London Gold Market Price Fixed at $38 Per Ounce

London — UPI — The five companies which run the London gold market today fixed the precious metal's price at $38 per ounce in an effort to cut down speculation.

Monday's official price was $37.50 - 38.50 and Monday night's closing business quotations were $37.25-38.25.

Today's price fixing gave only one price. There was a one-dollar spread between buyers' and sellers' prices Monday.

But soon after the fixed price was announced one dealer said he had done business at $38.35 an ounce and added "there are plenty of inquiries."

Dealers believe that speculators gambling on the premise that the United States will hike the price of gold from its fixed quotation of $35 per ounce would not be deterred by the move.

They said that as long as the supply of gold falls short of demand the current high prices could be held for some time ahead — unless a dramatic change in the situation forces sales.

Financial experts said a change might occur if the U.S. Federal Reserve Board switched its policy and channeled gold shipments to the market through its agent, the Bank of England.

The experts did not foresee the dollar being devalued.

The U.S. Treasury, which controls most of the world's gold, sells at a fixed price of $35 per ounce, but conducts its business only with the world's central banks and refuses to supply speculators.

Last week, financial experts reported the United States would not seek to stabilize the London market by supplying its gold in an effort to bring down the skyrocketing price.

However, the experts said they noticed a change in the attitude of Washington officials after the fresh spurt in prices Monday.

Pauling Calls for Weapons Test End

New York — UPI — Dr. Linus Pauling, Nobel Prize winning physicist, called Monday night for continuing efforts for East and West to reach agreements on ending weapons tests.

Pauling said it would take only 300 "well placed, 20 megaton bombs to wipe out most human life in the United States and an equal number to do the same in Russia and China." He added that reliable estimates placed the U.S. stockpile at 115,000 nuclear bombs and the Russian stockpile at 60,000.

Pauling spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Greater New York Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy.

Seattle Trucker Injured in Wreck

Albany, — UPI — Chester G. Fay, 35, Seattle, was being treated for chest injuries at Albany General Hospital today after lying injured near his wrecked truck for about 45 minutes last night.

Fay said the brakes on his pickup truck locked when he applied them to avoid another car about four miles north of Harrisburg and the truck rolled over. He broke the glass and crawled out but was shaken up and went the wrong direction. A number of cars stopped to investigate the wreck but no one located Fay, who was lying near a fence, until a passerby heard him groaning.

Missing Spokane Plane Found Safe

Spokane — UPI — The Federal Aviation Agency said today that a small plane carrying Sam Francher and John Castle of Spokane had been located safe at Carson City, Nev., after it had been reported missing earlier on a flight from French Glen, Ore., to the south.

Stocks Regain Part Of Monday's Losses

New York — UPI — The stock market recovered part of Monday's losses in moderately active first-hour dealings today.

Electronics, among the heaviest casualties in the latest selloff, rose sharply from the opening to show gains of nearly 3 in Texas Instruments, more than 4 in IBM, and a point or more in Zenith, Ligon and General Time.

Steels ignored Monday's forecast of lower output this week to show gains of 1 or more in Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown and U.S. Steel. Bethlehem and Republic lost small fractions.

Lumbermen Said To Be Confused On Amendments

Washington — UPI — Rep. Charles O. Porter, (D-Ore.), today asked the Small Business Administration to delay about a month the effective date of its proposed amendments to regulations on "set-aside" timber sales.

The congressman told SBA Administrator Philip McCallum in a letter there is "confusion" in the minds of many lumbermen in the Pacific Northwest over the effect of the proposed amendments, published Oct. 5, and scheduled to go into effect in 30 days.

Under the present law certain timber sales on federal land may be "set aside" by the Small Business Administration so that only those firms qualifying as "small business" concerns may bid on them.

Porter said that among other things the new regulations would change the definition of "small business" as it applies to logging contractors so that a contractor could not qualify unless he were selling his logs for production into lumber to a firm which also qualifies as a small business. Previously, he said, the qualifications were that he employ fewer than 250 people and not be financed by a large concern.

House Investigators Launch Inquiry in Reports of Prestige

Washington — UPI — House investigators launched a political inquiry today in an effort to find out whether government reports on U.S. prestige abroad have been withheld on White House orders.

A spokesman said the House government information subcommittee expected a report on the subject today from U.S. Information Agency Director George V. Allen.

The spokesman said the USIA had invoked "executive privilege" and withheld from Congress recent studies of America's standing abroad. He said the monthly polls usually are classified and not released to the public, but in the past they have been made available to Congress.

Plans Full Inquiry

A House government information subcommittee spokesman said Monday night Chairman John E. Moss, (D-Calif.), had ordered a "full speed head" investigation to determine on what grounds "executive privilege" was being invoked to withhold prestige reports from Congress.

Moss, a bitter foe of government secrecy, has charged in the past that the administration has invoked "executive privilege" to withhold information that put it in a bad light.

