Half-Chinese Actress Getting Star Treatment At Hollywood Studio

By VERNON SCOTT
Hollywood — (UPI) — The publicity tom-toms are throbbing for Nancy Kwan, half Chinese, half Scotch-Irish actress, who costars with William Holden in her first movie. She's getting the "star treatment" in a campaign which makes her sound like a combination Marilyn Monroe - Anna May Wong.

At Paramount Studios the other day she posed in sexy Chinese gowns. Nancy, educated in England, is about as Chinese as egg foo yung in an Elk City, Okla., hash house. The publicity boys wax ecstatic when describing her charms and talent.

"Her long-lashed dark-brown eyes require special makeup to give them the Oriental slant necessary to play the Chinese 'Yum Yum' girl, Suzie." The latter referred to her title role in "The World of Suzie Wong."

Police Seek Man For $300 Theft
The cash register in Stan's Market at Crater Lake highway and Sams Valley highway junction was robbed of $300 Tuesday afternoon, state police said.

State police are looking for a man, young woman and infant. The man was reported by Mrs. Stanley Straus, wife of the store owner, as a possible suspect. He was the last one in the store alone just before the currency was discovered missing, she explained.

Mrs. Straus said the man bought two bottles of soft drink, drove his car to the gas pumps, then insisted on paying for both items before he had received the gas. He was alone in the store while she was pumping gas, she said.

Medford police found the blue Pontiac he was driving at the Big Y market at the north limits of Medford. Officers learned later that he had hired a cab to take him and his family to Hanley rd. where they bought the second car.

Descriptions given by the cab driver and former car owner corresponded, police said. The cab driver said his passenger was carrying a large roll of bills.

Labor Organizations Listed in Directory
Salem — (UPI) — The State Labor Bureau said Wednesday it has published a directory of labor organizations in Oregon and the booklet is available at the Salem and Portland offices of the State Labor Department.

This is the first time the union directory has been presented in separate booklet form. Labor Commissioner Norman O. Nilsen said the book also lists principal officers and addresses of international unions.

The booklet is a companion publication to the department's directory of business associations.

Group Officials Said Communistic
Washington — (UPI) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities claims six officials of a new national organization trying to abolish the committee have been identified as members of the Communist party.

The committee said a seventh official had been identified by the state department as having belonged to the Communist party in Germany before coming to the United States in 1933.
