By United Press International
Two persons died Sunday as a result of Saturday traffic accidents to bring Oregon's traffic deaths since Friday afternoon to at least six.

Walter Wyatt Morris, 60, Portland, and Thomas Bryant, 21, Myrtle Point, died Sunday from injuries received in separate accidents Saturday.

Morris died in a hospital after being struck by a car Saturday night. He became Portland's 39th traffic fatality of the year.

Bryant, who was stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., died Sunday from injuries received in a one-car accident Saturday five miles west of Myrtle Point on Highway 42. Bryant was the third person to die in the accident. John H. Fish, 21, and Robert M. Van Horn Jr., 18, both of Myrtle Point, died instantly. State police said the car in which the men were riding, failed to negotiate a turn and careened off a 65-foot cliff.

Bernard Raymond Masters, 68, and his daughter, Helen Catherine Bixel, 36, both of Santa Ana, Calif., were killed Friday near Gold Hill when their car collided with a log truck.

Another Oregonian, Robert Gillette, 71, Cascade Locks, was killed Friday night near Emigrant Gap, Calif., when struck by a car.

Campaign Quotes

By United Press International
Sen. John F. Kennedy:
In reviewing the first 15 days of his active campaigning: "We have been telling people that the freedom of the world is at stake and they have listened. I am encouraged, but I think we've got a long, hard fight. I think the race is very close now."

On the subject of his Catholic religion: (there is) "still a great deal of concern" (over it).

At Raleigh, N.C., on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's U.N. visit: "If he (Khrushchev) requested to see Mr. Nixon and myself, both of us, separately or whatever way... I would certainly be willing to attempt to meet him. I don't think that either one of us should meet him unless we both do."

"This is really a matter for the President of the United States. President Eisenhower has been entrusted with the conduct of foreign policy in this country until the end of his term, and, therefore, I think that this decision and the reaction of the United States to Mr. Khrushchev's visit should be guided by the good judgment of the President. So I will stick with his opinion on that matter."

Vice President Richard M. Nixon:
At St. Paul:
"I think it is time that we be done with the practice of cutting the pride and support of America by endlessly forecasting doom and gloom."
My political opponents have apparently been looking through different eyes.
"Where I have seen strength they seem to have feared weakness. Where I have seen idealism, character and appreciation of our nation's ideals, they seem unready to have feared aimlessness, even shiftlessness, and therefore a clear need for management of our people from Washington, D.C."
"Let's stick to the facts, not fancy, in this campaign. And let's have pride and faith in our country, our cause and our future."
On the subject of dealing with the Communists: "They will respect us if we negotiate with hard-headed realism, and we will accomplish far more than by being naive as to how their conduct would be."

Market Awaiting UN Developments As List Backs Off

New York —UPB— Stocks sold off in the early trading today as Wall Street awaited developments in the United Nations.

Technicians expect the market to pay more attention than usual to foreign affairs this week. The gathering of world leaders at the U.N. is seen as loaded with explosive possibilities.

The list backed away almost from the opening with the appearance of minus signs predominating. Steels, autos, some rails, electronics and metals were among the heavy losers.

U. S. Steel led the steels with a loss of more than 1 while others in this group were mostly steady.

International Business Machines fell more than 3 in the electronics where Texas Instruments lost around 3, Siegler a point and Beckman near-

Cheers, Catcalls Greet Castro on New York Arrival

New York —UPB— Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, greeted with alternating cheers and catcalls, relaxed in a heavily guarded hotel suite today and waited for his first face-to-face meeting with Communist boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Castro virtually isolated himself in his third-floor quarters at the downtown Shelburne Hotel, only a few blocks from the United Nations where the revolutionary leader speaks a week from today.

Wearing his usual military field uniform and smoking a black cigar, the bearded Castro arrived Sunday, the first of nearly a score of anti-American leaders due at the historic United Nations General Assembly meeting which opens Tuesday.

"I want to salute the people of the United States," Castro said in a hoarse voice at the airport. "All I have to say I will say to the United Nations."

Cause Traffic Jam
His arrival at Idlewild Airport touched off a wild scramble among about 3,000 pro-Castro demonstrators who cheered, tried to crawl over a fence and then created a huge traffic snarl when they tried to form a motorcade to follow their hero to his Manhattan hotel.

Along the route to the hotel, Castro was greeted by boos and catcalls as well as more

Mrs. Neuberger Calls for Bonneville Act Revision

By United Press International
Mrs. Maurice Neuberger, on a campaign tour of eastern Oregon with other Democratic candidates, today called for revision of the Bonneville act of 1937 to bring it "up to productive needs of the Columbia basin for the 1960s."

She said Bonneville Power administration should be given authority for self-financing of new electric facilities out of power revenues and a "public utility responsibility" to supply the power needs of distributors, whether their customers receive service through publicly-owned or privately-owned systems.

Mrs. Neuberger, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, was traveling in eastern Oregon on a chartered bus with other candidates include Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton; Ward Cook, state treasurer candidate; Monroe Sweetland, secretary of state candidate, and Rep. Al Ullman.

Elmo Smith, Mrs. Neuberger's Republican rival for the Senate, made an airplane campaign swing through eastern