The congressman accused the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization Monday of trying to suppress a still-secret Army report criticizing the nation's air raid alert system.

In a letter to Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, Moss said he had been informed that OADM Director Leo A. Hoegh wrote the Army's research chief "requesting him

Judge Accused of Illegal Action

Dallas, Ore. — UPI — The chairman of the Polk county Democrats, L. V. Bahr, charged Monday that Republican County Judge Cal Barnhart, who seeks reelection, three years ago aided a former county commissioner in illegally exempting a purchased auto of taxes.

Today the judge described the attack as "political character assassination."

In 1957, Bahr said, Judge Barnhart helped former Commissioner G. V. Rempel avoid an excise tax on a car by indicating the vehicle was for county use.

Judge Barnhart admitted signing a certificate which named Polk county as the owner and made the purchase exempt from $130 in federal tax. The car later was transferred to Rempel's name.

The judge said that it had been his understanding that at the time of the purchase, the car was exempt if it was to be used by the county part-time. He denied there was anything illegal about the transaction.

Rempel later paid the tax when a question was raised about it.

HIGHWAY INFORMATION BOARD

Don't authorize the state to build ugly information boards with YOUR tax dollars

The proposed billboard measure is a BAD bill that would authorize the state to build expensive off-highway information boards each containing 24 advertisements. They would be far off the highway on sidewalks. Inconvenient... unattractive... and at night a dangerous place for violence and robbery. Vote NO on No. 15.

Don't cripple hundreds of roadside businesses and destroy jobs

Hundreds of roadside and off-highway businesses such as motels, restaurants, service stations, resorts, etc., rely on good billboards to tell people where they are and what they offer. This measure would take away many of their most important signs. Would cripple their business and cause unemployment. Vote NO on No. 15.

Four Injured in Two-Car Collision

Portland — UPI — Four persons were in critical condition in hospitals here and in Oregon City today as a result of a two-car crash on a railroad overpass north of Clackamas Monday night.

In St. Vincent's Hospital here was Daniel Duvault, 29, Portland, driver of one of the cars which carried three of the four persons involved. Sharon Rose Wiley, 21, was taken to Providence Hospital. The third passenger of the Duvault car, Lila Rae Nachtergaele, 22, and the driver of the second car, Gayleen William Rettke, 26, West Linn, were taken to Willamette Falls Hospital in Oregon City.

Hit-Run Driver Injures Boy, 5

Portland — UPI — Robert Headen, 5, was struck by a hit-run driver Monday while walking to school alone for the first time, police reported.

The boy suffered a broken arm. His mother said she had walked Robert to kindergarten about eight blocks from his home each day until Monday.

Police said the boy was in an unmarked crosswalk when hit. A taxi driver told police he saw the boy look both ways at the intersection and then start to cross.

Williams Sees Close Race in Oregon; Porter-Durno Debate Slated Thursday

By United Press International

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan says the presidential race is "closer in Oregon than in some other places."

Williams, who visited Ashland, Medford and Portland Monday, predicted that Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, would win California, New York and most industrial states but said he was "not an expert" on the situation in Oregon.

Williams, who left for Denver today, campaigned in Portland for Rep. Edith Green, (D-Ore.), seeking another term in Congress.

The Michigan governor was asked whether Kennedy would accept Vice President Richard Nixon's terms for another television debate and said "It looks as though Nixon is trying to make it impossible for the broadcasting companies to agree to another debate."

Democrats were preparing to welcome two-time presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson, who speaks at a rally Sunday night in the Civic Auditorium in Portland.

A half hour live television debate to be carried on Eugene, Roseburg and Coos Bay stations and rebroadcast in Medford is scheduled Thursday between Rep. Charles O. Porter, (D-Ore.) and his opponent, GOP State Sen. Edwin Durno of Medford. The debate will include 10 minute presentations and five minute rebuttals.

Howell Appling Jr., Republican secretary of state, and his opponent, Monroe Sweetland, who have traded sharp words during the campaign, agreed upon something Monday. They took part in dedication of the new Oregon College of Education student union building and declared their support for ballot measure 6, which would authorize an increase in the limit on bonding for self-liquidating projects of the higher education system.

Pharmacy Phacts

From GENE WESTLAND

Here's an interesting one. The 16th revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia includes standards for 908 drugs, 225 of which did not appear in the last revision of 1955! The new revision also includes 81 drugs so new that, while they have been approved, standards for them could not be developed in time for their publication. Back in 1955 there were 838 drugs listed, and 159 of those are not to be found in the new 16th revision.

The newest Pharmacopoeia lists the greatest number of admissions and deletions ever shown by this authoritative publication, showing the tremendous activity taking place in drug therapy over the last few years.

Here at McLain's Drug Centre, we always recommend that you see your doctor first, then come to 8 North Central, Medford, to have his prescription filled by our friendly, and reliable pharmacist.
