Subcommittee Gets Free Lecture On Antibiotics Use

Washington (Science Service) - A congressional investigating committee got three hours of medical advice from a prominent physician, and the price was right: just travel expenses, with no high fee for consultation.

Dr. Maxwell Finland, professor at Harvard Medical school and physician in chief at Boston City hospital, delivered a lecture on the use of antibiotics at a hearing before the Kefauver antitrust and monopoly subcommittee currently investigating high drug prices set by the pharmaceutical industry.

But Dr. Finland chose to discuss uses, not prices. He denounced the indiscriminate use of antibiotics for minor ailments such as common colds. He said overuse of the powerful new drugs cause an imbalance in the difference types of bacteria to which the human body commonly is host.

The result, he said, is that antibiotic-resistant bacteria, not formerly the cause of serious infection, has become a new threat to health. He blamed the misuse and overuse of antibiotics on the fact that the medical profession often depends for its information about drugs and their administration on the pharmaceutical company representatives. There is no objective body to evaluate the antibiotics, and doctors do not have enough time to study the facts for themselves, he said.

Authoritative reports "in respectable medical journals" often do not appear until the drug has been on the market and in use for quite some time.

He asked that a study section be set up by the National Institutes of Health to evaluate drugs and advise on their proper use. "Under such auspices, the endorsement of inferior products that are not in the best interest of the public, is much less likely to occur than when the support for testing the product is furnished by the individual producer."

Dr. Finland was questioned by the subcommittee on chloramphenicol, produced exclusively by Parke Davis and company, Detroit, under the trade name Chloromycetin, which can cause serious reactions in the human blood stream.

He said that administration of this drug is best done with prior and concurrent blood tests.

Not Concerned With Cost - In an interview after his testimony, Dr. Finland was asked if he thought drug prices generally are too high as subcommittee investigators have charged.

The Harvard medical professor said, "I am not concerned with the cost of drugs and cannot judge because I have no way of knowing the cost of development. But what I am concerned with is the fact that the public is paying high prices for junk that is passed off as medication."

Many antibiotics are better categorized as "junk" than miracle drugs, Dr. Finland said. He declined to name any of the "junk" drugs specifically.

Struck By Car - Orville A. Knodel, Box 160, Trail, was said to be in good condition at Rogue Valley hospital after reportedly being struck by a car near Cascade Gorge about 10:15 a.m. today. He was to be confined overnight in the hospital. Details of the accident were not available early this afternoon. He was brought to Medford by ambulance.

Switchmen's Strike Talk Site Shifts - Chicago - UPI - Negotiations to avoid a threatened strike by switchmen against 17 Midwest and West railroad companies will be moved to Washington Monday, a mediator said today.

FBI in Portland Nabs One of 10 Most Wanted Men

Portland - UPI - Stanley William Fitzgerald, 39, one of the FBI's 10 most wanted men, sought for a slaying at Truckee, Calif., was arrested here without resistance Wednesday night by FBI agents.

Fitzgerald recently was added to the list and was the fifth man on it to be apprehended in the past 24 days.

The bureau began a nationwide search for Fitzgerald Aug. 8 at the request of California authorities.

He was wanted for interstate flight to avoid prosecution of charges of murder, auto theft and assault.

Fitzgerald was using the name Ralph Johnson when arrested, agents said. He was unarmed but carried a fully-loaded .22 automatic in a briefcase.

The FBI said Fitzgerald allegedly transported a stolen truck from Truckee, Calif. He is accused of shooting one man to death and severely wounding another last Aug. 2 near Truckee.

Fired Point Blank
The FBI said he allegedly pumped five bullets into one of the victims, the last shot fired point blank as the man was helpless on the ground.

Fitzgerald, known as a glib talker, heavy drinker and confidence man, frequently broke into renditions of Irish lullabies in bars, the FBI said.

He recently was in Colorado Springs, Colo., from where the FBI traced him to Portland. Fitzgerald is a native of Oakland, Calif.

Corbett Linked To Kidnap-Death Of Adolph Coors

Denver - UPI - The FBI Wednesday officially implicated Joseph Corbett Jr., a "most wanted" fugitive murderer, in the kidnap-slaying of brewery millionaire Adolph Coors III.

The FBI said Coors apparently was shot twice in the back on Feb. 9, when he was waylaid near his ranch home southwest of Denver. The FBI said a number of circumstances implicated Corbett.

Coors' clothes and skeletal remains were found last week on a remote mountainside, 40 miles southwest of Denver. Laboratory examination of the clothing, and the clues found at the bridge where Coors was waylaid, indicated he was shot by his assailant immediately. His body was flung on an old trash dump miles from frequented mountain roads, in difficult terrain.

Corbett, 31, lived in Denver for four years as Walter Osborne. He has been on the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives since March 30. It was clear then that Corbett was the prime suspect in the Coors case.

Grizzlies, Pels Open Conference

Ashland - Southern Oregon conference's 1960 football season will be kicked off here Friday night.

The rivals of the tangle will be Ashland and Klamath Union high schools with 8 p.m. boot-foot time.

Klamath and Ashland were cellar co-occupants when last season concluded and each is ambitious to avoid that status in this campaign. Each has indicated improvement over 1959.

This affair at Ashland will be the only Class A-1 loop activity of the week end. Medford goes to Red Bluff, Calif., Crater travels to Coquille and Grants Pass plays Marshfield at Coos Bay in non-league contention.

Concerning this week's preparations Ashland Coach Stan Smith said, "We've been plunkin' away. I think we're ready." He stated that the Grizzlies have been trying to polish up their offensive rough spots and see if they can find a defense to stop the Pelicans.

Pelican defense has had some particular work. On the ground Ashland will have to hold back a varied T attack. The Pels sometimes use a light T and sometimes line three backs up to the side with an end split. They reportedly run their plays conservatively.

Ashland attack may have Jim Doster, Forrest Farmer, Bob Voris and Ron Scholar in the backfield and Jerry Hauck and Bob King at the flanks.

Klamath has Kent Hunsaker in the backfield along with Ken Lewis, Larry McClure and Gary Buchholz with reinforcements in Steve Stiles and Greg Jones. Ends are Allen Phillips and Roger Ballard. The Pels have defeated Boise, Idaho, and tied North Salem while Ashland has whipped Phoenix and lost to strong Roseburg.

Hiking Minister To Be Gold Hill Pastor

Millinocket, Maine - UPI - A young Methodist minister and another man are resting today following a 2,025 mile hike along the Appalachian Trail from Georgia.

The Rev. Loehnen Gregory, 27, Orono, Calif., and Owen Allen, 26, Fitchburg, Mass., took 99 days to complete the trip that began at Ogilthorpe, Ga., last June.

They covered 10 to 12 miles per day, carrying packs that weighed 20 to 25 pounds apiece. They arrived at Baxter State park here late Tuesday and became the seventh and eighth persons ever to tramp the rugged trail to Maine.

Both said the toughest stretch of hiking was the first 13 miles inside the Maine border after crossing through the foothills of the White Mountains in New Hampshire. The Rev. Mr. Gregory leaves Maine soon to become pastor of the First Methodist church, Gold Hill, Ore.
