A Diamond's Value is Not Determined by Size Alone

It is only a beginning. There are four simple words — all beginning with the letter "C" — that explains the difference in diamonds:

COLOR is very important. The standard is clear white—like a drop of water. Lay the gems on a white cloth and compare them in a north light.

CUT affects brilliance. A diamond cut in proper proportions shows an equal distribution of light at all distances from the eyes. It refracts the rays, which hit the diamond, back through the top.

CLARITY also helps to determine value. Too few diamonds are perfect. A diamond is forever. Let that first diamond that means so much be clean and clear. In later years you'll readily see the mistake of accepting a diamond of poor quality. The four Cs are what make diamond costs vary so much. De Beers Ltd. quote a national average cost of a 1/2 carat diamond as $150.00 to $600.00.

CARAT is the unit of weight of a diamond— but important only after Color, Cutting and Clarity.

The valuation of a diamond is a task only for an expert. We take pride in our knowledge and integrity.
