The well-known Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman hit is under direction of Mrs. Jackson Beaman and includes some first-time actors as well as veterans of Barnstormer productions.

The opening night performance, announced for Wednesday, Nov. 16 at 8:15 p.m. at Memorial auditorium, is to be a United Fund benefit with all the proceeds for the evening going to that cause. This will be followed by performances Thursday and Friday evening.

The Barnstormers will be remembered by many in Southern Oregon for their very popular summer theater, featuring melodramas in the old time tradition and performed in their outdoor theater in the city park of Grants Pass. This theater has recently been removed and plans are now in the making for a permanent, year-round theater building to be built by the group at a location not yet announced.

Mrs. James Basker, president of the theater group, has said that the Barnstormers are eager to build membership to permit more active participation by many people in all phases of the club program. She urged anyone interested to attend one of their meetings.

Personally Speaking

By JOHN STAFFORD

Now that the election is over, red hot issues and campaign speeches are pretty much buried. As many writers have pointed out, this was one of the longest campaigns in history. The presidential campaign started almost immediately after the summer conventions. In Oregon, things got under way following the May primary. In another month, candidates should be well rested and back into the swing of normal living.

Electioneering today is big business. Millions are spent boosting candidates during the course of an election. Advertising agencies are employed by those running for Congressional and some state offices. These services cost money. In addition, candidates on all levels busily distribute campaign buttons, bumper stickers, propaganda pamphlets, and other devices.

Television played a more important part in this campaign than it ever has before. The Great Debates no doubt stimulated use of this medium. Newspaper advertising played an important part in the campaign, as did radio. In short, all forms of mass communication were used extensively.

Now it's all over, including the shouting. Although this is not the editorial page, the writer of Personally Speaking would like to offer a few thoughts as to what it all means. These thoughts are not necessarily those of the Mail Tribune, and should not be interpreted as such.

Thousands of dollars and tireless effort were spent by candidates for national, state, county and local offices in the Rogue valley area. Why? Why do people want to get elected to public office?

Serving in a public office is a trying experience many times. The hours are long and the pay is small. No matter what decisions office holders make, there are always those who criticize and create a great fuss over the injustice that has been done them. Thousands of interests have to be considered in making decisions. They can't be satisfied. When they aren't, the office holder is held up for scorn by those who don't stand to gain by his decision.

Why would anyone want to be placed in a position of this type? Many times, those holding an office do so at great financial loss. Pay is most local offices is notoriously low. In many cases, the public official has left a prosperous business or profession to assume his public duties.

During a campaign, practically all attention to personal business dealings must be thrown to the wayside. Every civic, club and political gathering where there will be more than 10 people present must be attended. Questions on all subjects must be answered, no easy task. The candidates must be well versed and speak as authorities on all subjects.

Those seeking a minor office must be candidate and campaign manager at the same time. Either one is a 24-hour a day job in itself.

Once again, the question "Why would anyone want to run for public office?" Within the answer perhaps lies the greatness of our democratic system. The men and women who were candidates are interested in continuing our way of life. They are interested in maintaining government at a high level of honesty and efficiency. None of them would have been candidates if they didn't think they could do a good job of serving us voters.

In the busy campaign, they placed themselves at our mercy. They appeared at candidate fairs and other meetings to answer questions of voters and explain their programs. They campaigned in the morning, afternoon and evening so that we could have a chance to meet them and discuss issues with them. They gave us the chance to judge them from personal contact.

All candidates, winners and losers, are to be congratulated for the effort they exerted in making our democracy what it is: Freedom of choice, however, informed choice.

Horse Club Formed Near Applegate

By JEANETTE HEAD

Applegate Correspondent

Applegate—If you had been driving up the Thompson Creek rd. any of the past few Sunday afternoons, you would have noticed a large cloud of dust around the Vern Fowler ranch. Upon closer inspection, you would see a group of children and horses working and riding in the roping corral. Parents and friends would be sitting on top of the fences and in the small grandstand.

This would be the newly formed 4-H horse club, the Tricky Trotters, led by Mrs. Matthew (Valeria) Wittingham and assisted by Vern Fowler. Several of the other fathers also have helped out to get the club well started.

There are presently 19 members in the horse club, ranging in age from 9 to 18, and this means 19 horses, too. Many of the children did not have a horse of their own at the time of the club's formation, but there was a family horse. They now all have their own individual horse, which has meant a substantial increase in the equine population of the Applegate area. The horses are palominos, quarterhorses, thoroughbreds, Kentucky walkers, and some just plain horses.

Children with a livestock project in 4-H must assume full responsibility for the care and feeding of their animal. This in itself is excellent training. One of the first lessons the children had to learn was how to tie the horse up properly. Next, to name all the parts of the horse and the saddle and bridle. Proper saddling, mounting and dismounting of the horse was another lesson. Old, or bad, habits take a bit of determined work to unlearn and to remember to substitute the proper good habit.

Both child and horse learn much together about patience when it comes to teaching the horse to go from a walk to a trot, back to a walk and then to a gallop, to go around the barrels and to do the figure eights. At the end of each of the work sessions, the older and more experienced riders will engage in a few races or contest, such as a baton race.

The children had a number of extra meetings to practice for the riding and formation of columns to ride in the Veterans' day parade in Medford. They discovered that there is more than one way to go around a corner. Practice in keeping horses properly spaced in close formation and the extra steps necessary for the outside horseman to take in turning corners were two big items for the young rider to learn.

Horse clubs are a comparatively new field in the 4-H work in this area.

