the way to the top.

Like Liz, she is sensitive, loves animals (Lori is also writing a book about them), and has been an excellent horseback rider for years. Unlike Liz, who had only minor success prior to her big break, Lori has studied drama and acted steadily on TV for the past six years.

Perhaps this is why she has an uncanny poise that often makes her seem more like 23 than 13. She claims, for example, she didn't really want to do a TV series because it was so "restricting" and avows: "The only reason I accepted 'National Velvet' is because I love horses so much..."

What's more, Lori already has developed a sense of humor that will help keep her down-to-earth while her star rises. For instance, when asked whom she most wanted to be like, she quipped, "John Wayne." And in reply to the inevitable, "Do you like boys?" she flashed a mischievous smile and said, "Sure, but I like men better."

With such style, so early, how can Lori Martin miss?

her startling resemblance to Liz is not the only reason she was chosen for TV role. Already, she has established herself as an actress and an individual who bears watching.
