Students Told to Make Own Choice About Cigarettes

New York (Science Service) — Preaching at high school smokers is out of date. Now they are being told to make up their own minds, but warned that they may get lung cancer.

The American Cancer Society's cigarette education campaign during the past eight months has included distribution of more than 10,000 copies of a color-sound film-strip "To Smoke or Not to Smoke?"

The film has had a record response of any educational tool on cancer. Walter G. James, director of public education, reported at the Cancer Society meeting here.

The film stresses that each student must decide whether or not to smoke, but emphasizes along with an accompanying leaflet "Shall I Smoke?" that cigarette smoking is connected with cancer.

Also accompanying the film is a chart "More Cigarettes More Lung Cancer" that shows the risk goes up in proportion to the amount smoked. Two packs or more a day increases the danger 20 times, the chart illustrates.

Best Prevention
The majority of high school students are not regular smokers, and they are advised that if they already have started to smoke, their best prevention of lung cancer is to stop.

James said cooperation has been received from departments of education, local school boards, school authorities, the PTA and other community groups. In addition, the American Public Health association continues to urge health officers and medical societies to collaborate. The National Tuberculosis society also cooperates in many states, including Hawaii.

A preliminary study in Portland, Ore., showed that a very limited amount of education with teen-agers could be expected to bring a 20% reduction in new smokers.

Antibiotic From Japan Can Combat Deadly Infection

Washington — (Science Service) — A Japanese-developed antibiotic called Colistin is as effective as but less toxic than Polymyxin B against the deadly pseudomonas infections, scientists of the University of Washington, Seattle, reported here.

Pseudomonas is a species of bacteria outstripping staphylococcus in frequency as a cause of fatal infection in hospital patients.

Drs. C. Evans Roberts Jr., Henry A. Kuharic and William M. M. Kirby said studies in the United States over the past two years had shown Colistin (sodium colistimethanesulfonate) to be active against a number of gram-negative bacterial disease-producing organisms.

They reported to the Conference on Anti-Microbial Agents results of treatment of 20 adults and children with severe pseudomonas infections, in most cases unresponsive to other antibiotics.

Only 3 Fail
Injections with colistin resulted in complete eradication of the pseudomonas infection in 11 of 20, while an additional four showed definite improvement. In two of the patients the results could not be determined, and in only three did the infections fail to respond.

From two to six milligrams of colistin could be given as opposed to a maximum dosage of 2.5 milligrams of Polymyxin B.

Urinary infections were present in all 20 patients, but in addition to kidney disease, illnesses included acute bacterial endocarditis (inflammatory heart disease), acute inflammation of the lungs, meningitis and bacteremia (bacteria in the blood).

The investigators concluded that colistin is a relatively safe and effective antibiotic in treating pseudomonas infections. The Society for Industrial Microbiology is sponsoring the conference.

Carpenter Leaves Note for Weavers

Dayton, Ohio — A 19th Century house was being torn down here, when among the falling nails, plaster, timbers and boards workmen found a note.

Harry Jackson, a workman, picked it up and read it. The note said:

"When you take this impost out please take note of this paper. And think of Francis L. Merrimot, a carpenter who worked for Jacob A. Day in the year 1870 in Dayton, Ohio."
