MISSILE SYSTEM TESTED—The complexities of the Polaris missile system have required launching techniques and flight testing unknown to any other missile program. The most unique of the Polaris test programs is being conducted on the Bayshore Freeway near Lockheed's plant at Sunnyvale, Calif. A wooden scale model is suspended on the side of an auto as shown here by engineers Ron Bowlby, left, and Harry Bowers, and the readings are taken on the missile's performance as the car is driven along the highway at speeds of between 40 and 60 miles an hour.

Fast and Fancy Pudding Sauces

No pudding is complete without a sauce. Here are three top traditional favorites that are easily and quickly made for fancy pudding dress-up.

Hard Sauce. This basic hard sauce is hard to beat for simplicity. Cream together one-third cup butter with one cup sifted confectioners' sugar. Now let your taste buds be your guide and add your choice of one teaspoon pure vanilla extract or two tablespoons brandy or sherry. Beat in the flavoring; sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes about one cup.

Molasses Hard Sauce. A nice variation. Cream one-third cup butter or margarine; add 2¼ cups sifted confectioners' sugar alternately with one table spoon milk and two tablespoons unsulphured molasses. When well mixed, stir in one teaspoon grated orange rind. Makes 1 2/3 cups sauce.

Ice Cream Sauce. S-o-o good and so easy. Break up one pint pre-packed vanilla ice cream with a fork; add brandy or rum flavoring to taste. Beat with rotary or electric beater until smooth and half frozen. Makes two cups.

Dazzling Dips

With dairy sour cream so popular in our area, here are fast and fancy party dips that combine cream cheese thinned with dairy sour cream or milk; simply blend and add: red caviar, few drops of onion juice . . . pureed avocado, grated onion and horseradish . . . package dried onion soup and sherry . . . minced clams and grated onion . . . or shrimp, horseradish, lemon and onion juice.

Zesty Relish

For a zesty relish for poultry, pork or veal, combine one can (one pound) cranberry sauce, one-quarter cup french dressing and one tablespoon horse-radish; chill. Makes about one pint of relish which is quite a lot. It will keep well when refrigerated.

Small Turkeys Require Special Cooking Care

Remember when cooking the smaller or junior size turkeys that they are young and tender; contain a small amount of fat so they must be handled differently.

Because of the small amount of fat, conserve it and rub in other fat which can be butter, margarine, shortening or salad oil OR cover top with a cloth dipped in fat. Do not tuck in the cloth.

Avoid over cooking the small bird. Test it when you think it has reached the "done" stage. A six-pound bird should be checked after it has been in the oven two hours. Roast preferably in a V-shaped rack, breast side down. Like bigger turkeys, Junior will be easier to carve, have better flavor if allowed to stand before carving.

Pomegranate Purchasing

If you'd like something more dramatic in the fruit line, get better acquainted with the pomegranate now selling at reasonable prices. Inside the rind of this fruit is a layer of pulp which contains an abundance of ruby red seeds which make delicious eating and are especially favored as a garnish for desserts and salad.

When purchasing, select those that are pink or red skinned in color, heavy for their size and with a fresh looking compact crown.

Clam Chowder Supper

This clam chowder supper is fine for weekend following feasting or for following a weekend of feasting. A few cans of clam chowder, dependent on number to be served; season with one-quarter teaspoon poultry seasoning per can. Heat and serve over crisp cheese crackers. Maybe fruit salad to follow which will happily combine salad and dessert.

Crisp Crackers

When company's coming, crackers can be served simply but elegantly by browning them in oven just before soup or salad course to bring out crispness, new flavor.

Tangerine Talk

Nicknamed "kid-glove oranges" because their peel is so easy to strip off, tangerines are especially convenient for use in lunch boxes and for between-meal snacks. After peeling, segments are easily and neatly separated.

