Nothing New In Ike's Speech, Russian Asserts

Khrushchev Plans Reply on Friday

United Nations, N.Y.—(UPI)—A high Russian official said today there was "nothing new" in President Eisenhower's policy speech to the U.N. General Assembly today and that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would deliver a full reply to it Friday. Most of the delegates had received Eisenhower's appeal for African economic and technical aid and an end to Soviet meddling in the Congo soberly and quietly, glad that it was comparatively free of cold war propaganda. The first reaction was a welcome from most of the five-point African program and his expression of solid support for the policies of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, who has been under almost continuous Soviet attack for three months. Khrushchev, who listened without reaction and did not applaud, was not available for comment. But a Kremlin official close to the Soviet premier said the speech was "moderate in tone."

Highlights of President Eisenhower's address to the General Assembly of the United Nations may be found on page 2A.

Summary of East-West disarmament negotiations broken off last June.

—He urged adoption of a "food-for-peace" plan to aid needy nations by supplying surplus foods under the auspices of the United Nations. The President, expressing support for U.N. efforts to aid the crisis-ridden Congo, said the U.N. has been "flagrantly attacked by a few nations which wish to prolong strife for their own selfish reasons."

Must Resist Pressures

He warned that the United Nations must resist "outside pressures"—obviously from the Soviet bloc—that imperil the freedom of newly emerging African states. "Any nation, seduced by glittering promises into becoming a cat's paw for an imperialistic power, thereby undermines the United Nations and places in jeopardy the independence of itself and others," Eisenhower warned.

FIVE-POINT PLAN OFFERED TO AID AFRICAN LANDS

United Nations, N.Y.—(UPI)—President Eisenhower today called on Russia to stop meddling in The Congo and to help the United Nations carry out a five-point program he proposed to assist new African nations to build in freedom.

He said Soviet secrecy added to the pressing danger of "war by miscalculation" and urged the Soviets to join in disarmament talks designed to halt the global arms race and prevent its spread into space.

The Chief Executive suggested that the United Nations declare the moon and other celestial bodies "off limits" for any warlike activities and ban weapons of mass destruction from outer space.

These were among 15 proposals the President made in a "state-of-the-world" address to the U.N. General Assembly attended by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and a host of other foreign leaders.

Supports United Nations — Other highlights of the President's speech:

—He warned that the United Nations should not be used as a propaganda forum by any country, and voiced all-out U.S. support for the world body.

—He called for immediate Soviet-American talks to discuss ways to halt production of fissionable materials for nuclear weapons, and for resumption of East-West disarmament negotiations broken off last June.

—He urged adoption of a "food-for-peace" plan to aid needy nations by supplying surplus foods under the auspices of the United Nations.

"Any nation, seduced by glittering promises into becoming a cat's paw for an imperialistic power, thereby undermines the United Nations and places in jeopardy the independence of itself and others," Eisenhower warned.

The five-point African program included these points:

—No interference in the African countries' internal affairs by subversion, force or propaganda by any U.N. member.

—U.N. help in training security forces for the Congo and other new nations without a "wasteful and dangerous" arms race.

—Backing for the U.N. program by "substantial" cash pledges to raise a $100 million Congo emergency fund.

—An increased economic aid program to help African countries develop their industrial potential.

—An all-out U.N. program to help the Africans develop wide educational activities.

The President also declared the United States is ready to submit to any workable, reciprocal inspection plan to achieve disarmament. He called for a shutdown of plants making fissionable materials for nuclear weapons in this country and Russia.

The Chief Executive, who planned to confer later today with President Tito of Yugoslavia and other world leaders, also recommended creation of "standby" forces by each nation to help the U.N. in emergencies. He also supported a request for an improved U.N. military-political staff to move into crisis areas.

Skeptical Police Tighten Khrushchev Security Watch

New York—(UPI)—Nikita Khrushchev ventured forth from his Park ave. "prison" today under tighter police security prompted by reports of an assassination attempt.

Harried police, out in force to guard the Soviet premier and other world leaders here for the 15th United Nations General Assembly, made it plain they were skeptical of the reports, one of which came from the security agents watching over Khrushchev.

Both appeared groundless after careful checks and a strengthening of the security at 680 Park ave., the address of the Soviet legation where Khrushchev is staying, and at the U.N. headquarters. Cameras not known to police were subjected to questioning and their equipment was closely examined.

Khrushchev himself seemed to take the reports lightly. He made two appearances to talk to newsmen from a balcony at the Soviets' red brick Georgian mansion Wednesday afternoon. He was in plain sight for nearly two hours and security agents kept nervous eyes on the surrounding rooftops, windows across the street and reporters and photographers below.

He was present today when President Eisenhower spoke to the United Nations but the Soviet premier took jibes at the President.

"I am going to attend the meeting of the General Assembly... but I do not know who is scheduled to speak," he said.

Khrushchev plans to give a reception while he is here and he was asked if he would invite Eisenhower.

"I don't know if we have enough accommodations," he replied.

There were numerous queries if he intended to see the President while Eisenhower is in New York. Khrushchev replied to all of them: "Ask President Eisenhower."

No Conclusions Drawn on State Medicare Plan

Salem—(UPI)—The governor's committee on the federal-state medicare program held its first meeting here Wednesday. The session was taken up by discussing problems the state faces in sharing in the program.

The committee is attempting to determine to what extent Oregon can participate in the medicare plan.

About $100,000 more federal money per month is due the state beginning next month. The federal funds will be applied toward about 15,000 senior citizens now on old age assistance who have medical bills.

No Conclusions — The group's toughest determination will be which of those persons over 66 and not on welfare will receive medicare funds to help pay their medical bills. No conclusions were drawn.

Another meeting was scheduled for Oct. 4 here.

Members of the committee are Joseph Harvey, Portland, chairman, and also chairman of the State Public Welfare Commission; Dr. James H. Seacat, Salem, Oregon Medical Society vice president; Dr. Richard White, Co., Portland, state health officer; Dr. Wesley G. Nicholson, Eugene, chairman of the Oregon Council on Aging, and State Finance Director Freeman Holmer.

College Student Chains Self To Wife In Hospital To Observe Son's Birth

Araca, Calif.—(UPI)—A literary student at Humboldt State College chained himself to his wife in the delivery room at Trinity Hospital Wednesday night so he could witness the birth of his son.

"Nobody has the right to separate a husband and wife," said John Quinn, 23, formerly of Long Beach, Calif.

Dr. Harry R. Frank had ordered Quinn from the delivery room, but the student pulled an 18-inch length of chain from his pocket. As his wife, Carol, 19, lay on the delivery table, Quinn looped one end of the chain to her wrist and snapped a padlock in the loop. He made a similar loop for his own wrist and again padlocked the loop.

Birth was imminent and Dr. Frank went ahead with the delivery with Quinn chained to his wife. The doctor protested and the nurse who operate the hospital called police.

The eight-pound son was delivered successfully and Quinn produced keys to the padlocks. He freed himself and walked out. He was not held by police and no charges were filed.
