New York - (UP) - Twelve years of frustration and loneliness ended today for Phillip Heller, a former Czech national, when he is reunited with his 16-year-old daughter Vira.

Heller, 43, now a shoe salesman in Sacramento, Calif., fled Czechoslovakia in 1948 and came to the United States. In his escape to freedom Heller was forced to leave his wife Jetty and young daughter behind.

In the intervening years he tried continuously to get his family out from behind the Iron Curtain and into this country. He enlisted the aid of the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Adlai Stevenson, but their efforts proved fruitless.

Wife Died
In 1954 his wife died and Vira was sent to an orphanage in Prague.

Heller redoubled his efforts. Last year he sought the aid of Anastas Mikoyan, the deputy premier of the Soviet Union. His plea was rejected. With the recent arrival of the numerous heads of state for the U.N. General Assembly session, Heller decided to come to New York to enlist the help of Nikita Khrushchev.

Several days after the arrival of Khrushchev and his party, Heller was walking toward the United Nations headquarters building when he accidentally came upon Antonin Novotny, the president of Czechoslovakia.

Heller pleaded his case with the Red leader on the busy city street.

"Novotny scolded me for

The nation has storage capacity for 1,585,948,000 barrels of petroleum products.

Having defected 12 years ago to America, Heller told UPI in Sacramento, "but because of our common fight in World War II against fascism and Nazism, he said your daughter will be returned."