Tangerines are one of the sweetest of all citrus fruits and have a decided "bouquet". Tangerine segments often are used in fruit salads. Another Florida citrus fruit marketed in increasing volume is the tangelo, a tangerine-grapefruit hybrid.

Crisp Relishes

Attractive, refreshing, a relish bowl or two will enhance any table, add desirable crunchiness to any meal. For finger eating, partly fill a bowl with crushed ice and tuck in sticks of green celery, golden carrots, crimson beets, snowy turnips, unpeeled cucumbers. Add big ripe and green olives, radishes for contrast.

Turkey Thaw

Best way to thaw frozen turkey is to allow it to stand at room temperature about nine hours for birds under 12 pounds and 12 to 15 hours for heavier birds. Or leave in refrigerator for a longer period of time.

Salted Almonds

Salted almonds whether vacuum packed or home roasted add glamour to dozens of foods. For instance, slice almonds thin and serve with clear or cream soups. Sprinkle slivered almonds over ice cream with dessert fruits.

Open Sesame Canapes

These open sesame canapes are quickly made, satisfying to look at and to offer guests. Simply spread contents of a 2¼ ounce can liver pate on white toast rounds or crackers. Sprinkle liberally with sesame seeds. Enough for about a dozen.

Men Returned On Portland Warrant

Portland police department officers arrived in Medford today to return two Portland men, arrested here Sunday by Oregon state police, to Portland.

The men were hitchhiking north on Highway 99 when picked up by state police. The men, Floyd James Percy, 19, and James Paul Betsco, 23, admitted to the officer that they had stolen an automobile in Portland earlier this month.

They said that they abandoned the car near Reno, Nevada, when it developed engine trouble. California highway patrol was notified and located the car, state police said.

Warrants were issued in Portland for the men on charges of grand larceny with bail set at $2,000 each.

Small Worlds Around Us

By Lynn M. Watkins

High Ground Was Only Element of Destruction

When the ground is already saturated with water it requires but a few inches of rain to inundate large sections of the Florida Everglades. Even a couple of inches, standing on the ground, drowns out all the little animals that normally live there, leaving them stranded. To survive they must seek higher ground. Some can climb up in a nearby tree.

Rabbits, raccoons, squirrels, various species of mice and shrews, snakes, wildcats, and many other must escape to high ground. And sooner or later they come to a pavement. This offers about the only high ground in a world of lowlands.

Begin Wait

Realizing they have at last found a place of apparent safety or dryness, they climb the embankment. On the pavement they relax and some even sleep.

Of course they cannot know that over these roads motor cars travel often at high rates of speed. They do not realize that among the swarms of motor cars there are those driven by people who have no regard for anything unfortunate enough to be in the way.

It will never be known how many animals were killed by motor cars while hurricane Donna ranted and raged, but it was tremendous. The elevated pavements that promised safety proved to be death - traps. The creatures that faced starvation or drowning were killed by speeding motor cars.

Many cars deliberately ran over animals just because they were there. Many claim they should not endanger themselves by swerving just to save an animal. This seems a weak excuse, for those drivers were probably driving too fast for conditions existing at the time.

The Toll

In one stretch of pavement, of 18 miles, a total of 21 raccoons, 11 rabbits, one otter, and 31 snakes and turtles lay dead on the roadway. Many of these creatures died needlessly. It's a peculiar twist of human nature that implants in some people the compelling desire to display dominance over lesser creatures.

Those countless little lives were never figured in the storm damage. No mention at all of the blobs of fur, or rumpled feathers, crushed into a shapeless mass on a highway. Is this what they mean by "holding dominion over the beasts of the field and the birds of the air?"

Two Boys Admit Taking News Racks

Medford police took two brothers, ages 13 and 15, into custody Sunday on charges of petty larceny involving the theft of six newspaper racks during the week end.

The two youths admitted the thefts to police and turned over $4.50 in stolen change. The boys said they would take the racks, break open the coin boxes, and then discard the racks. They were released to the custody of a parent.
