

Nixon Dominates California Week With 3-Day Jaunt

By United Press International Vice President Richard M. Nixon wound up his California campaign at week's end and let it be known he intends to use President Eisenhower in his administration if elected.

Before flying to Phoenix, Ariz., the Republican presidential candidate delivered a foreign policy speech in Los Angeles before the World Press Forum sponsored by the California Newspaper Publishers association.

Nixon's final campaign day in California during the week began with a political breakfast at the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles. From there his day-long motorcade in the Los Angeles area included stops at the University of Southern California, West Covina and Beverly Hills.

The vice president was reported pleased with results from his third TV debate with Sen. John F. Kennedy. Aides said, "We considered it his top performance."

In New York, advisers to the Democratic presidential candidate said that Kennedy was "at his best" in the debate. The senator plans another California swing before the Nov. 8 election. Meanwhile, his brothers appeared in California to campaign for him.

In Los Angeles, Robert F. Kennedy said he regarded California as a pivotal state in the November election which could go either for his brother or Nixon. He said he thought "sentiment for the Senator is on the uptrend" in this state.

At week's end, another brother, Ted Kennedy, headed up a list of speakers at a Democratic rally at the State Fairgrounds in Sacramento.

But the political spotlight in California during the week was beamed principally on Nixon, who spent three days campaigning for votes in his home state.

In speeches at San Diego and at Knotts Berry Farm at Buena Park, Nixon stated that the United States should protect the islands of Quemoy and Matsu off the coast of Communist China. Kennedy had claimed this country had no unconditional pledge to defend the offshore islands from attack by Communists on the Chinese mainland.

The vice president replied that Kennedy's program would lead not to peace but to war because any concession to the Communists would lead only to new demands.

Elsewhere, there were these developments: Registration: One-third more Democrats than Republicans have registered to vote in California since the June primary, according to Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan. His official figures showed that a record total of 7,464,826 persons are eligible to vote in California in the Nov. 8 presidential election. The state's Democrats maintained their 3-2 edge over the Republicans by registering 618,835 since the June primary compared to 406,433 for the GOP.

Railroad: The Southern Pacific company, operators of more than 8,000 route miles of railroad from Oregon to Louisiana, applied to the interstate commerce commission for permission to purchase the Western Pacific railroad. The price would be about $35 million through an exchange or purchase of stock. Southern Pacific, with headquarters in San Francisco, is one of the largest transportation systems in the West, with routes from New Orleans through Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada and California to Portland, Ore. Western Pacific's main line runs from Oakland, Calif., to Salt Lake City. It has some 1,200 route miles in California, Nevada and Utah.

Stanley: Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, of Berkeley, one of the world's first scientists to link viruses with cancer, was awarded the American Cancer society's bronze medal. The presentation was made at a luncheon session of the 14th annual meeting of the society's California division. Dr. Stanley, a Nobel Prize winner in chemistry in 1946, is professor of biochemistry at the University of California and director of the University's Virus laboratory.

Nelson: Actor-producer Ozie Nelson described persons who adversely criticize the television industry as "idealists who would like to change the American way of life." Nelson, testifying at a federal communications commission hearing in Los Angeles, said the industry does a good job of policing itself. He said TV has its own "built-in control system," adding, "if the public doesn't want the program, they can turn it off."

Cromwell: Richard Cromwell, early star of talking motion pictures, died in Hollywood after an extended illness. Cromwell, 50, attained fame at the age of 20 in the film "Tol'able David."

Crater High School

By Lynn Malot

To promote more school spirit and to enlarge attendance at the pep assemblies, the Crater High faculty decided to give $5 in cash to the class that could make the most noise during the pep assembly for the Crater-Medford game. Almost any noise was allowed except for guns, bombs, firecrackers, etc.

The classes accepted the challenge and proceeded to make as much noise as possible. There were such noise makers as fire sirens, air horns, drums, cow bells. "Kids" beat on barrels and tin cans. The competition was keen, but the seniors were victorious.

The yell squad, besides leading yells, put on a hilarious skit about "Katy the Kat-terpillar." The spirit was at its highest and best. Never have the halls of Crater known a more successful pep assembly.

The main topic of the last student council meeting was that of the 10th annual Homecoming Friday. After much discussion, the council decided there would be a noise parade the afternoon before the game, with a decorated convertible for each class' princess to ride in. A prize was given for the best decorated car. They also decided that the council would decorate one big float for Comettes and the yell squad to ride in. The noise parade started at Crater and ended in Central Point with a big pep rally.

The bonfire and serpentine were also discussed. Thursday evening there was the traditional burning of an effigy and a huge pep rally and serpentine. The princesses stood on a platform while the yell squad led the rally. A yell was made by the "Ku Klux Klan" when the effigy is thrown into the fire. The Serpentine wound into Central Point from Crater and back again.

The Homecoming princesses were announced last Friday by Leonard Warren, head football coach. The princesses and queen were chosen by the football players. Senior princess is Becky Ferrell; junior princess, Diane Rowe; sophomore princess, Sandra Beasley; and freshman princess, Lorraine Hixson. The queen will be crowned during the halftime of the Crater-Yreka game, and then again during the dance following the game.

