

Lipstick Colors Formerly Banned May Now Be Used

Washington (Science Service)—Eleven of the 13 colors previously delisted for use in lipsticks, mouth washes, dentifrices or drugs are permitted temporarily in small amounts, or tolerances, under the new regulations issued under the Color Additives Amendment to the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Ten of the 11 are lipstick colors.

Published in the Federal Register of Oct. 12, the regulations become effective immediately.

The color amounts to be used are based on recently completed two-year animal feeding test on two representative colors that provide assurance that the temporary tolerances will be safe.

The new regulations terminate the listing of the colors external D and C yellows Nos. 9 and 10 for any use in foods, drugs or cosmetics. Under the designations FD&C yellows Nos. 3 and 4, these colors had been previously delisted for all food, drug and cosmetic uses except external uses in drugs and cosmetics.

Previously permitted coal tar colors may continue to be used in foods, drugs and cosmetics without restriction on the amounts used until necessary retesting is done, which may be two and a half years from July 11, 1960.

FDA says that the reason for termination of FD&C Yellows Nos. 9 and 10 for all uses is that these colors cannot be produced with assurance that they do not contain beta-naphthylamine, a known cancer-inciting agent. There is no scientific evidence to support a safe tolerance for these colors on products to be used in contact with the skin.

A few years ago coal tar coloring on oranges was made illegal after a three-year permission. Now the new citrus red No. 2 in small amounts is legal for coloring oranges.

FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick called a meeting of industry representatives and all other interested persons Oct. 21, 1960 at the North Health, Education and Welfare building to discuss the responsibility for future tests.

Larrick said FDA could not possibly perform all the testing required on colors during the two and a half year transitional periods.

West Coast Agent Attends Meeting

Don Kocina, station manager here for West Coast Airlines, Seattle, is one of about 26 resident managers attending conferences in Seattle this week to discuss operational, budget and sales plans for the coming year.

Since the last annual meeting, West Coast has added 20 new cities to its schedules, and the meeting this week offers many of the new managers to meet other managers and company officials.

Managers heard a report that for a majority of months this year West Coast ranked among the top three of the nation's 13 local service airlines in schedule dependability, according to records filed with the Civil Aeronautics board. Ways of continuing and improving this record were among matters discussed.

Navy Salvages Dental Lab Waste

Mechanicsburg, Pa. — The U. S. Navy reports it's anything but down in the mouth about the results of a scheme to salvage scraps, sweepings and discard items from its dental laboratories.

Operating under the theory that gold is where you find it, the Navy undertakes a regular collection of old crowns, bridges, fillings and dentures as well as dust and grindings from dental lab work.

The products of this broomstick prospecting are shipped from Pennsylvania and Maryland dental labs to the Mechanicsburg Naval Supply depot.

The result when the "waste" is melted down every year or so is over $15,000 in gold and silver.
