Table Rock—We have been asked to remind local folks that the Table Rock Community club will meet Friday night, Oct. 21 at the schoolhouse for transacting business, and the election of officers for the next year.

George Sabin, of the Grandview market, with his family, was a business visitor here Wednesday. He was loud in his praise of our community. He said he had been all over the U.S. and never had seen any place that equals this, for climate, scenery and fertile soil. Hope the assessor doesn't read this.

It was with regret that we learned of Casey Stengel being retired as manager of the Yanks. To us, Casey was one of the highlights of the game. Seeing him come out of the dugout and go toward the mound when the chips were down did something to us, and must have to his team, for generally after one of these visits, the tempo would be bound to pick up.

World War I
Headline in a recent issue of the Mail Tribune telling of a religious hate campaign soon to begin, reminds us of World War I, when the German big brass decided that their troops would fight better if they could be taught to generate more hate. Newspapers showed pictures of German troops lined up with gnashing teeth, chanting songs of hate.

The frost has put an end to string beans and other tender garden plants, but we are still eating sweet corn, and hope we can up to election day, for the day after we might be eating crow. Who knows?

Sanford Richardson was telling us of how they broke tip whirlwinds some 50 to 60 years ago. He said when George Jackson owned the ranch recently sold by B. L. Dodge near the Dodge bridge, he grew watermelons and shipped tons of them to the Portland markets. It seems that Jackson kept a loaded shotgun handy, and when a whirlwind started through his melon patch he grabbed the shotgun and fired both barrels into the spinning dust. This might work with a larger explosive on typhoon Debra.

Mrs. J. S. Richardson was recently the honored guest at two birthday parties, one Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. S. W. Gay in Medford. Campfire Dinner

Last Sunday afternoon at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Levitt at Union Creek, a campfire dinner was served to some 20 guests. After dinner all took a stroll down the river bank to observe the beautiful scenery made more beautiful by the evening rays of the sun on the brightly colored leaves of vine maple against a background of green firs.

Grandma Doran reports the birth of a 7 1/2-pound son born to Mr. and Mrs. Dale Schulz, Oct. 18, at Sacred Heart hospital.

Some 340 lambs were loaded at the J. L. Nealon stockyard Wednesday, purchased by James E. Lewis of Myrtle Creek, Oregon. Most of these lambs belonged to Ben Dawson of the Valley View district, who has been in the sheep business most of his life he says.

C. D. Woods, a right-of-way man for the California-Oregon Power Co. was a business visitor here Wednesday. He has worked for electric companies for some 50 years, but expects to retire next spring. He is a prince of a fellow to deal with, which makes it easy to see why his services are so much desired by his employer.
