Hood Said Climbed Via New Route: Timberline Lodge—Three Seattle mountain climbers Sunday reported they climbed Mt. Hood via a new route.

California ranks first in commercial fishing: Edward Cooper, 26; Eric Bjornstad, 28; and Margaret Arducci, 28, said they climbed up the crater headwall just below the summit on the south side of the mountain. The route was 900 yards to the west of the snow slope normally used by climbers and the trio said it was the first time the 1,000-foot headwall has been scaled.

Cooper and Miss Arducci attend the University of Washington and Bjornstad is a laboratory assistant at the university hospital.

Error Blamed By Summerfield

Washington—The office of Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield says a "clerical error" was responsible for circulation of a press release which a Democratic senator called a "serious and illegal misuse of the mails."

Chairman Olin D. Johnston, (D-S.C.) of the Senate Post Office committee said Summerfield had used postage-free, franked mail for a "political attack" on Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Summerfield's office said Monday Summerfield's comment had been circulated as a press release "due to an inadvertent clerical error."
