Letter from Alba Discusses School, City, Other Topics

(Editor's note: A number of Medford residents have received answers to letters they sent in the first "Friendship Pouch" to Alba, Italy, Medford's sister city. A second pouch was sent Saturday. Following is the text of a typical letter from Alba. It was received by Mrs. Margaret Nesheim, a teacher at Jackson school.)

Dear colleague: For the time I've spent on English, I dare not risk writing in it, and, therefore, I must answer in Italian your letter which the mayor of Alba gave me about one month ago.

So you are a teacher of boys and girls aged 10 and 11. That is equal to our pupils of the fourth and fifth grades. I am not familiar with Oregon. I was in America two years ago. I visited all of the Eastern coast. City of Piedmont

Alba is a city of the Piedmont, which is one of the 19 regions of Italy. Its population of some 20 thousand is similar to yours. We live along the banks of the Tenaro river and among many rich vineyards.

I am very hopeful that you will be able to decipher my writing and that you find time to answer. She is very dear this far-away and distant friend who loves children and is dedicated with all her time as I am. Distance is no longer insurmountable and letters can supply a bridge to unite two colleagues who live apart as strangers, but who are close in their work and ideals.

I shall wait for your news concerning your state on the Pacific coast. I understand it is agricultural, too. If I am not mistaken, Salem is the capital and it is known for its quantity of livestock.

I wish you good luck in your work, my distant friend. I am writing from the study of my cozy little home. It is rather cool now since we have had rain. I dream of a fire in the stove, but it is really too early in the year for that.

I shall want to study English this winter. I am very glad for your letter. Answer me. Yours, Vittoria Gallizio, Alba, Italy
