

Guild Has New Members; Patron Invitations Mailed

Several new members were introduced at a luncheon meeting of the Philharmonic Society guild Tuesday at the Rogue Valley Country club. The new members are the Mesdames Price Shafer, J. J. McHugh, Ernestine Hartley, Dwight Houghton, Richard Padgham, O. M. Anderson, Merle Morgan, Cleo H. Young and Oliver Y. Beard, Phoenix.

Both active and associate open memberships are available for the guild, it is stated. Mrs. Herbert Hunter was elected treasurer to fill that vacancy.

The patrons committee announced that the patron invitations had been mailed. The Philharmonic society is organized for the purpose of presenting fine music as a cultural asset to the community and it was pointed out that there is no musical society presenting orchestral concerts in the nation that is self-supporting. Patrons and sponsors assist in the defraying of expenses.

It was decided that information concerning the Philharmonic society would be supplied to Welcome Wagon and Newcomer's Service. This would make it possible for newcomers to the valley to learn about the chorus, orchestra and guild and to affiliate more quickly with the group of their choice.

Two fund raising activities were decided upon. The first is the commissioning of charcoal sketches of children or animals to be done by Ray Lewis. Further details about this will be announced at a later date and some sketches will be available for viewing at the Society's November 13 concert.

A "Variations" table will be premiered at the same time where there will be for sale hand made items, candy, and small gifts for the "stay-at-homeers." Mrs. Oliver (Matte-willis) Beard will supervise the decorating of this table.

Refreshments will be served during the concert intermission and hostesses will be Mrs. Price Shafer, Mrs. J. J. McHugh, Mrs. Harry Hunter and Mrs. H. H. Breese.

Italian-Born Medford Citizens Write to Alba About UN Chapter

Two Medford residents, who came to the United States some years ago from Italy, have written a letter to the citizens of Alba, Italy. Their letter is part of a sister-city relationship between Medford and Alba, and also was sent on behalf of the Medford chapter of the United Nations association.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Pellegrini, 624 Dakota street, wrote the letter in Italian. Mrs. Pellegrini's English translation follows:

"We greet first of all our sister-city of Alba, its citizens and you, Mr. Mayor.

"We, a group of people interested to sustain and propagate the principles of the United Nations wish to give to the people of Alba a brief account of our activities in this direction.

"As you, Mr. Mayor, already know, Medford is a little city of about 27,000 people in the State of Oregon.

Members Varied

"Our group is composed of a varied number of people of almost every social level. We have the housewife, the teacher and the career-woman; the worker, the lawyer, the doctor and the businessman. All are imbued by one fervent wish: to cooperate in the line of the possible and, if necessary, of the impossible, toward the attainment of world peace and the brotherhood of Nations.

"Thus we look upon the United Nations as our only hope for the realization of such a goal. And the goal is difficult but not unattainable. In spite of the many difficulties, our faith in the United Nations group exist already and it spurs us to air our thoughts and our views in the hope to recruit as many people as possible on our side.

"We meet once a month to discuss projects, ways and means. Often we are able to present lecturers or representatives of other nations (Egypt, Palestine, India) who can give first hand information of their goals and aspirations.

Visit Described

"We have been fortunate a few years ago to have among us Dr. Luigi Rebuzzini of Milan (Via Venini 62) who we are sure would be willing upon request to give you detailed information about the United States, Medford and our group in particular which he personally attended. At that time Dr. Rebuzzini spoke at length about Italy, its economical and social conditions. (The translator of this letter, an old Triestina, but a long-standing citizen of the USA, still thinks with warm feelings upon that visit because of the pleasure she and her husband experienced in hosting Dr. R. in their own home.)

"Actually the main purpose of this letter is to find out if it is possible to form in Alba a similar group to ours. We are quite certain that in Alba, too, there are many men and women who are deeply concerned about world peace and world affairs.

"We feel also that only those of strong convictions, whose faith in the United Nations can withstand the inevitable controversies, should take the lead. It isn't an easy task to rouse people out of their lethargy, of their apathy. Experience taught us that in order to achieve even a mediocre success in this instance, a tremendous amount of patience and perseverance is needed. The efforts, however, are worthwhile.

"Should, however, a United Nations group exist already in your city, then we would be very grateful to you if you would inform us and tell us all about it.

"We are sure that the exchange of ideas, thoughts and eventual projects would be of benefit and interest to both of us.

"We renew our greetings and are hopeful to hear soon from you."

Teenage Drinking Is Meeting Topic

A discussion of teenage drinking as it concerns the Medford area was the topic of Thursday's meeting of Medford Coordinating Council of Parent-Teacher associations.

Mrs. Max Weston, president, appointed a committee to see what can be done to solve this problem. This committee will work with the county PTA on the Juvenile Code.

Mrs. Precia Medley, city school librarian, explained how library books are mended, the cost of school libraries and why there are book fines.

The December meeting will be held at Hedrick Junior High school. All PTA members interested are invited to attend.
