(Continued from page 1) have consistently avoided short-sighted expediency in favor of long-range benefits in seeking solutions to the state's problems.

I believe that property tax relief is one of our most critical and urgent needs. In the 1959 legislative session, I worked for an increase in state funds allocated to the support of education in order to provide some relief to property taxpayers who now carry a disproportionate share of this burden. I expect to continue my efforts in this direction.

Among Highest - Oregon's income tax rates are among the highest in the nation with the heaviest load falling upon the middle income group. I believe that equity demands that we broaden the base of our tax program and I had hoped to vote for such a proposal in the last session. However, the bill which was offered did not accomplish this, nor was it intended to provide any funds for property tax relief through additional school support. Hence I voted against it.

Had this bill gone into effect, which a referendum petition fortunately prevented, it would have extracted an estimated additional and unnecessary 20 to 30 million dollars, most of it from the pockets of the same middle-income taxpayers. I am confident that if government expenditures are limited to our needs, taxes can be held down.

We in Jackson county must remember that we are widely separated from the metropolitan areas of the Willamette valley and the seat of government. Our problems are in some respects unique and they can easily be ignored unless our representatives are constantly alert.

Provides Opportunity - Southern Oregon college provides the only opportunity for college training for many of the young people of this area. It is growing rapidly and adequate state funds to expand its facilities are of great importance to us.

Because our economy is based on lumber, agriculture and tourist attractions we are particularly vulnerable when short-sighted policies are adopted by the legislature. We must guard against dissipation of our O and C funds and must work for a fair share of state revenues for highway purposes. I am keenly aware that the public interest suffers when policies governing labor-management relations jeopardize the rights of either workers or employers.

Jackson county has many advantages which we who live here enjoy. It also has its share of problems and I intend to devote my efforts to protecting and promoting the welfare of the people of this area in the next legislative session.

Growth Chemical Found Invading Animal World - London - (Science Service) - The plant growth regulators have invaded the animal world and the animals literally are having fits, three French researchers report here.

A small amount of one particularly active chemical dropped into a fish bowl causes goldfish to have convulsions and also brightens up their color. The myna fish, a European relative of the goldfish, behaves in the same manner.

In the Siamese fighting fish, ordinarily a peaceable creature until another male of the same species appears, the chemical can work the male into a pugnacious lather even when there is nothing around to fight. Just as if the enemy were really there, the fish puffs up its fins and brightens by expanding the color cells in its skin.

The same chemical makes rabbits more susceptible to convulsive drugs. The researchers, Dr. J. Thullier of Saint Anne Hospital, Paris, and Drs. P. Rumpf and Germaine Thullier of Research and Study Center of Applied Organic Chemistry, state in the British journal Nature (Oct. 8) that the action of the growth regulator chemicals is to stimulate the central nervous system, probably in the region of the hypothalamus.

The particular substance used in their tests, an ester of para-chlorophenoxyacetic acid does stimulate the hypothalamus area. But just how it stimulates is still a mystery. It may be that the chemical triggers the release of adrenalin or other body hormones that, in turn, stimulate the central nervous system.

(Continued from page 1) take action. You, the voter, should require each candidate to take a definite stand on the issues and not allow them to escape with such nice sounding but meaningless generalities.

If elected, I would ask the legislature to consider the adoption of the following program:

- 1. Real property tax relief. (a) Exemption or deferment of tax for home owners over 65 with limited income. (b) Tax only the equity of the home owner, not his obligation. (c) Tax the intangibles such as bonds, stocks, mortgages and contracts. (d) Tax on luxury items.

2. Abolish the present system of inventory tax on businesses.

3. Protect the present Workman's Compensation program from encroachment by private insurance companies.

4. Adopt scholarship program for higher education, not gifts but long-term bonds and job opportunities for our needy but able students.

5. Protect our deer and elk herds by prohibiting our present doe season.

6. Demand a state program for medical assistance to our older citizens.

7. Promote our natural resources and labor supply to encourage year around industry.

8. Compel arbitration in labor disputes after a reasonable time to end costly strikes.

9. Strict laws to prevent employment discrimination of our older or physically handicapped workers.

10. State participation in work projects for able-bodied persons on welfare.

11. Support reorganization of state government for greater economy and service to the people.

Taxes on Wealth - It is my opinion that taxes should be on wealth and not on one's obligations. Because of its great inequity, the real property tax has become the most regressive tax in existence. Such a tax has more influence in discouraging the purchase of homes than the high interest rate. This unfair tax is the reason for the defeat of school budgets and not because we do not want our children educated.

The Republican candidates would oppose a change of this tax burden since they know that the income tax would be the replacement for the real property tax. They oppose the income tax because it is based on one's ability to pay. They also oppose Federal aid to education because they want the entire burden of school support to be carried by the small home owner and farmer through the real property tax. Why should a home owner with a $10,000 mortgage pay a tax on the entire value of the home when a person with $100,000 in stocks and bonds pay no property tax?

Passes Problem - Congress in the defeat of the Forand bill (which would have provided medical benefits through social security) has passed the problem of medical aid for our older citizens to the states who must establish a program in order to qualify for Federal aid. No person should go without medical aid because of lack of funds.

It is now the duty of the government to adopt a workable solution since the medical profession and private insurance companies have not been able to solve this problem.

All I ask of the voters is to study carefully the program of each of the candidates since some of us will not have the large financial backing necessary to support many TV appearances to carry our programs to the voters.

Committee Suggestions

(Continued from page 1) The committee will also ask that the legislature help to solve "one of the most difficult dilemmas" faced by law enforcement officers. This relates to the subject of pornographic and obscene literature. Francis said many statutes have been thrown out of the courts as being "unconstitutional."

The committee has prepared a statute that Francis thinks will meet the requirements of the Supreme Court. Under this statute, he said, a person who is caught giving "harmful" materials to a minor can be charged with contributing to the delinquency of that minor.

Because "wire-tapping" is now prohibited, Francis said, the committee will urge that law enforcement officers be authorized to use "listening devices" in connection with the "narcotics traffic."

Other Recommendations - Other recommendations of the committee, according to Francis, are: -Psychiatric examinations enforcement officers, he said, "represent the Army fighting for society . . . against this insidious foe (the underworld)." Francis also stressed the need for eventually establishing a "police academy" in Oregon, a graduate of which would be recognized throughout the country. He said he introduced to the legislature a bill calling for an interim study of this proposal, but it failed. He said another attempt should be made to get such a study.

The need for a police academy, he said, is evidenced by the "intense desire" among police officers to be better trained. These officers already take advantage of all the training that is offered.

Statutes Be Consolidated - The statutes on thefts be consolidated into one statute to simplify the matter of detection and proof. -The "escape" statutes also be consolidated. -The legislature appoint a committee to engage in a 5 to 10 year study of both the substance of criminal law and the "causal" aspect of crime. Francis said he is "troubled" by the inadequate recognition given by the public to the important functions being performed by persons in the field of law enforcement.

Spends on Defense - He said the country is willing to spend "fortunes" on national defense, but does not respond as well to the needs of local law enforcement. Law