The Comettes have been selling tickets to raise money for future obligations, such as the basketball banquet. The winner will be announced during the halftime of the Homecoming game. The Comettes also are selling Crater portfolios. The pep club's main project this fall is sponsoring the Homecoming dance and halftime show.

The Girls League held a Big and Little Sister Day for all senior and freshman girls. The purpose was to acquaint the freshman girls with their senior sisters. Connie Mitchell, who is in charge of the event, explained the tentative plans to keep the Big and Little Sister program operating all year. Cookies and punch were served as an added attraction.

Because there are no longer any homerooms, the student council proposed an amendment to the constitution which was adopted, stating that six representatives from each class will represent that class in the student council. The class and club presidents are automatically members of student council.

Elected as senior representatives were Dave White, Allison Pinkham, Connie Morris, Carol Wilcox, Dan Mattson, and Bill Chase. Juniors were Marlen Coffman, Bertha Hasler, Dwight James, Beverly Klimko, James Nelson, and Virginia Wilson. Sophomores were Loren Cochran, Jan Pfaff, Bill Schwab, Delores Sanderson, Jon Mooste and Janice Mooster. The freshman names are not yet counted.

Representatives from the northwest independent colleges met with all juniors and seniors to encourage students to go to college and to stress the importance of a college education. The colleges represented were Willamett, Linfield, Lewis and Clark, George Fox, Pacific, Whitworth, University of Portland and the Oregon nursing schools.

The representatives broke up into groups to give the students a chance to talk with a person from the college of their choice.

The first report period of the school year is nearly over and report cards will be sent home Wednesday, Oct. 26. After considerable study, a new primary report card has been developed for the children in grades 1 to 3. The card gives a much more complete picture of each child's progress in school.

Two pupils of Jewett school received special honors in the art exhibit at the Oregon State Fair. Connie Landers won an award of special recognition. Ellen Meade won a first place award and her work will be included in a traveling exhibit in the state this year.

The children return the Junior Fire Marshal slips signed by their parents, each will receive a fireman's hat and badge. Already dozens of red hats are worn at Jackson school.

The children in Mrs. Muriel Harvey's room entertained the children in Mrs. Myrna Dean's and Mrs. Ruth Hawkin's second grade rooms with a play, "The Goodies and Baddies of Fire Prevention." The children also sang songs.

The bulletin board in the upper hall has a good display calling attention to fire prevention. Dexter Kinnaird and his fifth grade students arranged the display.

The bulletin board in the lower hall is attractive. An OVERDOES IT Letchworth, England - UPI - The winning, 87-pound pumpkin in the local Pumpkin club show won't make a very tasty pie.

A suspicious judge ordered it cut open, and found it contained 30 pounds of lead and half a bucket of wet sand.

ANNEXATION REJECTED Hillsboro - UPI - Voters near here turned down an annexation measure Friday which would have added some 200 homes to the town. Residents outside of town on the north and east voted down the measure 124 to 77.

One half of St. Mary's 1960 graduating class is now attending college. Tom Tomjack joins Bob Ferra at Notre Dame; Tony Marshall, appointee for the Naval Air Force academy, chose Santa Clara university, although he had a scholarship to both of these institutions.

At Portland university are Bernard Boat, Ron Daley, Bob Evans, Dave Hanawalt, Don Macpherson, Roger Hout, and Mike Moore.

Terry Cooper is at Sacramento college; Mike Duggan attends Oregon Technical Institute and in California is Tom Hersant, at St. Mary's college.

Jewett School

Jewett Elementary school, Central Point, was host to the parents of beginning first grade children recently.

Parents were invited in groups to hear their child's teacher explain goals for the year, illustrate teaching materials, and acquaint them with the general procedure and philosophy of the school program. More than 100 parents attended the meeting.

Special emphasis has been planned by Jewett school during American Education Week, Nov. 8 to 12. In keeping with the theme of that week, "Visit Your School", the children of each reading group are planning to invite their parents to visit one day to observe the activities of that group.

In addition, a special educational exhibit will be on display in the school library to which all parents and interested persons are invited.

The first report period of the school year is nearly over and report cards will be sent home Wednesday, Oct. 26. After considerable study, a new primary report card has been developed for the children in grades 1 to 3. The card gives autumn scene is shown. In the center is a slate with an autumn poem written on it. Mrs. Louella Schneider and her students arranged this display.

The first grade curriculum party held Tuesday, Oct. 11, was well attended. After the parents had visited the classroom of their children, they met in the cafeteria. Miss Gladys Durrand, elementary supervisor, discussed how parents may help their first grader. Bruce Metzger, principal, introduced Mrs. Bernard Rice, PTA president, who welcomed the parents.

The first six week period

Mrs. Edith Baker's fourth grade class presented an interesting play in honor of Columbus Day. The name of the play was "Columbus and a Boy Scout." The students in the cast were Vicki Wilson, Richard Keene, Sally Barr, Charles McCasland, Gary Singler, Jimmy Morrissey, Tommy Pidcock, Rourke Barker, Scott Huffman, Michele Kennedy, Sandra Gibbins, Linda Allen Powers. All students in the class sang in the chorus.