Plans for Proposed Fire District Are Outlined

By MARY KELL

Sams Valley - Bill Duggan, well known Sams Valley resident, told of the various procedures that were necessary to prepare petitions which outlined the boundaries of the proposed rural fire district for this vicinity recently.

The proposed fire district for Sams Valley area will start at the edge of the Gold Hill city limits, continue up Ramsey Canyon rd. to the Robert Walker property, then east to the Beagle area and join with Shady Cove rural district, then down the Rogue river until it meets the Central Point rural fire district.

Following a recent session of the Sams Valley Parent-Teacher association conducted by Alfred Gowan, president, guest speakers explained different phases of the proposed rural fire district.

Claude Hoover of the Central Point rural fire district gave a talk on that district's equipment and problems that were encountered while forming the Central Point rural fire district.

L. C. Lisenbee, chief of Central Point rural fire district, told of the number of volunteers that participate in the training program for that district. Volunteer firemen from Sams Valley were extended an invitation to attend training sessions in Central Point on Wednesday evenings.

Wesley McDonough, committee member said that several men in the Sams Valley area who have volunteered have had previous fireman's training.

McDonough reported that 25 per cent of the 300 registered voters in this vicinity are required on the petitions, which will be presented to the county court. Signers must be property owners, he said.

McDonough and Duggan are members of a volunteer committee that was organized last fall following the disastrous fire in Sams Valley late last summer that destroyed so much property. Others on this committee are Stanley Hall, Albert Straus, Ramsey Thomson, and George Loftin. This group of men have put forth the effort to obtain a rural fire district for this area.

Everyone participating is doing so strictly on a volunteer basis in the interest of fire protection for the community. McDonough said that a board of five directors will be elected for terms of one to five years.

Chairmen Named

During the PTA session Alfred Gowan, president, named his committee chairmen for the 1960-61 school year. They are Mrs. Cleon Botsford, membership; Mrs. E. R. Taylor and Mrs. Gowan, hospitality; Mrs. Edgar Pleasant, ways and means; Mrs. William Miller.

Hornbrook Voters Set Voting Record

By KATHERINE CHAPMAN

Hornbrook Correspondent

Hornbrook—A record to be proud of was set by the voters in this little town in the recent national election. Of 259 registered voters a total of 250, or a percentage of 96.52, cast their ballots. Following the national trend, Hornbrook gave Sen. John Kennedy 130 votes, and vice president Nixon, 110.

Proposition One on the state ballot was voted down 53 to 158. This was the highly controversial and unpopular (in the northern part of the state) Water Resources Development Bonds act, which provides for a bond issue of $1,175,000,000 and which was passed by the voters, to become the largest bond issue ever approved by any state.

Proposition 15, the State senate reapportionment act was defeated in Hornbrook, 28 to 176, as it was in the rest of the state.

Applegate Notes

By JEANETTE HEAD

Applegate - In this dry year that we wish was wet, an unexpected amount of water can be just as upsetting as the worry about lack of moisture.

A broken water pipe in an Applegate school classroom completely upset the normal routine. Our civilized life requires water pipes to deliver their normal load to drinking fountains, water heaters, and rest rooms. When a room is unexpectedly flooded and the supply of water is cut off at the source, we find ourselves realizing how far we have progressed from the days of grandmas and grandpas and the "little red schoolhouse."

SPONSOR DANCE

Yreka - Siskiyou County Peace Officers association will sponsor a dance at the Gazelle Grange hall, Saturday, Nov. 26. The proceeds will go to the Junior Safety Patrol. An orchestra from Red Bluff has been secured for the dance.

How to add $72.50 a month to your retirement income for only $1.26 a day

The day of your retirement may be so far away you don't even think about it. But you can make sure of extra income—for very little money—by giving it a little thought now.

For example, a $50 Bond a month (cost $37.50) requires saving just $1.26 a day. After 17 years, 9 months, you'll own 213 Bonds. The first Bond will then be at the end of its extended-maturity period and worth $72.50. Each month after that another Bond will yield the same amount.

A plan like this can be made with money you probably won't miss during your peak earning years. Why not see your banker today—or ask the payroll clerk where you work—about all of the details.

Some more advantages you might think about

You can save automatically with the Payroll Savings Plan. Tell your company how much to save for you each payday for Bonds. This way you won't forget to save and your savings will add up automatically.

You now get 3 1/2% interest, to maturity. This new rate, which went into effect June 1, 1959, makes your Bond money grow faster. Series E Bonds now mature 14 months earlier than before—in just 7 years, 9 months. Bonds bought before June 1, 1959, earn more, too—an extra 1/2% from that date to maturity.

You can get your money, with interest, any time you want it. Bonds are a ready reserve that you can cash any time at any bank. But it pays to keep them.

Your money is guaranteed by the U.S. Government. Bonds are an absolutely riskless investment. The Government promises you that the cash value of your Bond will not drop—it can only grow.

Your money can't be lost or stolen. The Treasury will replace your Bonds, free, if anything happens to them.

You save more than money. You help save the Peace. Every Bond you buy helps keep our Nation and our Nation's economy strong.

Here's how you can build GUARANTEED MONTHLY RETIREMENT INCOME

For 17 years, 9 months (based on present interest rate)

Buy a Savings Bond each month for 17 years, 9 months (cost price)	$18.75	37.50	75.00
At maturity (17 years, 9 months after issue each Bond will be worth)	25.00	50.00	100.00
10 years after maturity (17 years, 9 months from the start of your Retirement Plan) Bonds will start reaching extended maturity. Thereafter for 17 years, 9 months, you will get back each month	36.25	72.50	145.00
