WHITE HOUSE CHILD — Esther Cleveland, daughter of Grover Cleveland and the only president's child born in the White House, is shown in Photo made when she was 3½ years old. Esther was born Sept. 9, 1893, and her sister, Marion, who was born in Cape Cod, Mass., less than two years later, were the only children born to an American president in office. (UPI Telephoto)

De Gaulle Picks Man To Supervise Algeria Switch

Nambs — (2) — President Charles de Gaulle is reported to have chosen a civil servant to execute new, liberal Algerian policies, to supervise the planned transition of Algeria to a near-independent republic.

Parisian radio flash today, a de Gaulle followup of sending out political views, had been scheduled to head up the new supervisory forces of leading administration managers in Algeria.

Redirection of an administration was requested as de Gaulle launched a campaign to win more support for his Algerian peaceful plans in a nationwide referendum expected to be held early next year.

Support Enlisted

De Gaulle is reportedly supported to have enlisted support of the Catholic CFDC and the socialist force Cornflour labor organizations in the referendum. Plus two groups represented nearly 20 per cent of France's labor force.

Joxe's appointment was expected to open the way for De Gaulle to reshuffle his cabinet completely, dropping from its ranks those ministers who felt uneasy about the president's plans for an Algerian republic.

De Gaulle has been interviewing colonial ministers individually and perhaps their bayoneting to him on the Algerian issue. About 16 of the 26 ministers have come into this for real regards as at least several racial libels be dropped — areas at their own request.

In closing, Joxe, De Gaulle picked a man known to be of only very-very left-of-center views. Under former president Vincent Auriol, Joxe was named director of international cultural relations at the French foreign ministry. He has served as ambassador to Moscow and has received the unusual distinction of being named "Ambassador of France."

Unofficial but reliable reports foresee new moves to create an atmosphere in which talks might be resumed between the French and the Algerian rebel government-in-exile. The first talks, held in Melun, France in June, broke down after several days of futile preliminary discussions aimed at paving the way for full-scale cease fire negotiations.

Denver Students Writing Champs

Denver — (UPI — Twenty-four of the annual scholastic writing awards have been given to students of Denver schools, the largest number awarded to youngsters in any city.

New York City students received 23 awards, those in Detroit and Cleveland tied with 12 awards each, and Ogden, Utah, placed fifth, with nine awards.

Top winner was Sherry Granzow, 17, of Denver, with first honors for short story and informal essay and second honors for formal essay.

The contest, in its 36th year, is conducted by Scholastic Magazines and sponsored by the Sheaffer Pen company.

Kennedy Asked To Name Westerner

Oakland, Calif. — (UPI — President-elect John F. Kennedy was urged Wednesday to name a "qualified Westerner" to the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The request was made by the Western States Council of Packing and Cleaning of Commerce.

Council president W. A. Hamburg said the most appropriate Western representative to the present Civil Aeronautics Board is Vice Chairman Chan Gurney, of South Dakota. The four other members now serve east of the Mississippi.

A CAB vacancy will occur on Dec. 31 when Gurney's appointment as the term of Maj. Gen. Oren Harris expires.

The council urged Kennedy to name someone "knowledgeable in the air transportation needs and potential of this fastest growing region."

Forest Group Elects President

Portland — (UPI — William Bowell of Imbler has been elected president of the Northwest Christmas Tree Growers and Forest Protection association. William Purdey of Estacada was named vice president, and Barry Clark, Union county extension agent, was named secretary.

The elections were held at a special meeting during the Oregon Seed Growers league convention here.

FIRST WHITE TIGER — Zoo history is made with the arrival at Idlewild Airport, New York City, of the first white tiger ever to set foot in the western hemisphere. En route to the National Zoological park in Washington, D. C., from India, the two-year-old female pays from her cage. The tiger is a gift to the children of America from the Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp. of New York. (UPI Telephoto)

Quotes From the News

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

New Orleans — Mrs. Daisy Gabrielle, white mother who has been shoved, cursed and kicked at by a crowd of other white women because she takes her child to a racially desegregated school:

"You have to have a tough hide to take it. I don't think the women are going to hurt anyone else's child but I think they would break both of my legs without thinking twice."

Kansas City, Mo. — Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, listing what he thinks are Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev's three major aims:

"One is to instill fear in the world; another is to destroy the United States . . . and his third purpose is to divert attention from his real purposes . . . to take over Berlin and West Germany and to stir up trouble in Southeast Asia."

Burbank, Calif. — Gary Drapala, 16, of Brooklyn, who fell in love with actress Annette Funicello watching her on the TV "Mickey Mouse" show and traveled to Hollywood in a vain effort to see her:

"I got 200 pictures of her on the walls of my room. No space for anything else."

Gainesville, Fla. — Former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres, who warned that the United States must act with speed and firmness to save Latin America from Communism:

"To Latin America, Russia and Red China represent change and progress, while the U.S. represents stagnation."

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a family counselor, a women's editor, a marriage counselor, an actress, a lawyer and a doctor. Each article is a transcript of actual discussions by the Council regarding problems that have been dealt with by them.

Mrs. P. B.—He's miserable because he's short.

Donald B.—Don't tell me about Napoleon. Tell the girls!

Mrs. P. B.—Donald has taken an interest in stepping around the house and he has us worried. He's 19 and went right from high school into an electrical job as a window-dresser. But he quit last Saturday. He says all his associates are jackfooters and because he's so short they treated him like a mascot.

He was doing so well at work. He's quite artistic and very artistic. His teachers are a big future for him, said he could be a stage designer. Now he hardly goes out any more and is terribly down in the dumps.

Short stature happens to run in our family. The sad part of it is the four tall girls. We have happen to be girls who wish they were small! But Donald's father and uncles haven't found this a handicap. Neither have Bill Rose or Irving Berlin or millions of other men who are closer to five feet than six.

Donald B.—That job was the last straw. I was the third ball there. They got so tired bending down to talk to me, they used to pull up a chair for me. My mother doesn't understand the agony of a handicap there's no way of correcting.

I was philosophical about my size until the girl I dated to my Senior Prom turned me off. From then on I have felt it a terrible problem. This is a tall man's world, look at the ads, look in the stores. Do you know that the only place in Portland we are in the children's department?

When I tag along with my few friends, I look like their kid brother. Maybe in the days of Napoleon and those other small leaders my size was the talk about, it was easy to be short. Nowadays you stand out like a broken bottle.

I'm trying to snap out of this frame of mind. I'll take a new job in a few days, preferably managing a midget show or I'm done. Now it feels to lower for a change.

The Councils Being small is no handicap to a diamond or $10,000 bill. Donald, and it needn't be to a man with a gold mine of intrinsic worth packed solidly inside him.

Ignoring the hurts of the past and the present, Donald can go to stepping around the house and he has us worried. He's 19 and went right from high school into an electrical job as a window-dresser.
