

Iowa, Mississippi Face Tough Rivals

By GARY KALE
United Press International

Top-ranked Iowa and runner-up Mississippi, extended to the last whistle in week end games, face renewed resistance this Saturday while the remainder of the nation's leading college football powers hope to draw a collective breath against weaker opponents.

Iowa, which had to put down a last half uprising by Purdue to win, 21-14, reaches for its sixth straight victory, against a Kansas team that lost its only game to Syracuse this season.

Mississippi overcame Arkansas, 10-7, on a 39-yard field goal by Allen Green in the final three seconds and now meets Louisiana State, the team that handed the Rebels their only loss last year. LSU is minus All-American Billy Cannon this time, but Tigers are keyed up for the contest and also are hoping to revenge a Sugar Bowl setback by Mississippi on New Year's Day.

Orange Faces Pitt

Third-ranked Syracuse, ready to reclaim its old No. 1 ranking should the top two falter, showed signs of old power by defeating West Virginia, 45-0, and now turns toward Pittsburgh. The Orangemen are riding on a streak of 18 consecutive victories. Pitt has a 2-2-2 mark this season.

Joe Bellino, who set a Navy season scoring record in the Middies' 27-0 rout of Pennsylvania, looks forward to increasing the fourth-ranked Midshipmen's chances of a national championship against one of the weakest Notre Dame teams in years. The Irish have lost four straight since winning their opener, including a tough 7-6 loss to Northwestern last Saturday in the national TV game.

Minnesota, the fifth-ranked team in the nation, preps for its battle against Iowa for the Big Ten conference lead on Nov. 5 by taking on a Kansas State squad that has lost five of six games. The Gophers beat Michigan, 10-0, to extend their streak to five victories.
