College Students Start Campaign to Support Measure

Ashland – Among other student activities, large signs have been erected on the campus at Southern Oregon college in front of the dining hall, dormitories, and the student center which explain the source of funds for their construction and how they are paid for without raising taxes.

Wording on the signs is as follows: "Another Building Which Costs the Taxpayer Nothing. Construction and Operating Costs Come from Student Fees. Vote 'Yes' on Ballot Measure No. 6."

Barry Pitts, SOC student body president, announced that the students would also construct a Homecoming float and a large lawn decoration with messages similar to those on the signs, adding that the college student council had combined forces with all the college students in the state to campaign for the passage of the measure which is designed to alleviate severe housing shortages on all campuses.

Meeting Planned

According to Pitts, a number of SOC students and representatives from all Oregon state system of higher education institutions will meet in Portland, Nov. 6 for a gigantic rally to publicize their interest in this measure which, though unopposed by any group or organization, he explained, may be lost unless voters understand that no additional tax monies are involved.

Student speakers are now available to explain Measure No. 6, Pitts said, adding that those interested in obtaining their services should contact Hugh G. Simpson, director of information, Southern Oregon college, or Jack Creager, Jackson county chairman of the colleges for Oregon's future committee in Medford, SPring 3-5353. Josephine county organizations may call Dr. William Moore, chairman of that same committee for Josephine county, in Grants Pass, GReenwood 6-2412.

Pitts has also appointed a committee to place large "Vote Yes for Six" posters at strategic points around the area and asks the support of all merchants in this activity.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

EUGENE O'NEILL'S father James was a great matinee idol in his day, and starred for years in "The Count of Monte Cristo." He was standing in the lobby of a Washington, D.C., hotel one day when a man stepped up to assure him, "I admire your acting, sir. I intend to see you perform this evening." O'Neill politely brushed him aside, then asked the doorman, "Who is that fellow who just spoke to me?"

The doorman answered, "President McKinley."

Wilson Mizner, recalls Boyce House, was one of the most colorful figures in Alaska's gold-rush days. Mizner liked to tell of the time he broke three front teeth on a frozen doughnut—also the night someone stole the only typewriter in town and sold it to the butcher, who thought it was a cash register.

"Tragedy struck," reported Mizner, "the day the thermometer went down to 69 below zero. The president of the bank bent over to tie his shoe, and froze in that position. We had to bury the poor fellow in a drum!"

WE PREDICT that soon the automatic dishwasher will be the most important new appliance in your kitchen, becoming almost as basic as your range and refrigerator . . . Improved features and new designs of dishwashers have increased their flexibility, improved their cleaning power, and cut down prewashing of extra-dirty dishes. (American Home)

NEW FEATURES MEAN BETTER-THAN-EVER DISHWASHING

The old rules of elaborate preparation of dishes for the dishwasher can be tossed out the kitchen window when you employ the exciting developments available in new dishwashers. You'll be happy to learn that it takes less work getting dishes ready for the dishwasher than for washing them by hand. If you're shopping for a dishwasher you'll find features that take into account the wide variety of dishes, crystal, silverware, pots, pans, and kitchen utensils that must be washed and dried each day. The great flexibility these new appliances offer means you'll spend very little time washing special items by hand.

NEW CYCLES

have been added to many dishwashers to give you flexible dishwashing conditions for various types of loads. A cycle designed for pots, pans, and utility items gives a forceful washing action to remove heavy soil and cooked-on foods. Fine china and crystal get preferential treatment in a cycle designed to prevent damage to delicate patterns. Cycles have been improved to handle regular daily loads.

FLEXIBLE LOADING

releases homemakers from following a rigid loading pattern. Dishes, pots and pans, and other kitchen utensils can be put in at random in many dishwashers. It's important to remember, though, that water needs to circulate freely throughout the dishwasher. By following the manufacturer's recommendations you'll come up with a pattern that works best for the types of loads you most frequently wash.

Hot Water Booster

G-E dishwashers contain heating elements that come on to keep hot water hot during the full cycle and to speed drying. All G-E dishwashers can be used for plate warming.

Detergent Dispensers

Eliminate the need to measure, are located for easy filling, and are placed so that undissolved detergent doesn't fall on the silverware basket.

PRERINSE OR PREWASH

features eliminate the need for rinsing dishes by hand. Food particles are automatically rinsed off with just water or washed off with detergent water and flushed down the drain before the washing period begins. This part of the cycle can be used to rinse dishes that are to be washed at a later time with a full load.

G-E's 3-Cycle Pushbutton Controls

A wonderful new feature on Portable G-E Custom Mobile Maid Dishwashers is the easy-to-use, convenient pushbutton control panel. The touch of your finger automatically gives you the proper kind of washing for different types of loads . . . for FINE CHINA AND CRYSTAL; for UTENSILS, POTS, PANS; custom wash for DAILY DISHES (MIXED LOAD) Another pushbutton is the cover release. All G-E dishwashers have giant capacity. Portable dishwashers roll on wheels, need no installation.

RACKS

are designed to hold odd-shaped utensils as well as standard dishes. Some rack dividers are removable.

QUESTIONS ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

Dear American Home:

We are building a new home and we do not know whether to put in a dishwasher. Some of our friends have dishwashers and do not like them. They say they do not wash right and they leave spots. Also some friends have to rinse their dishes before putting them into the dishwasher. This seems silly to me and I wouldn't want a dishwasher if I had to practically wash the dishes before putting them in, and dry them afterwards.

Are there any dishwashers on the market with which you do not have to pre-rinse and dry the dishes afterwards? If you could send me some information on dishwashers, I would appreciate it.

Mrs. Paul Dawson, Nashport, Ohio

ANSWERS ! ! ! ! ! ! ! ! ! ! ! ! ! !

Dear Mrs. Dawson (and the 46.5 million homemakers who wash dishes by hand):

You will be pleased to know that today's dishwashers have many new features which eliminate most of the objections your friends have told you about. Time studies conducted with groups of dishwasher owners prove that the time it takes for the complete after-meal cleanup can be cut in half if you use a dishwasher. When you consider the number of meals and snacks you prepare each week, this time adds up to a very impressive figure — time you could spend in more stimulating and satisfying ways: sewing, cooking, gardening, community work, on being with your family.

There are many other big benefits that have come to light from our talks with homemakers around the country. One of the greatest is FREEDOM. Freedom from that "heavy, heavy hangs over thy head" feeling when it's dishwashing time; from being tied to the kitchen sink; from family squabbles over who's going to do the dishes; yes, even from dishpan hands.

You'll like the way a dishwasher helps keep your kitchen neat. Families with children mention this . . . baby bottles, countless juice and milk glasses are kept out of sight in the dishwasher instead of standing in the kitchen sink. And dishes, because they are washed in water hotter than your hands can stand, are cleaner and more sanitary.

An evolution has been taking place these past few years in automatic dishwashing. Because of the beneficial features which have been added, the 1960 homemaker can rightfully expect real convenience and sparkling results from an automatic dishwasher.
